

Senate does turnabout, votes to OK $2,500 pay raises

by BOB LAHEY
SPRINGFIELD — Pay raises of $2,500 per year for Illinois legislators were approved and sent to Gov. Daniel Walker for his signature Thursday night after the Illinois Senate reversed a decision of a day earlier and voted for the pay increases.

The Senate had voted against the pay hike Wednesday, but reconsidered its action Thursday. The Illinois House swiftly approved the amended pay raise when it was returned from the Senate, by a vote of 111 to 31.

Approval of the pay increase in the Senate came less than 24 hours after the Senate had rejected it. Wednesday, the Senate voted 25 to 23 for the raise, with a three-fifths majority of 36 votes needed to make it effective for the new term beginning in January. Thursday the measure received precisely the number of votes needed, passing by a margin of 36 to 18.

The House earlier had approved pay raises of $5,000 per year, and acceptance of the reduced increases was a foregone conclusion. Among the 15 representatives for the Northwest suburbs, only two voted against the increase. They were State Rep. John Friedland, R-South Elgin, and State Rep. John E. Porter, R-Evanston. State Rep. Robert Juckett, R-Park Ridge, who is hospitalized with a leg ailment, was recorded as absent.

AMONG senators from the Northwest suburbs, only State Sen. David Regner, R-Mount Prospect, who has opposed all spending measures in this closing session of the 78th General Assembly, voted against the pay increase, which raised legislators' annual salaries from $17,500 to $20,000.

State Sen. John A. Graham, R-Barrington, who originally voted against the pay raise, voted for it Thursday. Graham said at first that economic conditions would not permit the legislature to increase its own pay.

Neither Graham nor Regner, however, will benefit immediately from the pay raise. Both are in midterm and cannot receive pay increases until reelected. Graham will receive an added $1,500 to his wages as assistant leader of the Senate Republicans.

The bill contains increased payment for members of the party leadership as well as an increase in expense allowances from $32 to $36 per day, and an added $2,000 a year for office expenses, for a yearly total of $12,000 for office expenses.

STATE SEN. Bradley M. Glass, R-Northfield, who had opposed the $5,000 increase, was responsible for the amendment reducing the raise to $2,500. He voted for the $2,500 raise both times a vote was taken. State Sen. John Nimrod, R-Skokie, and State Sen. Howard Mohr, (Continued on Page 2)

Parks weigh Raupp Center plan changes

Buffalo Grove park officials will weigh changes in their plans for the Raupp Memorial Museum and community center after 12 residents objected to project plans Thursday night.

Park Board Pres. Joseph Settanni told residents he would alert the board to their complaints at a meeting next week.

Residents living in the vicinity of the Dunham Lane complex voiced their opposition during a parlay with park officials at Willow Grove School.

The residents said the neighborhood would be beset with traffic and parking problems because of lack of parking space. The $100,000 project calls for a 1,900-square foot building to be erected on Dunham Lane.

The building is to be used as a community center for park and preschool programs and will be connected to the old Levitt Inc. sales office that will be moved to the site. The office was donated to the park district and is slated for use as a historical museum. Park officials hope the complex will be opened next spring.

In addition to complaints about potential traffic problems, residents also were critical of park officials for giving them what they called inadequate notice about the complex plans.

Settanni acknowledged the park board was "remiss in not giving each individual more information about what was being done on the property."

One resident, Herman Heffler, said: "That street (Dunham) was never meant in its size to bear the traffic it does today. It creates a dangerous situation — the danger is and always will be there." He also charged park officials have not come to a legitimate solution of the problem.

Many residents opposed to the project were not living in the vicinity in 1971 to vote on a $1.25 million bond issue that financed the project, otherwise the bond issue may have been voted down, Heffler said. "You have a rather ambitious project for a passive park," he said.

Settanni said one reason for planning the complex was to satisfy the recreational needs for Lake County residents of Buffalo Grove.

Some residents suggested cutbacks in park programs to minimize traffic at the center.

In response to the complaints, Settanni said "all the points made here tonight certainly will be considered by the board."

He said after the session, however, the park board would be limited in the types of changes that can be made because the district is already under contract for the complex.

Fire district battling inflation, money woes

Inflation and tight finances may cause problems for the Wheeling Township Rural Fire Protection District in meeting water and sewer payments for the Dundee Road fire station under construction in Buffalo Grove.

Officials Thursday said the district may have to take out an additional loan if the village requires them to pay more than the $7,500 set aside to install utilities.

Otis "Skip" Hedlund, a district trustee, said officials may be able to adjust existing finances to meet inflated costs if it amounts to only a "couple thousand" dollars more. He said, however, "If it's any more, then we find ourselves in a very bad financial situation — it's not available; we don't have instant money."

THE DISTRICT IS financing the station project with a $450,000 loan taken out about two years ago. At that time, officials were told by the village $7,500 would be sufficient to cover their share of the cost for the water and sewer main, said Fire Chief Wayne Winter.

But because of rising costs, the district is going to be charged an estimated $17,000 toward the $72,000 utilities project along Dundee Road, Village Mgr. Daniel Larson said.

The district, three other businesses and the Kingswood United Methodist Church will share the cost, he said. "Whatever figures were bantered about a year ago do not hold true today," he said.

He said steadily climbing construction costs have increased the price of building a one-foot section of the water main from $8 to $10 in the last year. All the parties involved had previously agreed to pay their "fair share" of the system, he said.

"NO ONE HAD any idea how rapidly the costs were going to increase — they're 40 per cent higher than a year ago," Larson said.

Think green

The real Christmas tree is coming back, but be ready to look a little harder and pay a little more

If you're buying a Christmas tree this year, be prepared to pay 10 to 15 per cent more than you did last year.

And be prepared to look early, because the supply of trees is more limited than last year. Wholesalers say fewer pine and spruce trees are being cut and shipped this year, possibly because the tree market was so bad last year.

Last year, prices rose by as much as $3 a tree. The only trees that may be unusually expensive this year are Canadian trees, hit by budworms this year, and trees taller than 15 feet, said two Chicago tree wholesalers.

"LAST YEAR WAS a disaster. The Christmas tree sellers lost their pants with the energy crisis," said Joseph Navillo, owner of Joseph Navillo Co., Chicago, a wholesale tree dealer.

"I think the green Christmas tree is coming back," Navillo said. Excluding last year, wholesale prices have not gone up much on green trees in the last five to seven years, he said. "Wholesale prices are still low," Navillo said, but added that retailers often raise prices considerably.

A spokesman for M. Walter Christmas Trees, Chicago, said the tree market is "up a little bit." He said that heavy snows in Canada are delaying tree deliveries, but added that price levels should only go up "10 or 15 per cent."

LOCAL DEALERS now are stocked with trees ranging in price from $3 for four-foot tabletop trees to $50 for 18-foot giants. Kiehm's Nursery said they have a large supply of short-needed, balsam and long-needed Douglas fir trees in heights of four to eight feet. Amlings Flowerland has trees up to 16 feet and a variety of color-flocked trees, including black, "to go with every decor," said Michael Orr, salesman at Amlings.

Frank Stanek, assistant manager of Kiehm's Nursery, said potted trees that can be planted sell for $20 to $30.

Balsams sell for $2.95 to $11.95 and more for those larger than eight feet. Douglas fir trees sell for $15 to $20.

Many local Jaycee and church groups will be selling Christmas trees again this year.

U.S. investigating Elk Grove furnaces

Federal investigators are probing causes of widespread furnace failures in Elk Grove Village homes built by Centex Homes Corp., The Herald learned Thursday. The U.S. Consumer Products Safety Commission is looking for answers in the continuing controversy over who is responsible for the failure of furnaces in an estimated 1,700 homes. The probe could result in legal action against Centex or Johnson Furnace Corp., maker of the furnaces, one commission official said.

Decision on housing urged

Mount Prospect Mayor Robert D. Teichert has called for a comprehensive meeting Wednesday on low and moderate-income housing, saying the village has been studying the matter to death. Teichert said he fears further delay will strip the village of any control over the planning of low and moderate-income housing, citing a new federal law that allows the village to object to subsidized projects only if it has a housing plan.

Arson probed in blaze

A Hoffman Estates home apparently was ransacked and then set afire late Thursday, fire department officials said. Firemen arrived at about 7:20 p.m. to find the doors open, a bedroom ablaze and nobody home at the residence of Mrs. Melvin Tiega, 314 Westview St. Damage totaled about $4,000, according to a preliminary estimate, and was confined to the bedroom. An arson investigation has been ordered.

Fire victims get aid

Offers to help were received from dozens of residents Thursday by a Des Plaines family left homeless in an apartment fire. The blaze destroyed all the possessions of Mrs. James Hill, who together with her three children, Mary, 11, Michael, 7, and Tammy, 6, has been put up at the Royal Court Inn, 1758 S. Elmhurst Rd., Des Plaines, by the Red Cross. A neighbor's plea for help resulted in a new apartment, food, clothing, rent assistance, furnishings and a trust fund for the family.

Schaumburg school burglarized

Burglars stole and damaged an estimated $1,323 worth of property at Helen Keller Junior High School in Schaumburg. The burglars broke windows, rifled desks, damaged doors, destroyed music equipment and stole various appliances and small amounts of cash.

Income tax forms ready

The Internal Revenue Service is gearing up for tax time again and will mail 1040 and 1040A individual income tax packages to more than three million persons in northern Illinois by the end of the month. The forms are similar to last year's with a few exceptions. Farmers, ranchers and commercial fishermen will get forms printed on recycled paper as an experiment. The IRS says the recycled paper idea may be used by all taxpayers in the future. The 1974 forms also include the addition of a "no" box in connection with the 1976 Presidential Election Campaign Fund check-off. Taxpayers can answer whether they want to designate $1 to the fund. One of the main differences between the 1973 and 1974 forms is the reintroduction of Schedule B for the reporting of dividend and interest income.

Location sought for food co-op

More than 100 Northwest suburban families are ready, willing and apparently able to organize a food cooperative but are having trouble finding a home base to serve as a distribution center.

A 12-person search committee has been stymied in efforts to come up with a place to handle and distribute food ordered in bulk at discount prices. They are looking for a rent-free location but may have to pay for a site where they must store refrigerators and freezers and kitchen equipment.

The committee launched its quest for a home a few weeks ago but has been turned down by churches, service organizations, such as the VFW and American Legion, and housing developments with extra space.

"Nobody's going to give them anything for free," said Tonya Kenton, coordinator of the Good People's Co-Op, who with Arlene Margowsky and Fran Lapides is helping the families get started in their new venture. "They're probably going to have to pay rent for something like a vacant store," she added.

THE FAMILIES got together after attending two informational meetings held by the three women who offered to assist attempts to develop a new cooperative for a fee. The search committee was formed when enough interest was shown in the idea. The new organization would be patterned after the Good People's Co-op which is based at Maryville Academy in Des Plaines.

One of the problems, said Judy Marsh

Food co-op organizer to address PTO

Dorothy Shavers, director of Self Help Action, a Chicago organization, will be the featured speaker Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at a meeting of the Admiral Byrd School Parent-Teacher Organization.

Mrs. Shavers will discuss her role in helping start food cooperatives in the Chicago area. Several dozen PTO members have expressed a willingness to form a co-op. They are inviting others in the community to attend the meeting.

of Prospect Heights, who attended the two meetings and is actively involved in organizing the families, is that the churches are unfamiliar with what food cooperatives are all about. "We're something new. They don't want to get involved," she said.

Mrs. Marsh added that the families are willing to pay a token amount of money to use a facility, similar to the Good People's Co-op, which is donating $1 a month per family to Maryville. "That's $1,200 a year and I would think a church would want that kind of money," she said. She said interested persons should call her at 398-1311.

Legislature votes $2,500 raises

R-Forest Park, also favored the increase.

Those who believed that the legislative pay raise had been killed by Wednesday's vote overlooked a parliamentary omission by the Senate. Routinely, bills voted down in the legislature are subject to a motion for a reconsideration of the vote. Standard practice then calls for a motion to table the request for reconsideration and, once tabled, no further action is possible.

Wednesday, however, those opposed to the pay raise overlooked that parliamentary nicety, leaving the way open for State Sen. Edward T. Scholl, R-Chicago, an original opponent of the pay raise, to reintroduce it.

IN OTHER ACTION Thursday, the House and Senate continued to approve spending bills in opposition to Gov. Daniel Walker.

The threat of Walker vetoes of several of these spending measures led to speculation that one or more administration bills might be held hostage until the last day on which this legislature will legally exist.

Although this week's session was to be the final meeting of the 78th General Assembly, both houses are now scheduled to reconvene Jan. 7. The 79th General Assembly comes into life Jan. 8.

One pet administration bill that had not yet cleared the House last night would provide $156,000 in added salaries for directors of departments under the governor's jurisdiction. The senate approved that bill Thursday after shaving the increases from a total of $232,000.

The body of John Metz is removed from United Parcel Service building.

Parcel bomb kills UPS employe, injures 8

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — A small package, mailed from a neighboring state and misaddressed, exploded in the arms of a United Parcel Service employe Thursday when he started to open it to learn its correct destination.

The employe, John Metz, 38, was killed instantly. Eight co-workers were injured. Police Lt. Ralph Pampena said the explosion occurred shortly before 3 a.m. at a UPS warehouse in the city's North Side, only seconds after Metz and other employes noted jokingly, "It might be a bomb."

Six of the injured were admitted to hospitals and reported in satisfactory condition suffering from burns, cuts and shock. Two others were treated and released.

UPS employes said the brown paper wrapped package, measuring 8 inches by 12 inches, was addressed to a motorcycle shop in "Falls Church, Pa." It had no zip code and maps do not list a Falls Church, Pa.

The package was placed on a loading platform for trucks but was returned to the sorting area when the drivers did not know which one was to take the package.

Metz placed the parcel on a table and had pulled the two end flaps up when he noticed three threads taped to each flap, an injured employe, Melvin Scarpaci, said.

"Look, it's a bomb," Scarpaci quoted Metz as saying. He said Metz then pulled the flaps all the way up and the package exploded.

Pampena said the possibility existed it was addressed incorrectly so that a UPS employe would have to open it to check for an invoice that would give the correct address.

The FBI sent in a bomb team and police used dogs specially trained to sniff out explosives, but no other suspicious packages were found.

Dow Jones nears 12-year low

Signs point to snowballing recession

From United Press International

The end of the strike by coal miners Thursday signalled the end of a multibillion dollar drain on the economy, but immediate indications were the wage settlement would mean consumers will pay higher prices for goods and utilities.

Higher coal costs also are expected to increase the operating costs in the steel industry, a major user of coal to fuel blast furnaces.

U. S. Steel Corp., forced to layoff 18,000 workers because of the strike, said it may take weeks to get its 22 banks furnaces back into full production.

The Dow Jones industrial average plunged to within 2½ points of its 12-year low Thursday on the New York Stock Exchange. The widely watched average of 30 selected blue-chip stocks fell 11.58 points to 587.06, nears its 12-year low of 584.86 reached on Oct. 4. The average price of an NYSE common share declined by 43 cents.

Analysts said the major concern on Wall Street now is the nation's deepening recession. Investors ignored the miners approval of a new contract, which will end the nationwide coal strike now in its fourth week.

There were signs the recession is snowballing. The government reported retail sales in the early Christmas shopping period are down; unemployment was expected to be the worst in 13 years and thousands more workers were laid off.

Burlington Industries Inc. said that nearly one-third of its 141 U.S. textile plants and offices will close for two weeks later this month.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Triggering an angry revolt from pilots, government investigators indicated Thursday pilot error may have caused the crash of a Trans World Airline jet on a mountain near here Sunday killing all 92 persons aboard.

The National Transportation Safety Board preliminary report said TWA's flight 514 descended to 1,800 feet in an area where charts aboard the plane showed the minimum safe altitude was 3,400 feet.

Although the report did not say so specifically, it indicated that pilot error lay behind the crash.

Angered by the board comments, the Air Line Pilots Association demanded in a letter to President Ford Thursday that board Chairman John Reed be removed "in the public interest."

The pilots' organization said it was "shocked and saddened" and that Reed had violated his agency's own rules by commenting on circumstances surrounding the crash before the completion of an accident report.

The plane — nearing the end of a flight from Indianapolis and Columbus, Ohio — was trying to land at Dulles Airport after being diverted from Washington National Airport because of bad weather. The Boeing 727 jetliner flew straight into the side of Paris Mountain just below its top.

In Colombo, Sri Lanka (formerly Ceylon), rescue teams dropped from helicopters through rain-soaked jungle Thursday to bring out the bodies of 191 persons killed when a chartered Dutch DC 8 jet flying Moslem pilgrims to Mecca smashed into the side of a mountain. It was the second worst aviation disaster in history.

The four-engine jetliner was preparing to make a refueling descent Wednesday into Bandaranaike Airport when it exploded like "a giant fireball" and struck a sheer rock wall at 1,000 feet, 80 miles east of Colombo.

Meanwhile, the Air Line Pilots Association said Thursday that commercial airlines pilots will refuse after Feb. 1 to carry most types of hazardous cargo aboard their planes.

The pilots decided to take matters into their own hands — acting under their authority as those finally responsible for the safety of the craft they fly — after more than three years of trying unsuccessfully to get federal and industry action to ban dangerous materials.

Roof collapse kills American, 19 others

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — The roof of the main terminal at Mehrabad International airport collapsed with a roar under the weight of an overnight snowfall Thursday, killing or trapping up to 60 persons. A government spokesman said 20 persons were confirmed dead.

Among the dead was an American identified as Michael Nimitz, 43, who carried a letter from his wife in Wisconsin. Another American, Edward Alfred Kasaval, 45, of Detroit was injured.

Hundreds of police, firemen and soldiers, hampered by the continuing snowstorm, were attempting to dig out survivors from the rubble and hold back screaming relatives.

Most of the victims were reported to be Iranians.

Rule out any form of Nixon testimony

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica ruled Thursday that former President Richard M. Nixon will not testify in any form at the Watergate cover-up trial because his testimony is "not essential" and would be viewed with suspicion.

Sirica ordered the trial of five former Nixon aides to proceed without interruption, meaning it will likely be completed by Christmas.

In summary, Sirica said the ailing Nixon's testimony would merely duplicate that available from other witnesses and would have to be viewed "with caution" since he has been declared an indicted accomplice of the defendants.

He ruled out even the possibility that Nixon might be required to answer written questions in his home, saying "Mr. Nixon's testimony is not essential" to ensure that justice is done.

The decision overruled the request of defendants John D. Ehrlichman, H. R. Haldeman and John N. Mitchell that they at least be allowed to take Nixon's testimony by deposition at a court near his San Clemente, Calif., home.

"The witness is simply unavailable to be deposed," Sirica said. "The court will not issue an order to take the deposition of Mr. Nixon while it appears that he is so ill that the taking of such a deposition could seriously jeopardize his health."

In testimony, yesterday, Charles Colson said that just days before the Watergate bugging, Mitchell offered to bug a New York hotel room where Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., was to meet with a major financial backer.

Colson said that off-hand remark, coupled with what he later learned about the bugging of Democratic Party headquarters, prompted him to urge Nixon several times in ensuing months to force Mitchell to step forward and accept guilt for the scandal.

Colson was called to the stand as a court witness so neither the prosecution nor defense would have to vouch for his credibility. Meanwhile, U.S. District Judge Gerhard Gesell ruled Nixon's tapes, played during the trial may be broadcast publicly.

The judge said Nixon has "no right to prevent normal access to these public documents which have already been released in full text . . ." The tapes will not be made available, however, until after the trial.

In an eight-page memorandum and order, Gesell set Jan. 3 for receiving suggestions on working out "administrative and mechanical difficulties" in reproducing the tapes.

Sad breakfast with Ford: farewell to the vanquished

• The voters' uprising last month was graphically underscored in a White House breakfast Thursday morning. President Ford hosted a goodbye for senators and congressmen uprooted in the Nov. 5 election, and had 42 guests. Most of them were Republicans, including such members of the House Judiciary Committee as David Dennis of Indiana, Wiley Wayne of Iowa and Charles Sandman of New Jersey. Also attending The Last Breakfast were senators Marlow Cook of Kentucky and Peter Domenick of Colorado.

• Now THAT was a Santa Claus. At 6-feet-4 and 265 pounds, Ron McDole defensive end for the Washington Redskins football team — made an imposing St. Nick as he did the honors on behalf of the team at a Christmas party for 60 children of men killed or missing in Vietnam. First Lady Betty Ford was there, accepting a team-autographed ball and giving in return one covered with fur — easier to handle during these waning cold days of the season.

• It's not necessarily what you ask but how you ask it when you're putting questions to Washington's officials. So learned syndicated reporter and religion columnist Lester Kinsolving as he received an extraordinary scolding in front of fellow correspondents from White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen. Kinsolving — an Episcopal clergyman whose weekly religion column appears in The Herald — was rebuked for what Nessen called "incivility" to Interior Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton when he pressed Morton at a news conference for an explanation of why U. S. Park Police didn't give any traffic citations in the Oct. 7 "Tidal Basin Incident" involving Rep. Wilbur Mills.

• American officials haven't been able to get financier Robert Vesco back to the United States to tell his story, but he did tell it his own way — in a surprise, near-midnight appearance Wednesday on Costa Rica's national radio-TV network. He vigorously defended himself against accusations of financial shenanigans, including charges in his indictment resulting from a $200,000 Nixon campaign contribution in an alleged attempt to fix a Securities and Exchange Commission investigation. He also challenged an American diplomat and two newspaper editors to a public TV debate, but gave no indication he'd be willing to carry the debate to a U.S. courtroom.

• Ailing: Ravi Shankar, 54, described

ARNOLD MILLER, president of the United Mine Workers, told a news conference Thursday the nation's coal miners have accepted a new contract. The coal strike began Nov. 12 and cost thousands of jobs in coal related industries. The three-year pact was approved by a 56 to 44 per cent vote of the members. Higher costs are expected to increase prices in the steel industry, a major user of coal.

Blacktop to be removed today

Twardziks lose battle with county over driveway

Stanley and Marian Twardzik, 1764 E. Euclid Ave., Mount Prospect, have apparently lost their battle to keep their 30-foot driveway.

Workmen cut the driveway into two parts Thursday in preparation for removing that portion of the blacktop which exceeds county limits. Mrs. Twardzik said she expects the workmen to return today to remove the blacktop.

Twardzik said he widened his driveway six years ago, because he needed more room to turn into his property from Euclid Avenue, which has a 45 m.p.h. speed limit. The county, however, says that Twardzik never obtained a permit for the work, and therefore must comply with 1974 department standards.

Twardzik said a permit was obtained for the work, but he said he did not have an extra copy.

Although county standards call for 16-foot-wide driveways, Mrs. Twardzik said the workmen are only removing six feet from the 30-foot driveway. Dan Cohen, county highway construction supervisor, was unavailable to comment on how much of the driveway was to be removed.

When workmen showed up Thursday morning to remove a section of the driveway, Mrs. Twardzik made an attempt to stop the work. The confrontation, however, was minor compared to last month when the Twardziks parked their cars on the property to block the workmen.

"I have no choice in the matter," Mrs. Twardzik said, when asked why the same tactics weren't applied Thursday. She said she had hoped to get some help from the governor's office, but said the workmen arrived too soon.

MSD approves $401 million budget

Metropolitan Sanitary District trustees approved a $401 million budget Thursday and predicted the 1975 budget will mean a tax rate of 36.13 cents per $100 assessed valuation on tax bills paid in 1975.

The budget, increased steeply over the 1974 budget of $218 million, pins hopes on federal and state grants for engineering design and construction projects.

The anticipated tax rate is 1.57 cents per $100 assessed valuation higher than the 36.56 cent rate MSD officials anticipate on the 1974 tax bills homeowners will receive next spring.

The budget approved Thursday increased by 4.3 per cent the recommendations the MSD general superintendent made to the board in September. The increases came as board members made additions in 22 separate budget hearings which included a $30,000 planning study on use of MSD land, a $225,000 increase in the cost of health insurance premiums for MSD employees and $50,000 to finance public relations activities in Fulton County for the MSD land reclamation program and to scientifically monitor pollution levels at district plants.

The Civic Federation, the only agency to testify at a formal hearing on the budget earlier this week, criticized the MSD board's decision to give nonunion workers a 9 per cent pay hike and said a 3 per cent cost of living increase would have been sufficient because MSD workers are paid better than many private industry employees.

IN OTHER ACTION Thursday, the MSD board discussed plans to obtain rights-of-way for three of the tunnels that will collect sewage under Mount Prospect.

The tunnels, which will carry sanitary sewage from Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Wheeling, Elk Grove Village, Buffalo Grove, Des Plaines and Rolling Meadows to the O'Hare Water Reclamation plant at Elmhurst Road and Oakton Street in Des Plaines, will be the subject of a public hearing at 7:30 p.m. Dec. 19 at the Mount Prospect Community Center, 600 S. See-Gwon Ave.

The right-of-way ordinance revealed the MSD plans to negotiate to buy permanent easements for the tunnels in three locations — a 20-foot wide strip north of Oakton Street from Elmhurst Road to Busse Road, a small parcel at Elmhurst Road and Lomquist Boulevard and a strip north of Lincoln Street and east of Busse Road.

The MSD's request for easements across public lands such as parkways in Mount Prospect has been delayed by village officials until after the public hearing on the tunnels.

Mid-'75 completion in forecast

Work on library ahead of schedule

by JOE FRANZ

Construction of the North Suburban Library System's new headquarters in Wheeling is ahead of schedule and officials are predicting it will be finished by mid-1975.

The new facility is being built on the north side of Dundee Road, just east of the Wheeling U.S. Post Office, 250 W. Dundee. The structure will cost about $1 million and will serve as the administrative center for the library system.

"Right now construction is 30 days ahead of schedule," said Elliot Kanner, resources coordinator for the library system. "If everything goes as planned we should be able to move into the new facility by June 1."

"Of course this is assuming there are no problems with bad weather, strikes or obtaining construction materials," Elliot said. "Up until now we haven't had any problems."

WORK ON THE new headquarters started in late September and as of Thursday, Elliot said it was about 25 to 30 per cent complete. Most of the masonry work is finished, he said, and workers have started on the roof.

Elliot said the one-story facility will replace the current library system headquarters in Morton Grove. "Our lease runs out next September and it's almost guaranteed we'll be out of there by then," he said.

Robert McLaren, library system director, said Wheeling was chosen as the site for the facility because it is in the geographical center of the district. The two-acre site was chosen after the library system looked at more than 40 sites in Arlington Heights, Wheeling, Northbrook, Deerfield and Glenview.

The director said the Dundee Road location is desirable because it is on a major road and is within a municipality that can provide business resources and good police and fire protection.

THE LIBRARY SYSTEM is a service organization for 31 public libraries in the North and Northwest suburbs. It provides member libraries with access to books, films, periodicals and facilities not available from local resources. The new building will include 20,000-square feet of meeting rooms, office space, storage and work space.

The new facility has been in the planning stages for more than two years, but has met several delays. The project was at a standstill for several months last year because a $200,000 federal grant was delayed when former President Richard M. Nixon impounded funds allocated under the federal library service and construction act.

McLaren said the library system could not proceed with the planning of the building because some of its board members were hesitant to do that before being assured of getting the grant. The grant was awarded last December.

Early this year, the project met another delay when Wheeling officials held up the issuance of a building permit because of a disagreement over traffic control measures being provided at the site.

Arlington library 3rd in circulation

If you put all the books circulated by the Arlington Heights Memorial Library end to end, the trail would stretch to Niles or Addison.

More practically speaking, this means that for the second year in a row, the Arlington Heights library's circulation has been rated third among public libraries in the state by the Illinois State Library. Only the Chicago and Rockford public libraries circulate more books and materials.

Those who love libraries and statistics will delight in the fact that during this year, the Arlington library circulated 787,398 items or 11 books per resident. Arlington's circulation accounted for 18.4 per cent of the total state library circulation of 42,785,250 items.

The Arlington Heights library circulated more books than public libraries in Springfield, 748,733; Peoria, 729,194; and Evanston, 689,521.

Frank Dempsey, executive librarian, said the circulation of library books in the village during the last 20 years has increased 1,400 per cent. Twenty years ago, the library circulated 50,291 volumes.

Bond reduced for youth facing shooting charges

Bond was reduced Thursday for an 18-year-old Wheeling youth charged with attempted murder and aggravated battery in a Nov. 27 shooting spree that injured two women on Dundee Road in Wheeling.

Wheeling police said bond for Paul R. Gantz Jr., 945 Wilshire Dr., was reduced from $50,000 to $20,000. Gantz was expected to post the required 10 per cent of the bond in cash within 24 hours. A court hearing is scheduled for Jan. 3 in the Arlington Heights branch of Circuit Court.

Police said several shots were fired about 1:30 p.m. Nov. 27 in the area of Dundee Road near Jack London Junior High School. One bullet or pellet smashed a passing car's front passenger side window and a fragment lodged in the head of Lella Edgerton, 46, of 758 Lake View Dr., Wheeling. Mrs. Edgerton is recovering from surgery at Holy Family Hospital, Des Plaines.

THE OTHER WOMAN wounded in the incident, Barbara Petykowski, 298 N. Ashland Ave., Palatine, was hit in the hand but did not require hospital treatment. She told police she heard five shots.

Police arrested Gantz about 5 p.m. Wednesday when two detectives saw him in a car they stopped. Police said he matches the description given to them.

Police Thursday said they believed Mrs. Edgerton was not a preselected victim of the shooting incident. They also said they are unsure what type of weapon was used because lab reports are not completed.

President Ford cites efforts of Watt Watchers

by JOE SWICKARD

The Palatine Watt Watchers, an energy conservation club, has received recognition from President Ford. Now all they have to do is wait for their electric bills.

The 11-household club was formed through the efforts of Pamela Mitchell after watching Ford's anti-inflation message to the country in October. A peek at her electric bill convinced her that she and her family could fight inflation and conserve energy at the same time by being more mindful of how they use electricity.

The Mitchells and other residents of the Winston Park subdivision hoped, when the club was formed, to cut their next light bill in half. The next bills are due about the middle of this month, and Mrs. Mitchell admitted the Watt Watchers are getting a little nervous as the deadline nears.

BUT NO MATTER how they fare on their bills, their efforts resulted in a personal letter of commendation from the President.

Mrs. Mitchell wrote Ford explaining her club's goals and hoped for an answer.

"We had heard he personally answered the letters he received. Especially those from children. It took quite a long time to get his answer. But it's his personal signature, and there are no secretary's initials either. It's not a form letter," she said.

The President wrote on official embossed White House stationery: "I am pleased to have your commitment that, together with other couples in your neighborhood, you will be doing your part to help... stop inflation and save energy."

Besides the Presidential letter, Mrs. Mitchell said her idea is catching on elsewhere. A disk jockey in Indiana heard of her methods and started a similar group in his home town.

A CLUB OF 12 families in Mount Prospect also has been formed, Mrs. Mitchell said. She said there are probably other clubs that she is not aware of.

Even before the October message, the Mitchells were trying to ease the energy crunch. Last Christmas, for

WASHINGTON
November 27, 1974

Dear Mrs. Mitchell:

Thank you for your recent letter and expression of support for the WIN Program. I am pleased to have your commitment that, together with other couples in your neighborhood, you will be doing your part to help in our national effort to stop inflation and save energy. With the help of ideas from families and individuals across the land, our country can overcome this serious problem. This is a difficult time for all of us. Victory is assured, however, by the will and spirit of Americans to WIN.

Thank you again and keep it up.

Best wishes to the "Watt Watchers."

Sincerely,

example, they did without exterior electrically-lighted decorations.

"This year we were told it was all right to have the outside lights. We are going to decorate one small tree outside, plus the one in the house," she said.

Scouting news

Cub Scout Pack 30 of Tarkington School in Wheeling will celebrate the Christmas holiday at its next pack meeting Dec. 18.

Pack members Scott Young, Todd Broviak, Russell Woelke and Kevin Ades recently became Webelos and will be guided by leader Dick Young. Young recently was awarded a plaque for serving the Cub Scouts during the past three years.

Free blood pressure tests offered Saturday

The Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Nurses Club will conduct a free blood pressure testing clinic Saturday from 9:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. at the Wheeling Village Hall, 253 W. Dundee Rd.

Officials said many persons have high blood pressure and are unaware of it. They urge residents to take advantage of the free service. High blood pressure can cause heart attacks, strokes and other diseases, they said.

Five schools join in concert tonight

Wheeling-Buffer Grove Dist. 21

The Jack London Junior High School jazz band and four elementary school band students will hold a winter concert today at 8 p.m. at the school, 1001 W. Dundas Rd., Wheeling.

The four schools that will combine band students into two bands for the concert are Twain, Sandburg, Field and Tarkington elementary schools.

Plan for periodic review of teachers under study

A proposal to change the teacher tenure law to provide for periodic review of experienced teachers will be presented to the Illinois General Assembly in January by State Rep. Donald Deuster, R-Mundelein.

Deuster has called a press conference in Springfield today to explain the proposal, which provides that teachers be granted tenure for five-year periods with an evaluation covering the five years at the end of that time.

In addition, Deuster said early this week he will propose the bill will require a school board to adopt procedures and standards for evaluation with the participation of teachers. If a review found a teacher unsatisfactory, Deuster's proposal would give the teacher one year to improve.

The proposal also would give school administrators the right to a public hearing before they could be demoted, a right they do not now have under the law.

Deuster said the proposal would provide for "a more orderly and effective system for evaluating and reviewing both teachers and administrators."

The present teacher tenure law, passed in 1941, gives a teacher permanent tenure once they complete a two-year probationary period. A tenure teacher only can be fired for "cause," which includes violation of the law or gross misbehavior.

Purolator guard critical after overdose

Ralph Marrera, "the key to unlocking the full story of the Purolator theft," was in critical condition at Cook County Hospital Thursday, suffering from an overdose of drugs.

Cook County State's Atty. Bernard Carey speculated that Marrera's condition was the result of either "a medical decision that misfired or someone deliberately tried to take his life."

Although Marrera had made two unsuccessful suicide attempts last week, Carey said Thursday's incident could not have been accomplished by Marrera himself.

Marrera is the 31-year-old security guard who was on duty at the Armored Express building Oct. 30 when thieves made off with $4.8 million.

Marrera was given "a 50-50 chance of living" Thursday afternoon.

Carey said Marrera was one of those who planned the theft billed as the biggest cash heist in U.S. history. "Every indication we have at this time indicates he was the mastermind," Carey said.

Arkiss on bench again

Earl Arkiss is a Cook County Circuit Court judge once again after being reappointed to the bench by the Illinois Supreme Court.

Arkiss, who lost an election bid Nov. 5, will fill a vacancy created by the death of Judge Harold G. Ward. Arkiss had originally been appointed to the bench in 1971, but lost in this year's election to Republican Charles Grupp.

Firm cited for safety

A Rock Island company, Coralville Lake, will get a safety award today from the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers after working for 10 years without a disabling injury.

Derailment in Nelson

In Nelson, Ill., 35 cars of a Chicago and North Western Ry. freight train derailed Thursday. There were no injuries and the train was practically empty, railroad officials said.

In Minooka, one Rock Island Line train hit the rear of another train that was standing still. Eight cars were derailed including several carrying ammonia. One person was taken to St. Joseph Hospital in Joliet with minor injuries.

Teachers' strike ends

School was back in session Thursday in Wolf Lake, Grand Tower, Ware and McClure after a three-day teachers' strike ended.

Fifty teachers in the Shawnee unit school district had closed the schools in those communities until the unit school board agreed to allow salary negotiations for bus drivers, custodians, cooks, teachers' aides and nurses. The board had refused to recognize the Shawnee Education Assn. and the Illinois Education Assn. and bargaining representatives for the non-teaching personnel in the district.

Marion chiropractor slain

In Marion, police were puzzling over the slaying Wednesday of a chiropractor, Donald R. Ripley, who was gunned down in his office.

Police wanted anyone who might have picked up a hitchhiker leaving Marion around 9:30 a.m. Wednesday to contact them, but said they had no suspects in the slaying.

Police had discounted robbery as a motive.

Strip mine closed

The Illinois Environmental Protection Agency Wednesday closed a strip mine 4 1/2 miles southeast of Eddyville for operating without a permit.

A Pope County Circuit Court judge issued the injunction stopping operations of the Shawnee Mining Co. because of inaccurate information on an EPA permit application.

Fraud victims to be repaid

Would-be homeowners who lost down payments to two brothers who defrauded them will be paid back in $80 monthly installments. A Cook County Circuit Court judge Wednesday ordered the two brothers, Lawrence and Charles Thompson, to pay back an estimated $10,000 they took from 41 victims in a scheme advertising houses and lots for sale.

Ex-policeman sentenced

A former Chicago policeman was sentenced to one year in prison by U.S. District Court Judge Richard B. Austin

Wednesday after he pleaded guilty to shaking down tavern owners.

Gene J. Benjamin, 45, will spend the year at the prison medical facility at Lexington, Ky., for conspiring with seven other members of the Town Hall district vice squad to extort money from 17 tavern owners.

Executive admits guilt

A former executive director of the Southern Illinois Builders' Assn. Wednesday pleaded guilty to tax evasion.

Harold L. Gangnath admitted before a federal judge in East St. Louis that he had failed to report more than $5,000 in unexpected travel allowances, commissions and kickbacks.

The money came from the Illinois Conference of Teamsters and Employers Welfare Fund, from the Carpenters' Welfare Fund of Illinois and from an insurance firm that invested Illinois Teamster funds.

Herald opinion

Congress map still OK

The time is approaching for Democratic Illinois legislators to put their votes where their mouths are.

Having seized control of the Illinois legislature and gained a majority in the Illinois congressional delegation in the November elections, the Democrats now will have a prime opportunity to demonstrate that they meant all that campaign talk about "restoring the people's confidence in their elected officials."

That argument, of course, was used just as freely by Republican candidates. But the Democrats won.

Their strong majorities in both the Illinois House and Senate will give them a free hand to do just about whatever they want.

One thing they want, it is reported, is to again gerrymander the congressional districts of Illinois in such a way as to ensure the preservation of the 13-11 congressional majority they gained over the Republicans.

Because of a technically in the court ruling which approved the Republican-drawn map, the legislature has the option of once again slicing up the districts for political advantage.

Unquestionably that was the chief aim of the Republicans when they held the majority during the redistricting of 1971. That they succeeded was shown in the fact that the 1972 elections gave the GOP a 14-10 majority in the congressional delegation which formerly was a 12-12 standoff.

However, even the Republicans' own districting plan was not enough to thwart the voters this year when they decided they preferred Democrats. That is evidence that the current map is satisfactory and should not be tampered with.

Among the Democrats who screamed loudest and longest about the Republican redistricting plan — and justifiably so — was Abner Mikva, then congressman from Chicago's 2nd Congressional District. Mikva was effectively gerrymandered out of his district and was compelled to move his residence into the new 10th District to seek reelection. He failed in 1972, but succeeded in capturing the 10th District seat this year.

Mikva's complaint that redistricting should be used for the benefit of the people and not the politicians was sound in 1972. It is sound now.

It is therefore distressing to hear that among the plans the Democrats are considering is one to extend the boundaries of Mikva's district into the North Side of Chicago, where he could expect added Democratic votes to help make his district "safe." The same people who elected Mikva should have the opportunity to hold him accountable in 1978.

If the Democratic majority wishes the people who put them in power to believe they were sincere in their oratory about integrity in government, they can show it by foregoing the opportunity to gerrymander, at least until redistricting is again required following the 1980 census.

We would be encouraged to hear Mikva and other prominent Democrats declare publicly and promptly that there should be and will be no further tampering with the congressional boundaries.

'Your coupons will help needy'

Fence post

letters to the editor

Every year I seem to have a little story to tell concerning redeeming Betty Crocker coupons for Christmas gifts for the residents of Dixon State School for the mentally retarded. This year, I feel so elated over what happened one of the nights I bought some gifts at the store, I'd like to share it with you.

I was in the check-out line with my five overlapping carts, and normally when someone sees me lined up like that, they steer clear of the line altogether. The check-out girl was charging my last cart, when a man walked in behind me, with two automotive items. When I asked the girl to take a sub-total, this man said "Lady, you're wild! You don't even know how much this all costs, and you're charging it?"

I told him briefly that I must charge everything to my Master Charge, and when General Mills gets my register receipts and the corresponding coupons, I get reimbursed. Hundreds of people help me collect the coupons all year, and I have about $100 to spend now. In talking to him, I lost track of the check out girl clicking away, so I again asked for a sub-total. When $112 popped up on the cash register, I yelled "Stop! Stop!" Darn! This one store did not give me a discount or a tax break!

Mr. Two Items said, "Now what are you going to do? With the tax, you're way over."

"Oh, I'll get the money somewhere," I answered, "but Miss, I can't take the rest of this on the counter, would you put it away for me?"

"Ah, lady, you're breaking my heart. What are all those poor kids gonna do?" and with that he pulled the remaining toys toward him and told the girl to ring them up, he would pay for them. The extra toys came to over $8, and I thought he might have had to put one of his items back, but he insisted he pay for them. When I asked for his name and card, he replied, "Oh no, you don't! You ain't coming me again next year."

So this must be the way I must thank this man, and hopefully appeal to those of you reading this letter. A National Van Line truck will be at my door Dec. 12, to take these and any other toys I can round up by then to Dixon, and the other state-run institutions in our area. There are approximately 1,000 residents, of all ages, most of them orphaned, alone, but hardly forgotten anymore, thanks to the Forgotten Children's Fund instigated by Jack Mabley. Almost anything can be used. Crayons, pens, pencils, balls, gloves, games, dolls, trucks, but it must be new. Money can be donated, and every cent goes directly to the residents, and can be sent to Forgotten Children's Fund, 435 N. Michigan, Chicago, Ill. 60611. There are commissary stores on the grounds where all kinds of personal items can be purchased at cut prices. Money is getting tighter and tighter each year, so we must be more generous each year. General Mills will cut the value of the Betty Crocker coupons in half, to 1/4 cent per point, next year, they will be discontinued. So please help if you can, with a small gift of love, or by beginning to save the coupons, and send them to me. Mrs. Robert (Elyne) Maruska 1123 E. Patten Palatine, Ill. 60067

Party seeks to regroup

Regulars vs. reformers at Dems' convention

by GEORGE J. MARDER

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Democrats will find out in Kansas City whether their regulars and their reformers can live together.

That is what the mini-convention is all about.

The fight over rules, charter, quotas, proportional representation, delegate selection — important as they are — are mere surface symbols of the deeper struggle for power.

It didn't start out that way.

The midterm convention between presidential elections is the creation of the 1972 Miami Beach meeting, dominated by reformers who nominated Sen. George S. McGovern of South Dakota for president.

It was intended as a time when Democrats would go back to the people much as the House of Representatives does every two years, to be brought up-to-date on the nation's problems.

The midterm convention was the direct result of the futile efforts of the anti-war movement to get the Democrats to go on record in Chicago in 1968 against the war in Vietnam. Rebuffed at every move, the reformers charged that the regulars, then in control, were out of touch.

At Chicago, the reformers lost on all points but one: they got the convention to agree to a study of the delegate selection process and of the party's rules.

Those in control of the party figured that study would go the way of most others.

It didn't.

The first result was the delegate selection changes which brought the McGovern loyalists into control at the 1972 convention.

The second was a draft charter that would have created for the first time a national Democratic party with limited but centralized control going directly to the people for its power. The reformers saw it as creating a party of the people, rather than a party of professionals.

That draft charter has long been abandoned. Instead there is a new one, written by a charter commission, which worked out compromises and deals. The new draft would do little more than confirm the Democratic party as it is: a federation of state parties each more powerful than the national organization.

The regulars feared the original charter draft and the midterm convention. They saw the result not as a people's party but one ruled by mobs with its leaders unwilling to rise through the ranks through the normal election process.

The regulars were concerned that the mini-convention would revive the 1972 and 1968 feuds, and perhaps splinter the party forever.

That is why a charter commission was created to scuttle the original draft and work out a compromise before the Kansas City meeting. And that is why a compliance committee was set up to settle delegate challenges away from the Kansas City spotlight.

The worst fears of the party leaders seemed to be materializing when reformers walked out of a Kansas City meeting that was supposed to make final arrangements for the mini-convention. Some of those reformers will not be at Kansas City because of efforts of regulars, prodded by segments of the AFL-CIO, to back away from the charter compromises.

But Democratic governors have knocked some heads together and have unanimously supported the compromise. The mini-convention will determine whether the deals hold and whether Democrats can co-exist in the coalition of opposites that won them the White House for more than a generation.

County line

Meetings law challenged

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT

Metropolitan Affairs Editor

The slings and arrows aimed at the Illinois Open Meetings Act are increasing and now include a loophole called the "attorney-client privilege."

The Illinois Supreme Court and Cook County's Circuit Court have yet to examine the latest interpretation of the law, but a DuPage County judge this week did a fast foot-shuffle in dismissing an open meetings suit against Addison Elementary School Dist. 4.

Circuit Court Judge Edwin Douglas closed the meetings door fully two weeks ago in a decision that allowed secret, executive sessions to discuss future possible lawsuits. The Open Meetings law allows executive sessions to discuss "pending court proceeding(s)" and Douglas said that governing bodies planning a lawsuit could find a shield in the wording.

Douglas' decision of Nov. 18 was written in longhand and "did not allow time for reflection," said Asst. State's Atty. Robert McLaren.

Douglas "reflected" for two weeks and decided Wednesday that future legal action is not an exemption. But Douglas refused to change his decision in the Addison school board case because the challenged executive session involved the "attorney-client privilege."

"Pending litigation as used to denote a pending court proceeding does not include... discussion in executive session prior to filing of a court proceeding," Douglas said.

The decision then said that the "attorney-client privilege" is a valid exception to the open meetings law. A former DuPage judge offered a similar ruling last year.

The decision is hair splitting at its best.

McLaren, who argued against the school board, praised the decision and said that the Open Meetings law is "public policy" that allows closed meetings to discuss land purchases, personnel and court litigation. Another "public policy" is the attorney-client relationship and that policy overrides the Open Meetings law, he said.

Open meetings exemptions were included in the law for important reasons. Discussion of employee hiring and firing can become slanderous, talk of land acquisition publicly can prompt an increase in sales price and information about legal strategy in a current lawsuit can aid the opposition.

But a broad exemption for meetings between school boards, city councils and/or plan commissions and an attorney exceeds the law's intent to protect the public from disadvantages like higher land prices or slander complaints.

Almost everything debated to a village board or city council is related to law. A sign ordinance becomes law if passed. Purchase of a police car, and bidding, leads to a contract that could involve a lawsuit.

The fear is that governmental bodies, given the slightest excuse, can find many reasons for "attorney-client" executive sessions.

The closed doors of an executive session become an impossible barrier to any challenge that the meeting was not legitimate. "Nobody knows what happens in a meeting like that except the people in the meeting," McLaren said. "It's a very difficult act to prove. The only real possibility is by granting someone immunity."

Any broadening of exemptions in the law calls for increases in the system of checks and balances designed for free-flowing information.

The law requires votes of "final action" at open meetings. By pleading "attorney-client" a city council could use closed-door protection to discuss a possible ordinance and could abandon the plan without "final action." The public would never know what was proposed and what was said.

The increased protection could require complete minutes or recordings of executive sessions which would be released publicly at a specific time after the meeting.

If time and the courts continue to punch holes in the Open Meetings laws, a law proposed with good intention will become nothing but air and the pre-1969 age of secret meetings will return.

Rep. Philip Crane

Gold fever hot despite 'cool-it' pleas

ARTHUR BURNS
Little chance to delay sale

Public sale seems certain, but some still try to delay it

Some of the nation's top economic specialists Thursday continued their arguments concerning the merits of allowing private ownership of gold but indications remain strong that the precious metal will go on sale as planned Dec. 31.

Some experts, government officials and legislators suggested the 40-year-old ban that prevented Americans from obtaining gold should be continued for at least another several months until the full impact of such a program can be determined.

But one of the men most responsible for the change in government policy, U.S. Rep. Philip Crane, R-12th, doubts whether opponents of the plan can muster enough support to effect a delay.

Crane "doesn't concur" with those calling for a delay, said Willa Johnson, the congressman's legislative assistant. She said it is probably too late for anyone to do anything about postponing the sales plan. "The momentum," she said, "is rolling for free ownership."

Crane, who spoke in California Thursday, introduced the gold bill in 1970, his first full term in Congress. It was one of his first proposals as a member of the currency and banking committee. He would have preferred the measure to have gone into effect in August when President Ford signed it into law but compromised to the Dec. 31 date.

Crane, however, agrees with several of the negative statements made Thursday by chairman Arthur K. Burns of the Federal Reserve Board, who urged Congress to reconsider relaxing the ban at this time. But Crane wants the sale to go ahead, saying it is the right of every American to own gold.

Disagreeing with the administration, Burns testified before the House Banking Committee that lifting of the ban could damage the economy in a number of ways.

Burns said deposits may be withdrawn from savings accounts by gold buyers, hurting the homebuilding industry; stock prices might plunge as investors move from stocks to gold; and gold imports might increase the U.S. trade deficit and lower the value of the dollar, raising the costs of imported products (to be initially offset by the Jan. 6 sale of two million ounces of U.S. gold).

BURNS ADMITTED there was little chance of delaying the sale to private citizens, and therefore, reluctantly endorsed the Treasury Dept.'s decision to sell its gold, worth about $360 million at current prices, to dampen the demand for imported gold.

Thereafter, Burns said, the government should stay out of the gold market; and if speculators get burned, by wide swings in the price of gold, so be it.

U.S. Rep. Henry B. Gonzalez, D-Tex., chairing the hearing, has sponsored a bill postponing the removal of the ban on private ownership to next July 1. He deplored the promotional build up gold is already receiving in anticipation of free trading.

"It is like a gigantic snake oil promotion," he said. "But the administration is doing nothing to discourage all this razzle-dazzle."

Congressional wrapup

House OKs $11.8 billion transit bill

From Staff Call Report

In the congressional session preceding the Thanksgiving recess, the House of Representatives approved a measure to benefit nonmetropolitan areas in the development of mass transportation and the Senate overrode President Ford's veto of amendments strengthening the 1966 Freedom of Information Act.

Following is a summary of key votes by members of the Illinois congressional delegation for the period from Nov. 21-27. Included in the summary are the votes of Illinois' two senators, Republican Charles H. Percy and Democrat Adlai E. Stevenson III, and Northwest suburban congressman Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, and Rep. Samuel H. Young, R-10th.

House

MASS TRANSIT: Adopted 288 to 100, the six-year $11.8 billion mass-transit authorization bill later signed by President Ford is designed to help nonmetropolitan areas as well as urban areas. It provides federal matching grants for capital improvements and, for the first time, subsidizes operating costs.

Yes: Republicans Young, Hanrahan, Derwinski, McClory, Erlenborn, Anderson, O'Brien, Michel, Rallsback and Madigan. Democrats Metcalfe, Murphy, Kluczynski, Collins, Rostenkowski, Yates, Annunzio, Shipley, Price, Gray.

No: Republicans Collier, Arends, Findley.

Not Voting: Republican Crane.

FEDERAL SPENDING: A toned-down version to avoid a presidential veto, the House adopted, 352 to 25, legislation appropriating $33 billion for labor, health, education and welfare programs. The bill contains a ban on sex discrimination in the allocation of federal education funds but would not threaten the future of intercollegiate athletics.

Yes: Republicans Young, Hanrahan, Derwinski, McClory, Erlenborn, Arends, Anderson, O'Brien, Michel, Rallsback, Findley and Madigan. Democrats Metcalfe, Murphy, Collins, Rostenkowski, Annunzio, Shipley, Price, Gray.

No: Republican Crane.

Not Voting: Republican Collier. Democrats Kluczynski, Yates.

Senate

FREEDOM OF INFORMATION: Overrode by a 65-10-27 vote President Ford's veto of amendments to the Freedom of Information Act. The bill is intended to widen public access to government information. Ford opposed certain provisions in the bill because it could jeopardize national security if sensitive information could be declassified by federal judges empowered to review secrecy classifications.

Yes: Percy, Stevenson.

Stevenson

Young

SWEET AND HIGH: Rejected 28 to 62 an amendment to block payment of $85 million this fiscal year in federal subsidies to sugar growers. The money is part of the 1975 agricultural appropriations bill.

No: Stevenson.

Not Voting: Percy.

TOBACCO AID: Rejected 24 to 85 an amendment barring use of fiscal 1975 funds for programs that aid the U.S. tobacco industry. The amendment would have denied funding for programs such as export subsidies and price supports.

No: Stevenson.

Not Voting: Percy.

Lotteries can operate, Saxbe rules

Atty. Gen. William B. Saxbe will let the overwhelmingly successful lotteries of 13 states keep operating until Congress amends the law — probably next year — to give them legal federal sanction.

Saxbe raised fears among state lottery officials when he threatened to crack down unless Congress changed federal gambling laws, or unless the states conformed to present laws.

Congress responded by moving toward reform of the gambling laws, and Saxbe has changed his tune.

Since New Hampshire voters endorsed the idea in 1964, lotteries have spread domino-like across most of New England, the mid-Atlantic states and some Central states, all representing 40 per cent of the U.S. population.

EDWARD J. POWERS, head of the New Hampshire lottery, told the U.S. Lottery Commission last month that all 13 states will gross about $1 billion this fiscal year, ending next June 30, and will net more than $400 million. Gimmicks help. New York, which has netted $293.2 million since it began selling lottery tickets in 1967, reversed a slump in 1970 by changing promotion methods. Proceeds rose again in 1972 after a switch from monthly to weekly drawings.

Similarly, in Michigan, officials who claim a net $122 million in state revenues since 1972, plan to start daily drawings next year to keep public interest high and to provide competition for the illegal numbers racket.

The gimmick all 13 states want most is the right to television and mail advertising. Federal law forbids this, along with use of federally chartered banks for the lottery and movement of lottery materials across state lines.

State officials say they are complying strictly with the law, although it hurts. Prodded by U.S. Atty. Peter Mills in Maine, Saxbe issued a statement in August expressing doubts about the whole enterprise. A month later, he threatened action unless the 13 states — or Congress — acted within 90 days.

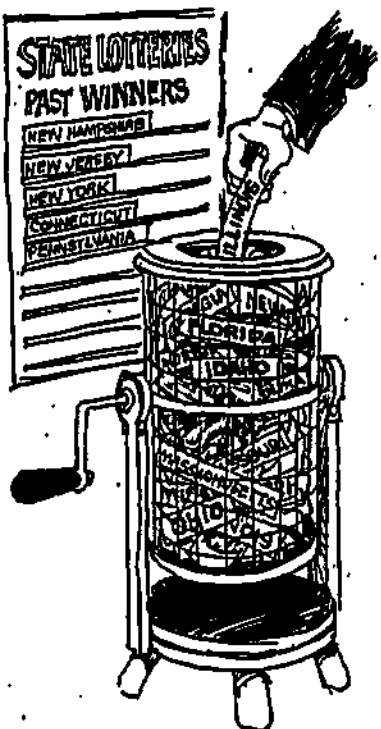

UNLESS CONGRESS exempts state lotteries from federal gambling laws, Saxbe told officials of the 13 lottery states in September, he would file a civil suit to test the law and possibly obtain an injunction to halt state lotteries.

Although the House Judiciary Committee recently approved a lottery exemption bill, and its Senate counterpart is considering several, there is little likelihood of final enactment until next year.

Gov. Martin Mandel of Maryland, worried about what he called a "legal cloud" created by Saxbe, persuaded the attorney general to promise publicly that in no event would he initiate any criminal prosecution. Saxbe also promised that no ticket holder would lose any earned prize.

ACCORDING TO UPI correspondents, the U.S. Gambling Commission and hearing testimony, here is the financial record of state lotteries:

Connecticut: Begun in February, 1972, it has netted $33.9 million in state revenues through June, 1974, and paid $14 million in prizes to 219,000 winners.

• Delaware: Authorized but not begun.

• Illinois: Begun last Aug. 8, it grossed $32.1 million through Oct. 31. The state netted $13.7 million and prizes totaling $14.4 million were paid. Unclaimed prizes, blamed on lack of advertising of winning numbers are projected at $4 million annually.

• Maine: Begun last June 30, it had netted nearly $800,000 by Sept. 30. The money goes into the state's general fund.

• Maryland: Begun in 1973, it netted about $17 million the first year. This year's proceeds are estimated between $20 million and $22 million. The money goes into the general fund.

• Massachusetts: Begun in 1972, it netted $22 million that year and $35 million the second, with proceeds earmarked for use by cities and towns.

• Michigan: Begun Nov. 24, 1972, it has grossed $274 million and netted $62.5 million the first year and $64.5 million the second. Prizes totaled $130 million in that period.

• New Hampshire: Begun in 1964, it has netted $20 million which went for education.

• New Jersey: Begun Jan. 1, 1971, it netted $205 million for education and other state institutions by last June 30. Gross was $412 million. Prizes totaled $185 million spread among more than 3.5 million winners.

• New York: Begun in June, 1967, it has grossed $508.4 million, paid out $218.9 million in prizes and netted $293.2 million to the state for education through 1973.

• Ohio: Begun last August, it grossed $26.4 million through Nov. 14, paid $13.6 million in prizes and netted $10 million for the general fund. There were 54.4 million ticket purchasers.

• Pennsylvania: Begun in March, 1972, the lottery grossed $275 million in the first two years, paid $118 million to winners and returned $80 million to the state for programs for the elderly.

• Rhode Island: In operation 21 weeks, lottery has netted $2.2 million, of which $850,000 has gone into the state treasury after awards of $3 million in prize money.

Position the key to winning

The secret of winning brilliantly or merely decisively is to gain a suitable advantage in position. And those who looked for either result in the Karpov-Korchnoi challengers' finals have been disappointed, if not bored.

It is rare, unfortunately, that we are able to watch a Bobby Fischer or Michael Tal play. Never content with mere shadowboxing, they effect keen struggles that produce a high proportion of decisive results.

Ironically, some of the prettiest and/or most instructive play occurs when a stronger player meets a relatively weaker one. Then a positional imbalance (or a tactical error) lending itself to a "strong" conclusion is especially likely to occur.

THE WORLD Chess Olympiad offers one of the best occasions for uneven matchups. For in that tournament, we see competing in the same preliminary section, teams as imposing as the U.S.S.R., the United States and Yugoslavia on the one hand, and teams as unlikely as Rhodesia, Malta and Trinidad-Tobago on the other.

In our first example, from the most recent Olympiad, the unrated Tarazi (Lebanon) succumbs to grandmaster Hort (Czechoslovakia) and an embarrassing trap of the queen. (see Diagram 2). White has just blithely sailed into the black queenside position with 1. Q-N5??, but after black's response 1... P-QB5, Tarazi might have resigned immediately. In fact, he did give up a few moves later after 2. B-N2, R-Q1; 3. N-R2, R-R2. There was no answer to B-N2, trapping the queen.

Shelby Lyman on Chess

Nor does the stronger Jansson (Sweden) fare much better against Helmut Pfleger (West Germany), who, after all, is a grandmaster, too. Jansson also is embarrassed, though by a different tactical rebuff, as shown in Diagram 2. Pfleger has just played 1. B-R3, in response to black's blunder B-B1. After 1... Q-Q1; 2. BxR, black resigns. There is no way to avoid losing the exchange after 2... Q or R takes bishop; 3. N-N4 and 4. N-K6. (If 2... N-N4, then 3. B-K6 check will leave white a piece ahead).

IN OUR THIRD position, Kan (Hong Kong) has earned a situation in which he is ill-equipped to defend a terrible weakness on the black squares in his fianchetto-minus-bishop kingside. The West German Unzicker is inspired to operate like a surgeon.

First 1. N-B6 check, K-N2; 2. B-R4... forces a queen to retreat; Q-B1. Then 3. N-N4, N-KB4; 4. B-B6 check, K-N1; 5. N-R6 check, N-N4; 6. QxN. These incursions and probes have set the stage for a terminal success. In fact, after 6... P-Q4; 7. R-Q1, black resigns. Diagram 4 shows us that his request for a mercy killing was well-motivated and even pardonable, as there is no defense to white's intended R-Q3 and R-KR3.

Bidding review assists play

The R in the code word ARCH stands for Review the bidding. Usually it is the least important of the four code letters, but there are times it becomes all important.

South ruffs the second spade. If he is the least bit careless, he will wind up losing two club tricks. He'll complain about the bad luck that placed both the king and jack in the West hand, but to no avail.

A careful South will Review the bidding and mark West with the king of clubs and find a way to make the hand even though West also holds the jack and one.

There will be a slight element of risk in his play. If someone is unkind enough to trump the second heart lead, the hand will collapse. But South can't afford to pull trumps before embarking on operation endplay.

He starts by cashing dummy's ace and king of hearts, ruffs a heart, returns to dummy with a trump, ruffs the last heart, plays another trump to dummy, leads a low club and plays his own 10 spot.

West wins with his jack, but is totally dead. A spade lead allows a ruff and discard; a club lead is allowed to ride around to South's queen.

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Screw worms cause worry

I recently read in the San Antonio News an article that frightened me half to death. It was about screw worms in Texas. The article stated screw worms affected people as well as animals. It stated there were 8,000 cases treated in Texas last year and 75 per cent of these were in south Texas and the San Antonio area.

We plan to retire and make our home in San Antonio so you can understand why I might be somewhat concerned with this problem.

I am especially interested in knowing who and how screw worms attack. What is the incidence and what area seems to be most affected? How can they be recognized and controlled? How can we protect ourselves from contact with them? If they should attack a person what is the percentage of fatality?

We have two children and since our possible retirement sites are limitless, I wouldn't want to make any move that may endanger their lives in any way.

Relax! That article was about the incidence in animals and people. I talked to the County Health Department in San Antonio, and they confirmed my impression that human infestation was quite rare, including in San Antonio. About three years ago there were 10 cases in humans. There was also one death near San Antonio. The rest of the problems were in animals, not humans.

Screw worms are the larvae from the screw worm fly. The fly lays its eggs in a cut or injured area. The eggs hatch and produce larvae. Being raised on the farm, I treated several cases in farm animals when I was a boy. If detected and treated early the animal doesn't have any problems. The cattle on a large ranch or animals not under close supervision are not so lucky.

HUMANS GET SCREW WORMS the same way. Most of the 10 cases were in children with scalp problems from lack of hygiene. The scratched area provided a place for the fly to lay a few eggs. In better circumstances human infections do not occur.

I have seen only two cases and both were in Kansas, not Texas. In both instances the victims were inclined to drink excessively and would be lying outdoors in a stupor. While in this state the flies entered the nose and left their eggs.

So, unless you are going to be lying around somewhere unconscious for some reason, such as from too much alcohol, I think you need not fear any problems at all from screw worms.

The screw worm problem concerns farmers and ranchers, and there are national programs for fly control to protect livestock. That is why it is of public interest, not because it is a significant health problem for people.

San Antonio is a lovely town and entirely safe healthwise. If the screw worm problem is all that alarms you then you have nothing to worry about.

Lady priests get good press

In their continuing campaign to obtain official Episcopal Church consent for the ordination of female priests and bishops, the Women's Caucus of this 3-million-member denomination has shown a striking kind of ingenuity.

They retained a press agent who is not only clever, but who also has excellent connections. For Betty Bagdikian and her husband Ben are both alumni of the mighty Washington Post, where she once served as religion writer and he as national editor and later ombudsman.

The Post is owned by Katherine Graham (an Episcopalian) who is quite probably the most powerful woman in the nation, as she is the owner, also, of Newsweek magazine, as well as radio and TV stations — along with what might be called the first symbolic presidential scalp in American history.

THE POST'S CURRENT religion writer, Marjorie Hyer, is therefore apparently at complete liberty to identify 11 Episcopal female deacons as "women priests" — in a rather interesting ecclesiastical venture (for a secular newspaper) — especially since the denomination's highest authorities, General Convention and the House of Bishops do not recognize the validity of their alleged ordination to the priesthood last summer.

Such reporting apparently has its rewards, however, as The Post continues to be the first to know what these ladies will be up to next. Moreover, the Betty-Marjorie-Post promo has had something of a boffo effect on the public, which is not entirely unlike the effectiveness of the famed "Packaging of a President" in 1968. Yet this current PR is also beginning to show slight signs of transparency, such as the following:

- When three of these priestesses violated their deacons' ordination vows by functioning as priests at Manhattan's Riverside Church, the first four pews, full of cameramen, focused on the communion service's breaking of bread. But the ladies were not equipped with priests' wafers or even ordinarily sized bread loaves. They had bread the size of small manhole covers, which came off well on camera.

- The offering at this service was announced as designated to feed the hungry. And, quite cleverly, it was sent to the Episcopal Presiding Bishop's Fund — instead of to a neutral feeding agency. When Presiding Bishop John Allen conscientiously refused to allow either his office or the hungry to be so used, Miss Hyers' reporting in The Post made him look monstrous.

by Rev. Lester Kinsolving

- After all but one Episcopal bishop ignored this affair at Riverside Church, priestess Allison Cheek of Annandale, Virginia, announced (by way of a large photograph in The Post) that she would again officiate as a priest — this time in Washington's swinging St. Stephen's and The Incarnation Parish. But the posed photograph showed Mrs. Cheek in a chausable of such style as to make her resemble a giant butterfly hovering over rector William Wendt — who looked as if he were the mad scientist in the film classic "Invasion of The Giant Aphids."

- At each of these two services, there is Luther's hymn "A Mighty Fortress Is Our God," one of whose lyrics is: "The body they may kill." Since none of these women bishops appears ready or willing even to mildly rebuke, much less kill these bodies — there is a glaring contrast between Luther facing burning at the stake and these ladies — who face camera lenses. There is also a striking contrast to the first Episcopal female priest, ordained more than 30 years ago in a Japanese prison camp, under real risk, as a necessity in order that the sacrament be administered.

THE OVERKILL in all the current show biz is the very real possibility that the Betty-Marjorie-Post promo may have annihilated all Episcopal discipline, along with resistance to female ordination, given the unwillingness of the involved bishops to carry out their vows to "diligently exercise such discipline."

If in the future some avant-garde young priest announces that his conscience has told him that he is every bit as entitled to keep concubines as Kings David and Solomon, will his bishop advise, or consent?

'Grassroots' to bring evangelism to UCC

For years, the United Church of Christ has been the epitome of the liberal mainline denomination: increased attention, especially by the national offices and agencies, to social activism with a consequent decline in membership.

For half a decade now the accepted wisdom has been that social and political activism on the part of the national church inevitably leads to a decline in membership and giving at the grassroots level. For awhile, the statistics were there to make that case.

Recently, however, the statistics on giving have begun to show something else — that members who stuck with the church, giving at least silent assent to the activism, are now digging deeper into their pocketbooks to support their denominations.

NOW, THE Rev. J. Alan McLean, secretary for evangelism of the UCC's Board for Homeland Ministries, thinks there can be a turn around of the membership decline and the church's evangelization effort.

The first thing to note about McLean's belief is that he does not believe that change is going to come from either him or his board.

It is the grassroots — congregations and individuals — that are the key. McLean does not see the national church providing a nationwide pattern for all churches to follow but rather it will provide training of a cadre of "evangelism consultants," clergy and laity excited about the possibilities of evangelism in their local communities.

"Evangelism is not the result of clever salesmanship or ingenious techniques," he said in an interview. "It is the Christian's response to the spiritual hungers of society."

"We define evangelism pretty straightforwardly as getting out with the story, a freeing story that relates one to Jesus Christ as Lord, to the church as a servant community and to the neighbor in need," he said.

McLEAN SAID the national church is beginning to see "a genuine sense of vision, excitement and possibility among grassroots churches, among people who are saying 'what is our story, what is the story we have to tell?' Then, working at getting it clear and asking, 'How do we get it out?'"

Gabriel Fackre, professor of theology at Andover Newton Theological School, has provided much of the theological underpinnings for the UCC effort. Fackre has put together his theological understanding of evangelism in a book, "Do and tell," published by Wm. B. Eerdmans.

"Evangelism is the bodying forth of the Christian tale in the conviction that 'the Word will do it,'" Fackre said. "It is not manipulating emotions or 'collecting souls.'" McLean puts Fackre's idea of "bodying forth" in a much more simple way — it is the marrying of deed and word.

recorded, stresses both the doing and the possibilities of confrontation and persecution that come with evangelism.

He notes, for example, that Peter and John, before going into the temple to preach the Gospel of Jesus, healed a lame man and later, as a result of their preaching, were beaten, threatened and arrested.

Along with the telling of the story and the calling of others to Christ, in McLean's understanding of evangelism, doing and confronting also are key parts of the full gospel that must be taken into account if there is to be positive growth and life together.

As McLean sums it up, "You hear about the Acts of the Apostles, not about their committee meetings."

True Love's is hard to find. Without a map.

Why did we put Love's Restaurant where we did? Don't ask! The fact is, it's too late to move it. So. It takes a little effort to find Love's—but it's worth it. Because...

Love's is:

- An absolutely unique dinner experience.
- Hickory specialties (ribs, chicken, steaks and much more).
- Generous cocktails.
- Lovely prices.

For example: for $5.75! Chicken and Ribs! Tantalizing, succulent Pork Ribs and Barbecued Chicken basted with Love's original sauces. Including—choice of soup, dinner salad or Love's cole slaw—and—Love's barbecued beans, corn-on-the-cob, baked potato and hot biscuits.

True Love's may be a little hard to find... without a map. But now you have one. Besides. Where Golf and Higgins Roads cross, a triangle is formed—"Love's Triangle"—and that's always easy to find.

Love's opens every day at 3:00PM for our "Bolla Grande" Happy Hour. Dinner service begins at 4:00PM.

535 West Higgins Road in Hoffman Estates (312) 885-0077

NEW YORK — Bill Moyers, who left the nomadic life of TV broadcasting last spring to contemplate his future in the media, said Wednesday he was returning to public television with a weekly series on international affairs.

Moyers, 41, said the new show, "Bill Moyers' Foreign Report" will replace his award-winning series "Bill Moyers' Journal" that went off the air last spring. The new show will be produced by WNET in New York and aired on the PBS network, beginning Jan. 16, 1975.

LAST MAY, the former press secretary to President Lyndon B. Johnson stepped down from the weekly "Journal" to take "stock" with his life "after four nomadic years on the road. One for my book, 'Listening to America' and three for public broadcasting."

"I think the 'Journal' ran its course on domestic issues after three years," Moyers said in an interview. "And I needed time to think about the next larger theme on television."

Moyers said the new 60-minute show will include face-to-face interviews, panel discussions and documentaries. He said the interviews will include political figures, philosophers, and artists. Among the documentaries, he said, are a look at Mexico and the developing islands of the Caribbean. He added there would be a regularly scheduled discussion among foreign journalists, broadcast from London.

The Oklahoma-born journalist said that following his brief withdrawal from the regular PBS schedule he was approached by Hardcore Gunn, president of PBS; and a member of the German Marshall Fund of the United States to do a monthly series on international affairs.

MOYERS SAID he was interested in the show, but that he would like to do a weekly series to have any impact. However, he said, a stipulation for the program was that it must be financed by a variety of sources in an effort to minimize any possible pressures from a single backer.

"I didn't want any one single underwriter who might try to dominate or influence the show," said Moyers.

Consequently, he said, the "Foreign Journal" will be funded by the German Marshall Fund, the Corporation for Public Broadcasting, the Ford Foundation, IBM, the Inter-American Foundation and another sponsor to be named. He said the total funding for the 26-show series would be in excess of $1 million.

Moyers, described as "television's best regularly scheduled observer of the American scene," received the 1974 Emmy as outstanding television news broadcaster. He received two other Emmys for the show.

Before joining PBS in 1971, Moyers was publisher of the Long Island newspaper, Newsday. He also was deputy director of the Peace Corps and currently is a columnist for Newsweek magazine, a post he will retain.

They start counting now; league play opens tonight

A Herald Staff Report

The Mid-Suburban League isn't missing around as far as its schedule is concerned tonight.

For starters, the conference's opening night will have defending champion and South Division titleholder Conant returning to the scene of its big win last winter — Arlington's gym. The Cardinals, North Division winners in 1973-74, will play host for the 8 p.m. contest.

Another headliner will be taking place about the same time at Wheeling. The Wildcats — the surprise team of the area so far with a perfect record — will host Prospect — a veteran team predicted by many to dominate the area this season.

Other interesting matchups will have Schaumburg at Fremd, Rolling Meadows at Hersey, Elk Grove at Palatine and Forest View at Buffalo Grove.

Saturday night will find Hersey at Wilmette, Warren at Palatine, West Leyden at Schaumburg, Lockport at Wheeling, Lake Forest at Fremd, North Chicago at Elk Grove, Rolling Meadows at St. Viator, Elgin at Forest View and Arlington at Barrington.

Here's the outlook from each school:

CONANT AT ARLINGTON

The last time these two teams clashed, Conant led for only two seconds of the entire game, but it meant the league championship.

"Yes, I think things like that carry over," Arlington coach George Zigman admitted of the painful one-point loss to the Cougars. "Conant's always given us fits."

The Cardinals, 2-1 in non-conference play this year, have spent this week preparing to defend their two-time North Division championship.

"We've been trying to improve on our shooting," Zigman said. "We're taking some shots that aren't percentage shots for us and we're trying to become more aware of this. We're doing a lot of running and brushing up our offense against both the man-to-man and zone defenses."

Zigman will start an all-senior lineup against Conant with Mike Fogel and Denny Gaare at forwards, Jerry DeSimone and John Yeazel at guards and Terry Donahue in the pivot.

"Terry has exceeded our expectations so far this season," Zigman said of his team's leading scorer (14.0) and rebounder (10.0). "If he plays this well the remainder of the season, we're going to be all right."

But Arlington's forte is balance and the fact that Gaare is averaging 13.7 and DeSimone 12.7 per outing is an indication that Zigman is getting the results he hoped for.

"We're getting our shots (55-65 per game) but only shooting 43 per cent from the floor. If we can raise that to 47 or 48, we're going to be in the ball game."

For Conant, this weekend provides a sort of waltz down memory lane, with all the bad memories harbored by the Cougars' opponents. After tonight's MSL opener, the Cougars travel to the West Leyden gym Saturday night to get reacquainted with East Leyden, a towering power that suffered a single point loss to Conant last season.

"We've got us a really tough weekend coming up here," said Conant coach Dick Redlinger. "The kids know it and I think they'll be ready."

Redlinger knows Arlington will be gunning for them after the results of last year's MSL title game. Only one Cougar player, Ron Sulaski, played on the team that won the championship last year.

"It's going to take a helluva effort just to keep us in the game," Redlinger said. "Against Lake Park (which Conant beat after dropping their opener to New Trier, West) we played tough defense and stuck with 'em. Surprisingly, they were bigger and rougher than New Trier but we were able to stay with them on the boards."

After a dismal free throw shooting performance against New Trier West, Conant improved to hit 21 of 31 against Lake Park.

"These kids can shoot 80 per cent in practice but then freeze up and hit 20 in the games," Redlinger said. "The thing this team has to learn, both about shooting free throws and shooting from the floor is to relax and let it fly instead of stopping and thinking about what they're trying to do."

John Rudzema and Mark Pellegrino will be at the guards, Sulaski in the middle with Mike Frisk, Ed Berry and Brian O'Donnell splitting up the forward slots.

PROSPECT AT WHEELING

Decisive ball games don't happen at the beginning of the season.

Or do they?

One that has all the earmarks of a crucial struggle, despite its placement at the front end of the 1974-75 Mid-Suburban basketball slate, is tonight's showdown at Wheeling with Prospect.

Aside from the fact that both these clubs are perennial contenders for loop honors, the showdown has gained increased importance from the early-season form demonstrated by the 'Cats. This, coupled with the advance raves the Knights have been earning ever since last season concluded, makes for decisive action no matter what month it's scheduled.

Coach Bill Slayton's Knights haven't come by their top billing accidentally. After finishing last season on a strong note, four starters return. They are 6-foot-9 Paul Withey, 6-6 Doug Donthron, 6-3 Al Black and 5-11 Mike Quade. They have all the tools — rebounding ability, point power, playmaking and defensive strength and maturity.

In the meantime, Coach Ted Ecker's Wildcats were treated to no such raves despite the fact that some of these same coveted ingredients were there. They were all new faces and nobody was paying much attention . . . until Wheeling walked over Barrington in their opener and proceeded to destroy the opposition at Woodstock's Thanksgiving Tourney.

Now the 'Cats are the area's only remaining undefeated team (4-0) and that experience they were thought to be lacking doesn't seem to be as consequential.

"I'd be lying if I didn't admit that we're very concerned about this team," Slayton offered. "Even with Paul at 100 per cent we'd have a ball game on our hands, and at this point I'm not at all sure how effective he's going to be."

The fact that Withey will even be playing has to boost team spirits after their big scorer and rebounder watched on the sidelines last week while Prospect split a pair. He had a badly sprained ankle pre-season and played at much less than full throttle while the Knights fell to Evanston in their first outing.

"We're not going anywhere at all without him, so I'm just happy for now that

Abuse time for basketball refs

'Tis the season . . . to be critical

When a spectator at a soccer match in Italy shouted at a referee, he was arrested on the charge of abusing an official.

Can you imagine if that happened in the United States?

The jails would be filled, overflowing with angry sports fans shouting, "Open your eyes, you bum!"

It's that time of the year again, fans. It's time for basketball or, if you prefer, that time when certain people feel it's fashionable to abuse the official.

There's blood on the floor from the verbal lashings given basketball officials by coaches, fans, writers and anybody who can get into the act.

Do you know how you can spot a basketball referee on the street? He's the guy who's always looking over his shoulder to see if he is being followed.

There are some jobs that have never appealed to me.

I would not want to sell insurance. I could not get excited about handling an accountant's duties. I also would never — ever — want to be a basketball official.

I greatly admire these men, but I would never want to join their fraternity. Every sport has its loud fans but few activities attract them like basketball, a game that seems to bring out the hidden loony in a lot of folks.

Just last week Norman Geske of Wheeling, who has officiated basketball for 27 years, admitted in this space that he was giving up the sport because "I guess I can't live with the basketball crowds anymore."

Fans may disagree and coaches may argue over decisions rendered in football and baseball, but they cannot always be sure the officials are wrong. Basketball is less cluttered by participants and played in space more compact, so those who differ with the officials are certain they are right and the referee is wrong.

Basketball is a much more intimate game, played in a room, bounded by walls and quite in contrast to football, where spectators are often removed by several hundred feet from the action.

A basketball crowd is aware of the officials as soon as they walk in, while officials in football are hardly noticed. Basketball officials seem to be wrong before they have done anything.

A majority in a basketball crowd, is convinced in advance the officials will miss something and indeed they are correct, for it is impossible to perfectly administer such a fast-moving game.

Watching the officials is part of watching the game and as often as a coach jumps up and yells he governs the extent to which the hostility of the crowd will go on that particular night.

No coach of any other sport is under the same pressures as the basketball man to discipline his own actions.

Bob Frisk

Sports Editor

A basketball crowd reacts in direct relation to how the coaches act and anybody who has attended a game knows that to be true.

No matter how vehemently a football coach may protest, as long as he remains where he belongs on the sidelines, most of the spectators are not aware of it and the minority that is aware doesn't know exactly what he is complaining about.

Fans sitting close to the basketball floor are often vocally — and occasionally physically — intimidating. Just because so many rulings are matters of close judgment, the crowd is usually furious at the refs from the opening tip, and their irritation is further inflamed by the moaning and groaning of the players and coaches.

Basketball officials deal with a unique set of pressures. In no other sport do routine calls directly affect the scoring. Sometimes you've got to wonder what should be the going rate for taking abuse.

There was a brother act that used to form a double attack on the officials, although it always seemed as if surely there must have been more than just two of them.

The brothers positioned themselves in separate but adjacent sections for good stereophonic cross-shout effect. Then they ridiculed, hollered, waved their arms, pointed their fingers, jumped up and down or grabbed the basketball when it went out of bounds and started a dribbling act.

A veteran high school official on the West Coast was working a game once when a voice from the bench raved as he ran by, "You ought to be hung, you cheating —." Not too long afterward a rope tied into a noose was dropped from the balcony, grazing the official's chin.

"I'll get you the next time," the vigilante upstairs shouted to the amusement of the crowd.

"Why do you keep calling me a dummy?" an exasperated official finally said in one game. "Why," shrugged the fan, "do you keep looking around when I say it?"

Then there was the time fans threw snowballs onto the court, hitting the officials. Another game was stopped five times to permit the sweeping of pennies and other refuse off the court.

A man in his mid-70s walks with a cane which he once used to threaten a referee in an Indiana high school game. He traveled the length of the court, brandishing his walking stick, but before he could inflict any damage on the official police stepped in.

It has been said that psychologically, a basketball official should be like a good policeman. He should be possessed of a mean streak and yet be full of compassion.

Obviously, mere knowledge of the rules is not sufficient to be a good referee. A ref must be in top physical condition to withstand the rigors of the fast-paced game. He must be thoroughly self-confident, so that his calls cannot be swayed by those around him. He must be even-tempered and assess technical fouls without carrying a grudge. He must be decisive. And he must, above all, be consistent.

"The least we can demand," a coach will stress over and over, "is that plays are called with consistency. If we get that, I doubt if there will be many complaints."

Agreed. Some officials are extremely inconsistent and deserve to be called on it at times, but certain fans, players and coaches still go overboard as they get caught up in the emotion of the game.

Officials deserve better. Is it worth the money to listen to yourself being called an incompetent, a cheat and a slob?

As this new basketball season begins, and you sit there ready to blast an official who has nothing but his whistle and his back and striped shirt to protect him from vilification, give some thought to the demands of his job, a part-time job at that.

The plight of any sports official is not always a happy one, but the conditions under which the basketball referee labors should not be made intolerable.

Think before you shout the next time? Is that gripe really necessary?

Radio coverage at Wheeling; Balson, Frisk at microphones

WWMM-FM (92.7) of Arlington Heights will begin its area basketball coverage tonight as the Mid-Suburban League kicks off the 1974-75 schedule.

WM Sports Director Howard Balson and Herald Sports Editor Bob Frisk will be at the microphones at 8 p.m. when Wheeling entertains Prospect.

Wheeling is the only unbeaten area club at this early stage of the season, and Prospect is one of the pre-season favorites for the overall league championship. WM radio will follow the area high schools throughout the campaign with Friday headliners.

Balson, who announced varsity sports at the University of Illinois, where he received a degree in Broadcast Journalism, is in his first year as WM Director of Sports. He is in his third season as the hockey play-by-play man for the Chicago Cougars' Radio Network.

Frisk, Herald Sports Editor for 16 years, is in his third season as the color man for WM's high school sports coverage. He also is a University of Illinois graduate.

FRIENDLY TIP. Prospect's Ted Reynolds attempts to nudge a shot over a pair of outstretched New Trier East hands during non-conference combat we're able to have him in the lineup. I can think of a number of teams I'd rather be playing now instead of Wheeling though."

Ecker is grateful for any praise coming his team's way but not expecting it to accompany any pushover. "As far as we're concerned, Prospect has been pointed to for a long time and they're still the team to beat. Slayton has a way of getting his kids ready for big games that earns all the respect in the world."

The Wildcat coach has pretty much settled on a starting lineup consisting of 6-10 Steve Criss, 6-5 Keith Schmidt, 6-4½ Ed Kruk, 6-3 Mike Brzuszkiewicz and 5-9 Steve Rymer. Brzuszkiewicz is the only one of the group with any varsity experience and, by contrast, Slayton's fifth man — 6-3 Dave Mann — is the only Prospect player lacking it.

"Mann isn't going to hurt them a bit because of inexperience," Ecker pointed out. "We've seen him play and he's a nice aggressive ballplayer."

SCHAUMBURG AT FREMID
With three wins in their first four games, the Schaumburg Saxons are off to their best start in five years of varsity competition. But head coach Joe Breauck knows that the toughest tests are just ahead.

"Not too many of our players know what it's like to play in the Mid-Suburban League," said the coach. "It's a lot different. Only (Jon) McElraith has any experience. (Ron) Geels has a taste of it, too."

The rest of Breauck's young squad is new to the league and much of it is new to the school. Senior guard Bob Viviano and 6-3 junior center Marty Golub are transfers. Ed Chmel is a junior. Of the starting five, only Geels and Viviano are seniors.

The Saxons have won three pressure games already this year. All three went right down to the wire before Schaumburg pulled them out. The only defeat came at the hands of a strong Rockford-Jefferson outfit.

Still, Breauck feels that his boys need to improve their game immensely, particularly on offense.

"We've been standing around too much," said the coach. "I've had teams that weren't as good as this one and they moved around a lot better. We've got to get the offense moving."

The Saxons will confront a small but extremely quick Fremd squad in tonight's opener.

"I'm especially impressed with (Jim) Recher," Breauck said. "And (Ron) Hanks is a fine ball handler."

The Schaumburg coach emphasized hard work all week in preparation for the start of the demanding conference schedule. When the bell rings tonight, Breauck hopes his team will be ready.

Having succeeded in reaching the goal set for them prior to the Glenbard West tourney (2 out of 3 wins), the Vikings appear ready to test a solid Saxon team.

"The kids played overall good defense," said coach Leon Kasuboske. "That's probably the thing that did it for us (2-1 record)."

The Vikings showed good scoring balance with Recher at 14.5, Tim Gross at 12.8, Hanks at 9.3 and Kevin Lavin at 8.6. Recher also paced the team in rebounding with a three-game total of 29. Gross had 28 and Paul Gillette 25.

Hanks — the only starter from last year's team — finished the tourney with 17 assists, 8 steals and 9 recoveries.

Kasuboske was especially pleased with the showings of his substitutes. Neither Randy Vaughn or Paul Stanczak started, but both played tough when they got the chance. "Kas" also alternated Rick Kolze and Lavin at one guard spot, depending on who had the better previous game. Both have done well, but Lavin has earned a start tonight.

Joining Lavin in the back court will be Hanks. Also starting will be Recher, Gillette and Gross.

"Kas" has seen the Saxons in action and calls them "one of the better teams they've had."

ROLLING MEADOWS AT HERSEY
Hersey coach Roger Steingraber has searched everywhere in his effort to find some quickness for his Huskie basketball team. Finally, he reached down to his sophomore squad and plucked little Tom Fry, a speedy playmaking guard. Fry will start tonight against Rolling Meadows.

"What we need is quickness," said Steingraber following his team's third loss of the young season last week against Fremd in the Glenbard West tourney. "We're much too slow."

The Huskies' only victory this season came in the tourney against a weak Glenbard North outfit. That night, junior forward Clyde Glass funneled through 25 points. Glass, at 6-5, figures to be Hersey's top scorer this year, but he needs help from the rest of the Huskies.

Among the starters tonight will be 6-5 senior center Rick Madison, a two-year veteran who will try to fill Dave Corzine's shoes. Also in the lineup will be 6-3 senior John Wozniak and 5-10 junior guard Mark Kputiel.

"Our shooting in the Fremd game was terrible," said the Hersey coach. "Especially in the second half."

Another of Steingraber's woes this season has been poor rebounding. They were outboarded convincingly in three of their first four contests.

"Meadows has more size this year than they've ever had," Steingraber said. "More size and more experience. All their kids can jump really well."

So the Huskie coach has devised a reward system which will call for at least 35 Hersey rebounds per game, divided proportionately among the players. Steingraber hopes that something will bring his team out of their early doldrums.

The Mustangs, meanwhile, with the reciprocal record of Hersey (3-1), have been thriving on teamwork. All of coach Ken Arneson's starters are averaging between 10 and 14.5 points while the rebounds are equally scattered among four players.

"We're just trying to polish what we do best," Arneson said. "I keep telling our kids that you can shoot too much, dribble too much and pass too much, but you can't rebound too much. That's what we're going to have to do against Hersey. I think they still go 6-5 across the front line and Corzine's gone."

Arneson has tabbed Dick Block and Steve Breitbell to start at guards, Tom Holl and John Hogan at forwards and Scott Green at center with the promise of giving hobbled 6-8 center Bill Kiley some playing time.

"If we're going to go anywhere this year, we're going to need Kiley's talent in the lineup," Arneson said. "He's been slow in recovering from an ankle injury, but he's been playing better every day."

"We're working hard on our free-throw shooting," Arneson explained. "The fact that we missed four one-and-one's and another two-shot foul against Maine North cost us our only loss. So we've been running hard, getting tired and then shooting our free throws."

ELK GROVE AT PALATINE

"We were able to spread them out and play them even on the boards. I don't know if we'll be able to do that against this team."

The speaker is Bill Parmentier, head basketball coach at Elk Grove, describing the situation his team is bound to face many times in the course of the year: lack of rebounding size.

The team Elk Grove was able to spread out was Addison Trail, much bigger than the Greens and host of the tournament where Elk Grove opened the season. Elk Grove battled them to a stand off on the bluffs but lost the game 64-62.

Now the MSL is ready to open conference play and Elk Grove will face the same size disadvantage when they travel to Palatine tonight. The Pirates and Greens are both 2-1 with Palatine coming off a 61-59 win over St. Viator that saw them coming from a tidy 20 points behind.

"We scouted them against Viator," Parmentier said, "and we were very impressed. They showed a lot of character by coming from as far behind as they did and not giving up. They're a good-sized team, better overall than Addison, and I don't think we'll be able to spread them out enough to handle them on the boards."

"They have some excellent shooters, especially (Kevin) McKenna and (Mark) Mara. But they have four strong kids in there who are all good rebounders. If they control the boards we are going to be in real trouble."

Trouble of another sort could surface if guard Greg Kelley, who has missed school this week with the flu, is not ready.

"I think Kelley will be ready. It's just a question of how much the flu took out of him," Parmentier said. "The guard spot is a key to our game and we've got another guard who hurt his ankle so we are questionable there."

Palatine, too, is relying on the work of its guards, particularly point man Tom Juorio, a 5-9 senior. Coach Ron Finrock is depending on his little playmaker to propel the Pirate attack.

"He's improving," said the coach. "But we won't have a really fine ballclub until our offense is functioning the way it should."

Finrock hopes to cut down on turnovers and rev up the efficiency of the offense at the same time. His three M's — 6-5 Mara (28-point average), 6-5 son McKenna (10 points per), and Jim Maycan — are the key to the scoring.

"We'd like to get Maycan to take more shots," said the coach, who emphasized that his 6-3 senior pivotman is doing a fine job on defense and rebounding.

Palatine's other starter, Bill Stevenson, also 6-5, and 6-4 substitute Ken Reld give the Pirates a lot of height to go along with the three M's, but that might not be enough to deal with Elk Grove's quickness.

"They're very quick," said Finrock. "That could give us problems. And they have adequate size."

FOREST VIEW AT BUFFALO GROVE

Respectability. That's what Buffalo Grove is in search of this winter on the conference basketball courts and they'll get their first shot at it tonight when they entertain Forest View.

by MIKE KLEIN

There exist many wise teachings that will help all persons navigate in society. One of these stipulates: Dwell not upon yesterday's failings lest you become distracted from today's attainable goals.

The nucleus of that idea also applies to high school basketball teams, most particularly to St. Viator's Lions who must defend themselves on four occasions over the next two weekends.

Steve Antrim's Lions baptize their East Suburban Catholic season at eight o'clock tonight, hosting Marist. There's a non-conference home game Saturday with Rolling Meadows.

It's two games again next weekend, hosting Notre Dame on Friday in ESCC play, then venturing into Loyola Academy's gymnasium the next night, Viator's first road game.

Antrim professes no special fondness for these double weekends. But after last Saturday's decapitating loss to Palatine, these four games could be the best possible medicine.

Here's why. Viator led Palatine by 20 points with 5:14 left, third period, but sustained a two-point defeat, 61-59. Until leading 49-29, they controlled all aspects. But when guard Ralph Casciaro and forward Bill Foreman fouled out, the Lions became easy targets for Palatine.

It was a mentally crushing loss. The question now becomes whether the Lions can forget it and keep going. Or will that defeat haunt them?

Despite the ending, there was much gained by an impressive first half that gave the Lions 40-25 lead. It has been many years since Viator played good basketball. They did against Palatine during the first half.

"Nobody made a 30-foot jump shot. Nobody made any great individual moves," said Antrim. "We don't have that kind of player. If you just keep moving the ball, you're alright."

There have been some changes this week at Viator. Antrim is working sophomore John Gillen at the reserve forward spot once held by junior Mike Hermonson who replaced Foreman during last week's unhappy fourth period.

"I don't know if we can go with Gillen in this one," said Antrim. "We're gonna try but he doesn't really know it all yet." Gillen has suited for varsity games this season but not played.

Concern also exists over senior forward Bill Heffernan, a steady influence during victories over Benet Academy plus Immaculate Conception. He was strong scoring and rebounding.

But Heffernan made just one field goal opposite Palatine's Jim Maycan. Antrim said that the 6-foot-3, 185-pounder has practiced just on Wednesdays during the past two weeks. He's troubled by a sore back.

"I think it finally took a toll on him in the Palatine game," Antrim explained. "Bill said he was much sorer than after either of our first two games."

Still, Heffernan will start tonight alongside Foreman with Glenn Girard at center. Paul Kastner and Ralph Casciaro go at guards.

The Marist Redskins are sleepers in an ESCC basketball race that favors defending champion St. Patrick, then St. Joseph.

The Redskins dropped their season opener to Chicago Christian (51-49), then cleaned up in the Rich East Thanksgiving Tournament by crumpling Eisenhower (62-47), Bremen (56-51) and Rich Central (64-56).

You'll see what Antrim terms "absolutely city basketball." Worst problem is their full court, man-to-man press defense. If you're looking for one key word, it's "aggression."

"Marist is physical as hell and doesn't care," Antrim said. "If they foul out, somebody else goes in. Ed (Molitor) plays 10 kids every game and they're all aggressive."

They'll match up 6-6 center Marty Howard against Girard. But it was guard Mike Connolly, with 10 and 20-point games, who gave the Lions fits last season when they lost twice to Marist.

Hoffman Estates opens 'new' schedule

Having three varsity games under their belts, the Hoffman Estates basketball team will shift gears tonight, returning to a junior varsity schedule.

This all-junior team will take on Wheeling's jayvees in the preliminary game, starting at 6:30 p.m. on the Wildcats' court. The varsity game will pit a veteran Prospect team against Wheeling, holding the only undefeated record in the Herald area (4-0).

The Hawks of Coach Jerry Segebrecht will continue with a jayvee schedule until the Niles North Tournament, scheduled for Dec. 26-28. After that, Hoffman will play only just three more varsity contests before the state tournament.

Hoffman will be looking for its first win after dropping its three varsity tests.

Chiefs survive Hawks' attack in overtime, 63-60

The Harper Hawks put on their best display of basketball of the season in losing a 63-60 effort in overtime to the Wauaubsee Chiefs. Two free throws with a second remaining in the extra period by Robin Reder, Wauaubsee's tiny guard, gave the Chiefs the win Harper had earned.

The loss was Harper's second of the year to Wauaubsee and fifth of the season against a single win. The Hawks travel to DuPage Saturday for a 7:30 p.m. meeting.

"I really think we played well enough to win this thing," Harper coach Roger Bechtold said. "I'm very pleased with our performance. That shot there at the end could have gone in and we'd be the winners."

"That shot" was taken by Tim Holland with five seconds left off an inbound pass from Doug Doppke, who has developed into Harper's steadiest hand at controlling the ball.

Holland, who was only supposed to get the ball if Mike Millner or Steve Schmidt was covered, leaped and spun from the right of the lane and bounced his shot off the glass.

"Tim was our third choice to take that shot," Bechtold said, "but Wauaubsee took away the play we had set up and shut off both Millner and Schmidt. Tim's shot was a good one under the circumstances. He jumps better than anybody else and was able to get above everybody."

"It just didn't fall."

That Wauaubsee could foresee Harper's intentions of going to Millner was obvious. The big sophomore from Elk Grove had hit the last two baskets, jumpers from the free throw line and the corner, to pull Harper into a tie and send the game into overtime. He tied Wauaubsee's Steve Stone for high scoring honors with 17 and has been Harper's choice to take the tough shot all year.

Reder, who finished with 12 points, almost took the game away from the Hawks for good with less than five minutes remaining in the second half. Barely 5-4, Reder rarely risked a trip any closer to the basket than the free throw line.

But when Holland rammed home a tip-in then hit a long jumper to push Harper ahead 49-45 Reder took over from a distance where his height is no liability: 20 feet from the basket. He connected three times in a row from that neighborhood and when Stone snuck one in from underneath, the Chiefs were back on top by four points and it took Millner's late heroics to send the game into overtime.

Stone and Reder both hit baskets early in the second period to pull Wauaubsee back on top by four and it remained for Chris Mielke to pull Harper ahead 58-57 with two baskets before fouling out.

The loss of Mielke meant Harper was without its steadiest player of the night. Moving effortlessly, but with a look of pained exhaustion on his face, Mielke led the Hawks, often merely by example, at both ends of the floor.

"Chris played his best game of the season," Bechtold said. "If he can come on steady like he did tonight he'll just keep getting better."

Mielke played the middle on the zone, ranging all over the court and harassing Wauaubsee with his quickness.

Doppke, who was faulted earlier by Elgin's head coach for dribbling too high, proved he could shoot from outside (he scored 12), but was involved in two costly fouls late in the game. Both calls were questionable and could have just as easily been ruled jump balls. Bechtold was pleased he had found a ballhandler, though.

"Doug may dribble high but nobody has proven they can steal the ball from him," Bechtold said. "Wauaubsee puts more pressure on defense than any other team we'll face this year. Doppke handled it well. I think he'll improve with each game."

"In fact, I think this whole team is going to improve."

Warriors begin CSL schedule, East at Proviso East

by MIKE KLEIN

So the annual tussel begins again this evening. Eyes forward, bodies poised...everybody go catch Maine South.

The Central Suburban League unveils its revamped championship schedule this evening with three South Division games plus two in the North.

And as usual, the Hawks ought to start quickly. Aided by returning All-Stater Pete Boesen, who could emerge as the finest prep forward or center in Illinois, Maine South has drawn wireless, putch-less Niles North (0-5) for its home opener.

So look to other games for more excitement. They'll be closer and vastly more interesting. Maine West and Niles West, two clubs with better and more experienced young men, will fight for victory at Niles in Skokie. Deerfield rounds out the CSL South schedule at Niles East which already owns four wins against lesser opponents.

CSL North Division games find Glenbrook North at New Trier West, home of Mel Sheets' Cowboys who've got a bona fide chance at giving Maine South a good run for conference honors. And Glenbrook South hosts Highland Park.

That leaves Maine East as the odd team this weekend. Coach Paul McClelland's Blue Demons will undergo another non-conference adventure at defending state champion Proviso East.

Maine West will host Libertyville Saturday night.

When Maine North removed its Norsemen from the CSL, that forced revamping of varsity sport schedules and left the league with only 11 schools.

League authorities have expanded the conference schedule by one game to 14. CSL North schools meet all intra-divisional opponents twice plus each South division school once. CSL South schools play an entire crossover schedule. But they've got just nine teams within the division. Maine West plays Niles North one game but all other South entrants twice.

Gaston Freeman will send out five seniors against Billy Schnurr's Niles West Indians. He'll go with guards Glen Heiden and Bill Makuch plus forwards Paul Dick and Steve Zuccarini surrounding center John Clark.

In the past couple seasons, Maine West basketball teams have shown just occasional ability to overcome a large deficit and gain victory.

But they've already done it once, going into an overtime 78-72 pre-Thanksgiving Day victory at Forest View. They came from a 69-55 deficit with 3:29 on the clock and tied at 70-apiece through four periods.

Their late success, said Freeman, was caused by defensive adjustments. "Offensively, we'd been doing a good job. Defense changed the whole complexion of that ball game. We went into a press." Apparently, the five-man unit of Clark, Zuccarini, Dick, Heiden and Makuch will remain intact. That's something that couldn't be said about the Warriors of these past couple seasons. Seldom have positions been secured this early.

"There's no question that overall experience will help us," said Freeman. Except for Dick who had an early season injury, all of West's current starters played extensive varsity ball last season. And Clark was used in many junior-varsity games.

Freeman gave praise to the 6-foot-5 Clark who "gives us the only height we have. In the last week, he's shown tremendous improvement. And John's such a hard working kid."

You can expect superior shooting all season from Heiden. He scored 20 at Forest View after opening with 24 against Oak Park. Any opponent who attempts to sag inside on Clark, Zuccarini and Dick can be rudely awakened by Heiden from long range.

When the Warriors were compiling their 6-7 CSL record one year ago, Niles West finished 3-10 largely because the Indians couldn't surround junior guard Marty Block with nearly the same talent of their Super-Sectional team from two years ago.

But they've got the ingredients for improvement that has given Schnurr's Indians a 2-2 record against formidable teams. Losses were sustained against LaGrange-Lyons and Evanston with victories over Notre Dame plus Loyola.

Another returning starter for Schnurr is 6-2 senior forward Bob Krueger who's already earned two varsity letters. They're stronger at center with senior Bill Pindras plus juniors John Bruner and Bob Zyburt.

Maine East waits yet another week before starting its CSL North schedule. The Demons take a 2-2 record into Proviso East and should probably be 3-1. They lost by two points to York in the Dukes' Thanksgiving Tourney and threw that game away at the end after a fine comeback.

When the Demons learn how to get an early lead, they'll be hard to catch. East has trailed by huge margins against all four opponents but regained its composure to defeat Palatine and Morton

West. The other defeat was to Oak Park.

Strange as it may seem, a young man with just six varsity field goals has emerged as East's most surprising asset. He's 6-2 forward Mike Tietz, a junior who plays soccer and never appears to get tired.

Twenty-three rebounds places Tietz third in team statistics behind Mark Berns and Derrick Brown, co-leaders with 22. Tietz grabbed nine rebounds to bring the Demons from an 11-point fourth period deficit against Palatine. That followed up his complete game, 18-point and 12-rebound performance in the afternoon junior-varsity contest.

Proviso East has started in rather shocking manner with only two victories plus losses to Willowbrook, Highland Park and Glenbard West. But the Pirates return starters Mike Stockdale, Jerry Montgomery, and Roderick Floyd from last year's state title club and will not be losers much longer.

Area residents hold key roles in boxing feature

Special to The Herald

Angel Mayoral wiped the long black hair from his eyes as he jogged along unfamiliar terrain. Wind from passing trucks buffeted the lonesome runner with salvos of smoke and pebbles.

ANGEL MAYORAL

The route along Mannheim Road is a far cry from the clean sandy beaches of Baja, Calif. where Mayoral ran first as a child, then as an aspiring lightweight reaching for the top rung of professional boxing.

It was also a long way from the makeshift baseball diamond in Santa Rosalina, Mayoral's native home, 200 miles south of Ensenada, where he earned the praise of big league scouts.

When he wasn't an outstanding shortstop, Mayoral was playing on the soccer field by the Pacific where he elicited "oohs" and "aahs" from football aficionados.

Mayoral, who now lives in Des Plaines, could have been a pro in all these endeavors. But he chose boxing. And today he works out in Mayor Daley's gym at Navy Pier instead of the Convention Center in Las Vegas or the Olympic Auditorium at Los Angeles.

Rumors of the boxing revival taking place in the Chicago area, sparked by Melrose Parker Rocky DiFazio, caught Mayoral's ear. A gigantic crowd and the promise of a good purse might lure the lightweight world champion, Roberto Duran of Panama, into the title fight Mayoral has been seeking.

DiFazio's manager, Bobby Salerno, who lives in Des Plaines, caught word of Mayoral's skill, and after watching the potential champion in action, assumed part interest in his contract.

Salerno feels that DiFazio and Mayoral could bring suburban Chicago its first title holding fights in its history. What suburb could boast two world champions?

For Salerno the two fighters mean tities. But for Grand Rand Boxing Enterprises, headed by another Des Plaines resident, Joe Granata, the boxers mark the beginning of a renaissance of boxing with the suburbs as its mecca.

Those who have seen Mayoral know he has talent. He was received very well by the 4500 fans that crowded the Oak Brook Coliseum where he knocked out former national golden gloves champion, the ninth ranked Norman Goin.

A 65-4-1 record, which includes a unanimous decision over U.S. Lightweight Champion, Ray Lampkin, testifies to his potential.

His latest fight at the Chicago Aragon Ballroom, Mayoral knocked out Czechoslovakian champion Stan Yanachek. Grand Rand had seen enough and signed Mayoral to fight Missouri champ, Johnny Copeland, who has 27 knockouts, to fight at the International Amphitheatre along with DiFazio, Wednesday, Dec. 11.

Grand Rand has ex-junior mid-dleweight champion, Denny Moyer to duel DiFazio. The unique combination should be appealing for suburbanites who regularly attend boxing matches. "After all, promoter Joe Granata says, 'A lot of people came out here from the city. And their tastes haven't changed. A fight fan is a fight fan.'"

If the cards fall into place and Mayoral becomes a champ, he has made it perfectly clear that he would like to defend his crown here.

The possibility of international competition is attractive. If Mayoral cannot get a title bout with Lampkin, he will try to fight former lightweight king Ken Buchanan of Scotland, before demanding a bout with Duran.

Big Ten makes 4 'other' policy changes

WAYNE DUKE
Big Ten Commissioner

by PAUL LOGAN

Besides announcing a major change in determining the league's Rose Bowl representative and also saying the Big Ten is considering the possibility of sending other teams to bowls, four other important items were revealed after the winter meetings of the conference.

Commissioner Wayne Duke, during a press conference at the league's new offices near Woodfield Shopping Center in Schaumburg, revealed Wednesday these decisions by the faculty representatives and athletic directors:

- More rigid requirements for attaining a degree by athletes.
- More liberal policy regarding football eligibility after an injury.
- Shortening the length of time for football recruiting.
- Providing a new procedure for handling conference co-championships in basketball.

Duke says the Big Ten wants to "put (athletic) people on a degree track" with its new requirements. The outcome of these new rules will hopefully have more athletes graduating.

Presently, 45 per cent of the incoming freshmen athletes graduate in four years and 55 to 60 per cent graduate in five.

Previously, to stay eligible an athlete had to have 24 credit hours towards a degree going into his sophomore year, 48 before his junior year and 72 before his senior year. Now he must have 24, 51 and 78 with 105 if he's only a five-year graduate program. To graduate, a student-athlete must have 120.

"We abhor young people enrolled in 'Mickey Mouse courses' to obtain a degree," says Duke. He is hopeful that eventually all major conferences adopt this policy of the Big Ten so that they obtain what should be their major objective — to have the student-athlete obtain a degree.

Although the Big Ten stiffened its requirements in the latter category, it relaxed its policy with regard to "hardship" to an athlete who happens to be injured early in the football season.

Formerly, a season-ending injury in the first game would allow the gridders an extra year of eligibility, but not in the second game. However, this rule was put into effect back in the days when teams only played a seven or eight-game schedule. Since they play 10 or 11 games now, the conference decided to update this rule.

Starting retroactively for all but this year's freshmen, if an athlete was injured either in the first or second game of the season, he can ask for and receive an additional year of eligibility.

Duke says the conference is planning on pushing this rule at the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) meetings in 1975 for becoming a national rule.

As far as recruiting of players is concerned, the Big Ten is cutting back by one day the deadline for sending in letters of intent to attend its schools to Feb. 19 for football and moving back by five days the deadline for other sports to March 1.

Most of the other major conferences are also considering cutting back, too, to save money and time.

Finally, because the NCAA will be offering an additional berth to those conferences who have more than one top basketball team, the conference has provided a procedure for post-season play.

Last year Michigan and Indiana were co-champs and had to have a playoff to determine the NCAA representative (Michigan).

If a co-championship happens again and the NCAA wishes to take both teams, whomever won the two-game series would go to the Midwest Regional and the other would go to some other regional as an at-large team.

If the NCAA only wished to take one team, there would be a playoff. The winner would go and the loser could attend the Collegiate Commissioner's Tournament like Indiana did last spring.

As many other teams as the National Invitational Tournament (NIT) would like to invite would be eligible to attend.

Karras saves boring Monday games

The best thing that ever happened to television sports and maybe television in general was the addition of Alex Karras to the ABC Monday Night Game of the Week. As far as I'm concerned, Karras makes the viewer see the game of football in a totally different light than ever before, particularly if he has only seen the game on TV. Unlike Don Meredith, who mixed his football expertise with a kind of corn-pone country humor, Karras gives us an insight into what it might be like to actually play the game. He adds his own brand of humor — a kind of Woody Allen-type self-deprecation.

The whole result of watching the Monday Night Game now is that I get the feeling that football isn't the great sacred cow that Gifford and Cosell make it out to be. It's not a do-or-die, life-and-death situation. It's just a game and it has its funny and pathetic moments, as Karras repeatedly points out. I have to admit that there are times when his funny statements make me double up with laughter. I used to always switch over from the closing minutes so I wouldn't miss Johnny Carson's monologue, but now I'm afraid I'll miss a funny crack by Alex. That's something, considering that the games have been a bore this year.

RAVES FOR AREA STARS

Dear Fans Forum,

You are to be congratulated for the fine job on the all-area football team that you named in last Friday's paper. It takes a local paper like yours to properly recognize and reward the area's outstanding athletes in football or whatever sport.

It should be pointed out — as you would agree, I'm sure — that not every athlete is worthy of all-area recognition and, just as true, not all the worthy athletes were named. There will always be some players left off for one reason or another.

But the point is that those athletes who were honored on your team and on every team like it are the ones who represent the true spirit of high school competition. I think that everyone who accepts an honor like that does so in the name of all his teammates and all the players who worked so hard during the season — whether or not they were good enough to earn All-Area status.

Thank you for giving me a chance to express myself.

BRING BACK BLACKOUT

Dear Editor:

This may be a very unpopular stand to take, especially in other parts of the country, but I think the Congress should consider lifting that crazy pro football blackout rule. It's true that the airwaves belong to the people and all, but there just might be some merit in the notion that the blackout hurts attendance.

My main reason for opposing the anti-blackout law is that since all but one of the Bear home games were on TV this year, CBS punished us by cancelling the second game of the doubleheader each time. Thanks to that cruel policy, we ended up seeing about every crummy Bear game and none of the really exciting games around the league.

Personally, I'd rather take my chances with tickets and lousy weather in Soldier Field than have to put up with one bad TV game per week.

Also, I can understand the league's arguments about the blackout. It is too early yet to judge whether the attendance figures will be hurt, but there is no doubt that the anti-blackout policy affects the amount of no-shows and that is bound to hurt concession income. And the main reason for opposing the blackout law is that eventually people will just get sick of football.

PASS IT ALONG

Fans Forum:

I've always been puzzled about a certain rule in football and for years I've had arguments with people about it. Most everybody tells me that a quarterback has to throw a forward pass overhand or else it is an illegal lateral. In other words, anything underhand must be backwards — a lateral. I insist that the rule says you can pass it any way. Who's right?

Lola Mathews
Palatine

EDITOR'S NOTE: You're right. A QB may throw the ball behind his back, between his legs, or underhand — just as long as it gets there. A good example was Norm Hodgins' desperate shovel pass which was intended for Lionel Antoine in the Bear game Sunday. Just as a lateral may legally be passed overhand, a forward pass may be thrown underhand.

ALLEN LEAVES A VOID

Fans Forum:

Without Dick Allen in the White Sox lineup next year, I will have no reason to attend games at White Sox Park.

There will be an impenetrable void in the middle of the batting order.

I just may have to move.

Coaches, writers pick Prospect, Arlington cagers

by KEITH REINHARD

It will be Prospect against Arlington in the playoff battle for Mid-Suburban League basketball honors next Feb. 25.

But don't bet on it.

Past performances have proven that very little can be taken for granted along the MSL cage circuit, including pre-season estimates by local mentors and newspaper writers.

And that's what the Knight-Cardinal showdown is all about. . . part of a survey of league head coaches and Herald sports staffers on the eventual outcome of the race beginning tonight.

The dozen pilots and seven Paddock scribers were each asked to rate the final standings and points were awarded on a diminishing basis through 18 ballots (coaches did not pick their own teams).

When the votes were all in, Prospect was an overwhelming choice to take the big trophy in the South while Arlington eased past a couple of other strong runners to gain top North Division recognition.

While the two top picks remained constant, there were several clubs that brought out varying opinions when the survey separated writers from coaches. The writers pegged Palatine as no. 2 team in the North while the coaches projected Wheeling into that slot.

The writers also had Rolling Meadows snaring second in the South with Conant and Elk Grove both hot on the Mustang hooves tied for third. The coaches pegged Forest View no. 2, pursued closely by the Grenadiers with Meadows in fourth.

From an overall standpoint, the North Division would appear to be lumped into two distinct groups, with the Cards, Wildcats and Pirates in the pennant race while the others scramble for fourth.

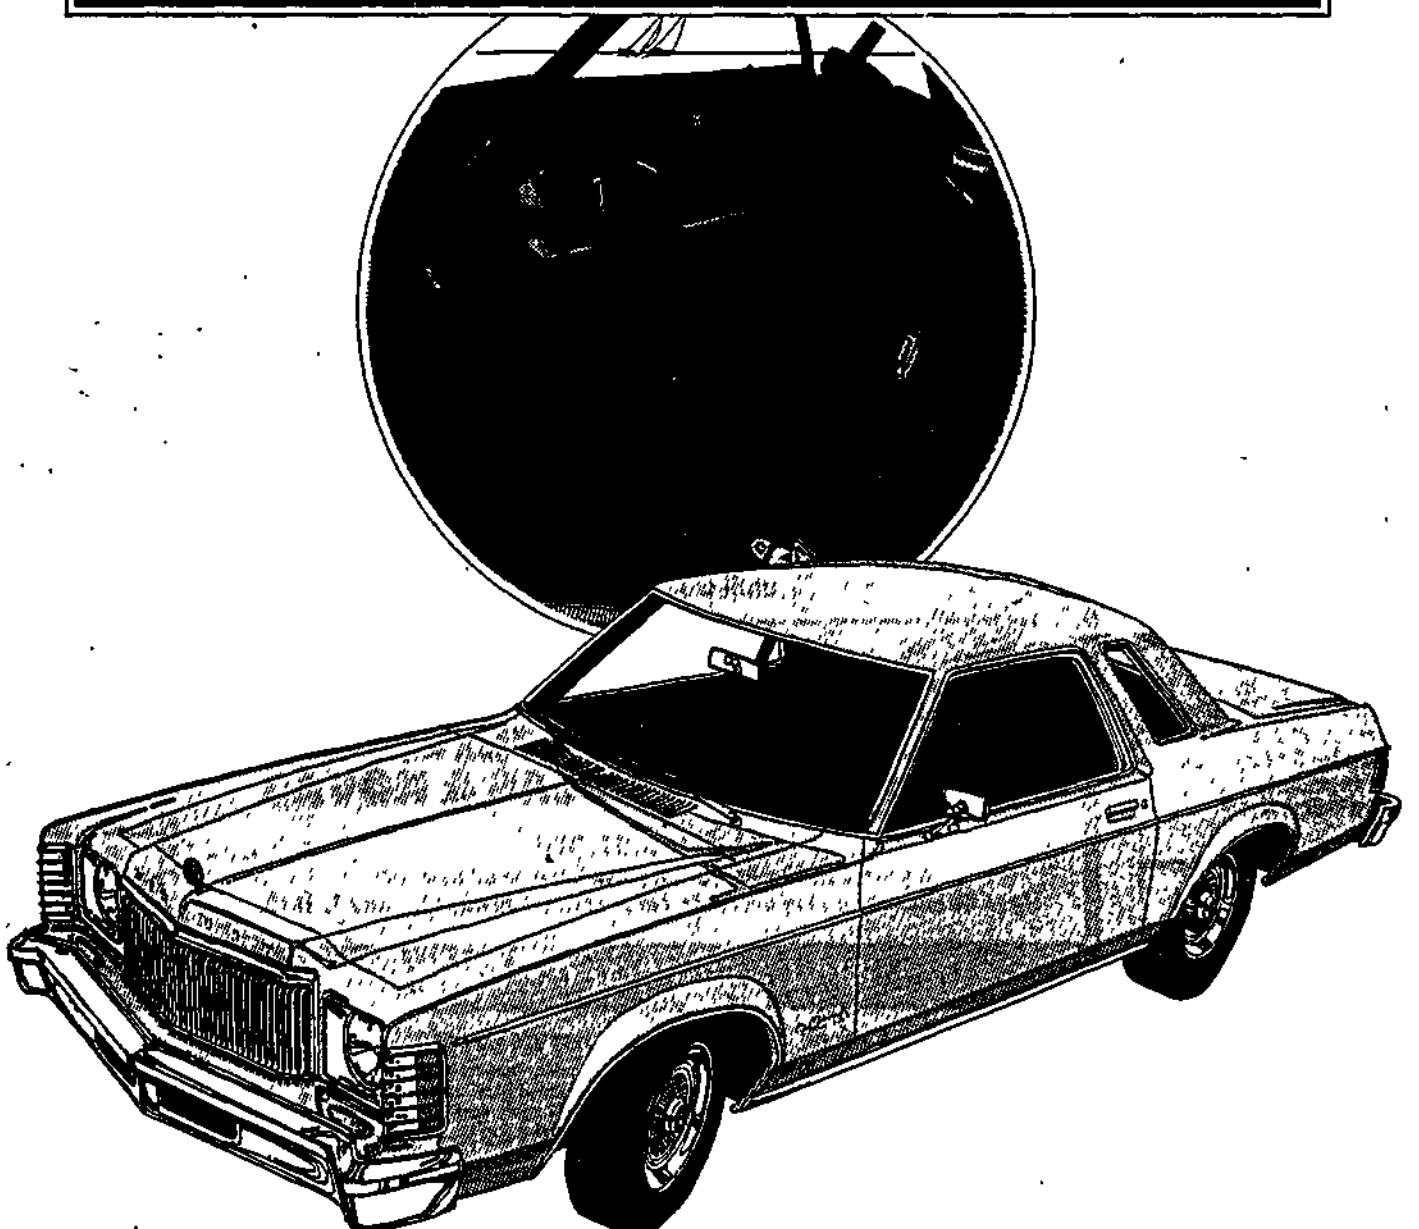

The South will have Prospect in a waltz while Elk Grove, the Falcons and Mustangs skirmish for the number two berth and the others trail behind.

It all looks nicely settled on paper but like most polls it brings out the best in disagreement among those not picked to win. So the real overall standpoint is. . . again. . . don't bet on it.

THE SILVER & RED CLASSIC

MERCURY MONARCH

The new precision size luxury car for 1975

This strikingly handsome coupe may remind you of a special version of Lincoln-Mercury's most expensive car, the Continental Mark IV.

Like the silver Mark, its subtle silver exterior gives way to a near-lavish red interior. Like the silver Mark, this coupe has a classic grille, opera windows, and steel-belted radials, all standard. But unlike the silver Mark, the Silver & Red Monarch comes to Chicagoland priced within reach of most new-car buyers. Especially when currently high trade-in allowances are considered. Today, it's often possible to trade on a new '75 Mercury and pay less than others would have last summer on a comparably equipped '74 using a similarly aged trade-in.

The Silver & Red Mercury Monarch is classic, yet very much a car for these times. Precisely sized to seat five adults comfortably and give excellent gas mileage. . . precisely priced for today's astute buyer.

Evanston hosts top gym teams in invitational

by CHARLIE DICKINSON
Gymnastics Editor

Judging from the results of last year's Evanston Invitational, it does not appear to be a reliable indication of who will be tough when the state tournament rolls around nearly three months later.

Evanston each year invites the four top teams in the state and the field for the meet tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. Includes three (Hersey, Elk Grove and Rolling Meadows) from the Mid-Suburban League.

Hersey was invited last year and finished dead last. They recovered to win the state championship.

"The Evanston meet is a little too early in the year," said Hersey coach Don Von Ebers, who has seen his team crack 145 points in their only dual meet of the season, "to really tell who will be strong when the tournament starts. I think we proved last year that this isn't so."

"We just had one of those nights where nothing went right. We have high hopes for this meet, though. Hinsdale Central should be the big gun."

Hinsdale rounds out the quintet of competing teams and the Red Devils of head coach Neil Krupicka have already nailed Prospect in a dual meet 143.17 to 116.42. The performance of Hinsdale Central was impressive enough to prompt Knight head coach Pat Kivland to declare the Red Devils state championship material.

Krupicka fields a veteran team led by seniors Steve Economides (free exercise), Paul Black (side horse), Todd Gardner (tramp) and Steve Delcarson (P-bars). Central's high bar and all-around man is junior Brock Grigas. Grigas landed a 7.52 average against Prospect in the all-around.

Kevin Muenz, who scored 8.06 in the all-around to take that event in the York duel, should provide Grigas with his toughest competition at Evanston. Or, more fairly, Grigas will pressure Muenz more than anybody.

With brother Danny, Mike Krepp (tramp), Steve Corey (still rings) and Keith Oehlson (free exercise) Muenz heads up a talented and improving Hersey squad.

"We might be a little bit weak in certain areas," Von Ebers said, "but I'm hoping we can average 15 points for each event. Our first and second positions are very strong, with the Muenz brothers, and we'll do well in tramp, P-bars and free ex."

Elk Grove won the Evanston Invitational last year and finished third in the state. Coach Fred Gaines, who will not see his team perform in live competition until the conference duels open Thursday, has a young squad with Steve Phillips and Scott Harriett the only seniors.

"I still think we belong in this company, though," Gaines said, "we earned our way into this meet last year. In addition to Phillips and Harriett we've got a good kid named Matt DaMore."

"We're a young team, though, and I can't really say what we'll be like."

Rolling Meadows' Mustangs, under the direction of Vic Avigliano, demolished an outclassed Lake Park team in their dual opener with all-around man Guy Owsiany marking 5.5.

The host school's fortunes in their own meet could mean dead last for John Brinkworth's Wildkats. Evanston finished eighth in the state last year and could manage only 80 points in their dual opener against Glenbrook South.

"I think we're a 115 point team at this point in time," Brinkworth said. "We lost the state high bar champion and our junior class is a little weak. Our all-around man, Mike Schmidt, is young and he'll improve throughout the year. We'll be okay."

"I'm just pleased to be able to put on this meet. I think, besides the state meet, this is best gymnastics meet held in the state. There are a lot of other invitationals but none of them have the quality or depth of talent that we'll have at Evanston Saturday night."

Circle campus to host gymnastics meet — 'A Salute to Gary Morava'

Special to The Herald
It only seems fitting that the 1974 Windy City Gymnastics Invitational at Chicago Circle Campus Dec. 6-7 be subtitled "A Salute to Gary Morava." After all the Windy City Invite has gained recognition as the most exciting gymnastics exhibition in the Midwest.

Eighteen teams from Illinois, Wisconsin, Indiana, Iowa, Ohio, Michigan and Texas will take part in this year's competition over the two day period, fielding many outstanding teams and individuals who have gained national recognition in their various events.

An award will be presented to the best all-around gymnast in honor of Morava, the brilliant Southern Illinois gymnast and Hersey High School graduate who was killed last season due to injuries sustained in gymnastics exercises while at SIU.

Not only is this year's Invitational jam-packed with outstanding performers, but it also serves as a homecoming for many northwest suburban gymnasts.

Hersey High graduate Junior Scott Hudson of Southern Illinois will also be joined by Palatines' Indiana State team member Junior Bob Mellin to round off the group of area standout gymnasts.

Friday, Dec. 6 at 6:00 p.m. will be the first round of the meet with competition in Olympic Compulsories. Saturday, Dec. 7 at 1:00 p.m. will see the Windy City Team Championships and at 8:00 p.m. will be the individual finals, probably the most glamorous part of the meet. Awards will be presented that evening.

THE FOURTH ANNUAL Windy City Gymnastics Invitational will be held this Friday and Saturday at the University of Illinois at Chicago Circle. The meet is "A Salute to Gary Morava," honoring the former Hersey and Southern Illinois University gym star, shown here on the side horse in Russia. Morava was killed in a freak accident last winter.

Here's one option you can't get from a car dealer.

Real rustproofing. A dealer can't order it from the factory. Because it has to be done after the car is completely assembled.

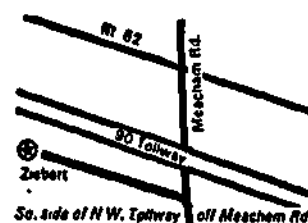

Some car dealers will do a so-called "rustproofing" job, but that's about all. They might even say it's the "same as Ziebart." That's not true. Because they don't have the training, equipment or know-how to give you complete rustproofing.

At Ziebart Rustproofing we've got the tools, the sealant and the technicians to do it right.

If you're buying a new car, you should check us out. Why not give us a call?

It's Us. Or Rust.

NELLIE WAITS ON EVERY customer herself. Her full Mexican name is Natividad Sosa Tejeda, but because no one could pronounce it when she started school at the age of five in Kansas, her friends shortened it to just Nellie. The name has stuck ever since. El Jarocho which opened in Palatine in November of 1967, is a member of the World Famous Restaurants International.

NELLIE SETS UP the tables for another day. Like all restaurateurs, she has been hit by rising costs of food, but complete lunches and dinners at El Jarocho are still served at bargain prices. Three rolled tacos with rice and beans are only $1.

At Nellie's El Jarocho

An adventure in Mexican dining awaits

by GENIE CAMPBELL

I recognized Nellie the first time I dined at El Jarocho though we had never met. Her personality is the tip-off.

Waiting on the two of us as she does all her customers, she suggested in that most persuasive, yet authoritative manner of hers what we might want for lunch... a combination of rolled tacos or enchiladas with rice, refried beans and guacamole salad. Who was I to argue? I took it... all of it.

What I did pass up was the hot sauce. I know better.

But the real gist of this Mexican dining experience is not the food itself. Naturally that was good or I wouldn't be writing about it. I polished off the works including the guacamole which I never even realized I liked. But eating anything is easier than telling Nellie why you didn't.

WHILE I STILL worried lest I consume too many refried beans, the check arrived. I smiled in spite of my fullness.

The two of us had forked our way through a mountain of food for less than $2 apiece, soft drinks included. Only the tax was extra.

And because of that, I hate myself.

Purely selfish I'll admit. But when you find something good, you don't like to publicize it. You'd rather keep it all to yourself.

However, I was anxious to talk to Nellie and find out how she is managing to make ends meet when other restaurants are crying over rising food costs and upping the prices on their menu every other week to compensate.

"I'm barely making it," she said matter-of-factly, lamenting that her "Deluxe Mexican Dinner for Two" is now $7. It used to be only $5, but her landlord raised the rent.

SHE WAS ADVISED to seek a liquor license to make up the difference, but Nellie wouldn't have it. "No way," she said, though finally Nellie compromised and now serves Mexican beer and wine... but only at the table, never to take out.

We toasted one day before lunch with a glass of apple champagne as she laughed, "You'll never get intoxicated on just that."

Two women, who were her first customers of the day, also received a taste.

The delivery man with Nellie's new leather boots under arm might have, too, if he had been an hour or so later. Instead he was offered a glass of papaya juice.

"I spend more on shoes than a rich person," said Nellie trying on her new purchase.

It's the one luxury she allows herself for being on her feet all day. She greatly out-paces her 64 years and no one would suspect she underwent open heart surgery only a couple of years ago.

THE PALATINE restaurant at 61 N. Bothwell St. celebrated its seventh anniversary in its present location last month. But El Jarocho, Nellie and all the furnishings, except new curtains, go back much further than that.

Nellie and her mother, commonly called "Mama," opened El Jarocho, "named after the colorful costumes of the natives of Veracruz," in 1961 at the corner of State and Pearson Streets in Chicago.

Nellie's father had been killed in the 1910 Mexican revolution before she was even born. Shortly after, the family moved to New Mexico and then Kansas before settling permanently in Chicago.

When "Mama" died in 1967, Nellie packed up her belongings and moved to Palatine because "it was just meant to be. I dreamed the whole thing before I came out."

The old handcarved hickory chairs with rattan seats are the same ones used when El Jarocho opened. All the wall decorations date back, too, except the white paper wedding bells strung recently for the wedding of Nellie's granddaughter.

NELLIE HAS everything right at hand including a collection of history books which prove Mexican food is older than either Chinese or French. She is proud of that.

Though tacos are quite popular, Nellie considers them "snacks," much as barbecues and hot dogs are in American cuisine. She prefers Mexican stews and often makes up special soups to serve her customers.

"When I was young... though I'm not old now... I'm only 64, but when I was real young, I used to like banana pepper sandwiches with onions and cheese. Oh, my mouth is watering now!" she said.

Being the type who prefers chile without the powder, I only winced.

Everything is concocted right in Nellie's back kitchen and once I saw her give a customer a whole bag of soup bones that she knew she wouldn't be using.

NELLIE IS AGHAST over some of the prices charged by other more glamorous Mexican restaurants she periodically samples.

"One of these days I'm going to put their menus in the window next to mine to shame them," she said. In a whisper she told me which ones she suspects use powdered beans.

El Jarocho is open every day except Sunday for dinner. In addition it is usually open Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday for lunch. But I say usually because it's wise to call before you show up. Nellie likes to know you're coming even if the dining room is empty.

In fact if you're bringing a party of 10 or more, she'll open any day of the week for you and fix just about anything you want whether it's on the menu or not.

And that's the appeal of El Jarocho. It's old-fashioned, and comfortably set off from this gotta-have-a-franchise, frozen hot plate world.

NELLIE IS HOSTING an authentic Mexican gourmet dinner Dec. 21 with "lots of surprises and more surprises" is all she'll give out. It will include Mexican antojitos (hors d'oeuvres) and a big bottle of wine. All for $15 a couple.

"Do you think that's too much?" No, Nellie, I don't think it's nearly enough.

Justice depends upon those who 'warm the bench'

by ART MUGALIAN

In "The Benchwarmers," journalist Joseph C. Goulden relates a story about a current United States district judge in Chicago who showed up an hour late for an important injunction hearing in a federal railroad case.

The judge ambled into court and began a totally irrelevant dissertation on the history and technology of railroad while lawyers from both sides stood in amazed disbelief.

After 30 minutes, the judge concluded abruptly and, suppressing a burp, he announced that court was adjourned. Fortunately for the judge — and the nation — an eleventh hour act of Congress averted a national rail strike and rendered the court proceedings moot. It was fortunate, too, for the lawyers who later decided that the judge had performed that day while rip-roaring drunk.

GOULDEN, WHO also wrote the best-selling "The Superlawyers," offers several examples of judicial behavior in this new study of U.S. district and appellate court judges published by Weybright and Talley, ($12.50). Many of the personal vignettes do nothing to instill public confidence in the powerful men and women who occupy the federal bench.

The author, indeed, recognizes from the start that judges are only human and therefore vulnerable to human frailties. Goulden's main contention is that federal judges (489 of them on district courts alone) should act like federal judges and not like gods in black robes.

The roots of judicial incompetence and corruption lie in politics, which plays such a vital role in the selection of judges. All federal judges are appointed by the President, on consent of the Senate, and usually only with the approval of a senator or other key politician from the nominee's state.

AN ENTIRE CHAPTER is devoted to the judges in the district for Chicago and Northern Illinois, once termed "the most wretched federal district" in the country. Because so many judges in this particular district owe their positions to political favor and partisan quid-pro-quo, the quality of justice tends to suffer immeasurably.

Goulden credits Sen. Charles H. Percy, Rep.-Ill., with helping to reverse the trend in recent years by exercising his discretionary powers to bring capable men to the bench. Percy and others have shown that the system can function reasonably well even in a political atmosphere.

But decades of neglect have hurt the cause of justice everywhere. A federal judge is appointed for life, and unless a violation of the Constitution's vague "good behavior" standard leads to a rare impeachment bill in Congress, he is liable to stay in office until he dies. And because some men are fools or worse, and because others become senile, the federal courts are in need of help.

STILL, GOULDEN suggests no alternatives to the method of judicial selection. He proposes no radical checks on judicial behavior. Instead, he says that serious tampering with the system would be a mistake.

The heart of the federal judiciary system is the independence of the judges. Independence of the judiciary in America is essential to freedom and justice, and only if qualified men and women are retained on the bench will independence be ensured. Lifetime tenure is one of the guarantees of independence which the Constitution's framers devised.

There is hope for the future of the federal judicial system. It can work and it does. Not all federal judges are dottering old codgers; not every judge is a product of the establishment with a built-in prejudice toward big business; not all judges are ex-prosecutors who favor the government's side of every case.

IT IS THE OTHER judges who make the system work. Judge John J. Sirica, who more than anyone, bore the burden of bringing out the truth in the Watergate scandal, is one example of a judge doing his job well. Goulden points to Sirica and a handful of other federal judges who typify fairness, hard work and courageousness in the quest for justice.

"The Benchwarmers," asks no more or no less than what 210 million Americans should expect — a fair and competent federal judiciary.

State china little like presidents who used it

Last spring I was pleased to be able to view the Presidential Collection of china at the White House. It is not shown on regular White House tours, but special arrangements may be made to see it. What is most interesting about the collection, to me, is that the ornateness or flamboyance of the china seems unrelated to the type of president who commissioned it.

For example, the 24th president, Benjamin Harrison, has been described as a cautious, frigid, unimaginative little man who was content to sit in the White House and let Congress run the country. Life at 1600 Pennsylvania Ave. during his single term between the two Cleveland administrations was uneventful, with very little entertaining and virtually no gala events.

YET, OF ALL the state china commissions by the first families, the Harrison service stands out as being among the most spectacular ever created. Designed by Caroline Harrison, who tried to teach china painting to young ladies in her early years in Indianapolis, the service plate features a full-color federal eagle in the center with the national shield and the motto of the United States in his claws. Surrounding this central figure is a border of deep cobalt blue, overlaid with a golden rod and corn motif in 24-karat gold. Inside the well of the plate is a circle of 44 stars, representing the number of states in the union at that time.

James Monroe had several sets of china, of which the most beautiful was the state dinner service which had a maroon border with five vignettes in gold representing commerce, agriculture, art, science and strength. In the center was the federal eagle and shield in full color. One hundred fifty years later Lady Bird Johnson chose the same eagle for her state dinner service.

SOME PRESIDENTS, such as Nixon and Kennedy, simply used their own china in the executive mansion, and none was especially commissioned. Nor did the vivacious Dolly Madison order new china. She owned a service with a buff border and intricate wheel patterns outlined in black, and she declared this to be the official state china.

But by contrast the spendthrift Mary Todd Lincoln (she was the one who once ordered 300 pairs of gloves within one year) ordered two sets of state china during her tenure as first lady. The first set had the federal eagle in the center, and a solid purple rim, a color she associated with royalty. When her husband was elected to a second term, she decided that called for another set of dishes, this time with simple buff borders and gold bands.

The very first set of state china was purchased by George Washington and featured the emblem of the Society of Cincinnati. (In 1960 one Cincinnati plate brought $5,200 at auction.) SHOWN IN THE picture is a replica of a plate which is somewhat of a mystery. Thomas Jefferson ordered state china from China, but it was never delivered, since the ship upon which it was carried was sunk by pirates. Artists are recreating this piece from a detailed drawing given the White House by Jefferson's heirs plus an entry from an 1876 auction catalogue which describes a similar plate: "A splendid plate of Chinese manufacture with rim and border diapered in dark blue relieved by gold tracery... the letter 'J' in gold enclosed in a shield, outline of blue enamel with thirteen stars. A helmet with visor closed, in light blue, surmounting shield."

You may see an offer for the sale of this replica through your credit card people starting this Christmas, since eight presidential plates are scheduled to be reproduced of fine clay, reinforced with Vermont marble. The plates will sell for $50 each, and one may collect all eight or all of one kind, to use in a table setting. They will be offered through the Travel & Leisure magazine of American Express Co.

'Icepick' bogged down story about prison life

"ICEPICK"

BY BRUCE DOBLER
Little Brown and Company, $8.95
A 50-year-old convict sat on an old wooden folding chair in the middle of a seedy room used for AA meetings, hardened by the 20 years he had been in prison off and on and facing 300 years on a multiple murder rap. He looked out over a small group and said, "Don't kid yourself, prisons are society's shitpile."

In equally coarse tones, Bruce Dobler's "Icepick" comes close to advancing that theory with some degree of success, but he gets all bogged down trying to give the liberal do-gooder side of the penal story a full play.

Set in Chicago, "Icepick," which is the vulgarization of the acronym for the mythical Illinois State Penitentiary in Chicago, is simply an Arthur Hailey-type novel about prisons.

DOBLER TAKES his cast of characters and spins a good yarn about their professional and private lives into a web ending with a climactic, but predictable, prison riot. While Dobler uses Hailey's style, he starts leaving bold-faced clues too soon and the astute reader is only forced to wade through 400-plus pages before the riot happens.

In his introduction, Dobler explains he talked with prison officials throughout the nation and "Icepick" is a composite picture about life and death inside a maximum security prison.

The novel tells an interesting story about the life of convicts, but Dobler gets a little bogged down because of his lack of descriptive powers and the compleated, but incomplete, descriptions of political and racial splinter groups that exist in the prison.

The author also establishes some strange standard early in the book about dealing with sex. He vividly describes several homosexual rapes, but leaves nothing but implication when talking about the relationship between several prison staffers. A minor point maybe, but it seems that Dobler is looking for shock value here.

The real interplay throughout the book comes between prison psychologist Charles Terry and the outsider, liberal sociologist Marvin Scott, who came into the prison to set up a civilian review board.

THE PERSPECTIVE of this novel vividly portrays the prison officials as being caught in the gap between inadequate funds and a sense that prisons are not meant to be state resorts.

Throughout the novel, Terry speaks with Scott and other penal critics to think of the victims, when they hear the convict's complaints of living conditions.

A look at 10 live albums

Playback

by Tom Von Malder

This week several live albums are looked at — from Sinatra to Emerson, Lake and Palmer and from Joni Mitchell to Mott the Hoople.

Record companies use live albums for several purposes. They can be a "great-hits" type package or a "state of the artist" documentation. They also bring back memories for those who saw the artist on tour and capture the excitement for those who missed the tour and might, after listening, want to see the artist perform the next time he's in town.

The 10 albums looked at here are better than the average batch of live albums, ranging from good to excellent. They are:

"The Main Event," Frank Sinatra at Madison Square Garden (Reprise records). Taken from the television show, it seems as much ego as talent went into the event — and that's a considerable amount of both.

Sinatra misses an occasional note and appears to be straining his voice at times, but the excitement and talk of the live performance more than make up for the few faults. Sinatra may be past his peak, but he is still the king. In addition to standards like "My Way," "My Kind of Town" and "The Lady Is a Tramp," Sinatra does some newer songs, including "Bad, Bad Leroy Brown" and "You Are the Sunshine of My Life."

"Miles of Aisles," Joni Mitchell and the L. A. Express (Asylum records) is a double album that works. Miss Mitchell goes through all her well-known songs (except that only one is from her last "Court and Spark" album), including such classics as "Both Sides Now" and "The Circle Game."

Two new songs, "Jericho" and "Love Or Money," are added also, but they are not up to her best work, being overly long love narratives. The backup work, headed by saxophonist Tom Scott, is excellent.

"The Gregg Allman Tour" (Capricorn records) is the second solo album from the Allman Brothers' pianist. It was recorded with a 24-piece orchestra which Allman brought with him.

Three of the sides are rather short (there are only 12 cuts on the whole two-record set) and it really doesn't get exciting until midway through the third side. Highlights are "Turn On Your Lovelight," "Oncoming Traffic" and "Will the Circle Be Unbroken." Guest artist Cowboy performs two songs and helps back Allman throughout the set.

"Newport In New York" (Buddah records) is 1973 festival highlights featuring Ray Charles, Aretha Franklin, the Staple Singers, Donny Hathaway and Stevie Wonder. Each of the seven songs is a highlight and they include Wonder on "Signed, Sealed, Delivered" and Miss Franklin on "Brand New Me."

"Together For the First Time . . . Live," B. B. King and Bobby Bland (ABC/Dunhill records) matches Bland's great blues voice with King's great blues guitar. Although they occasionally get in each other's way, the combination works. However, I think the album could have been truly great with more rehearsal and more singing together, rather than trading off vocals. A few moments do reach greatness.

"Live & In Concert," the Four Tops (ABC/Dunhill records) is a fun album. The Tops do their most recent hits and then reach back to the memory-filled days of 1965-67 to re-do "Reach Out (I'll Be There)," "Standing In the Shadows of Love" and "Baby I Need Your Lovin'." One of the few groups that easily remains popular through the years, the Tops show why in this one.

"A Moveable Feast," Fairport Convention (Island records). Sandy Denny is back with Fairport and the English folk group hasn't sounded this good in some time. Even the instrumentals, like "Fiddlers' Elbow," shine. The album is the group's 10th and hopefully the start of a brilliant new phase with Miss Denny, a very fine folk singer.

"Live," Mott the Hoople (Columbia records) recorded on Broadway and in England. Mott performs some of the best songs — "All the Way From Memphis" and "All the Young Dudes" among them — and some standards written by others which Mott hasn't recorded before. Kept to a single record, the excitement is faithfully captured and reproduced on record. Mott continues to improve as one of the best rock bands of today.

"Encore" Argent (Epic records). Rod Argent's band performs three songs each from the three previous albums, a new song and "Time of the Season," the hit by the Zombies, Argent's former group. Among the other selections are the group's best songs, including "Hold Your Head Up," "It's Only Money" and "God Gave Rock and Roll to You."

"Welcome Back, My Friends, To the Show That Never Ends — Ladies and Gentlemen Emerson, Lake and Palmer (Manticore records), is, like it's title, a marathon three-record set which is nearly impossible to get through in one sitting. The creators of "cathedral rock" have gone back to just about every innovative and interesting piece they have ever recorded.

The album, by eliminating thin spots, could easily be cut in half. The complete performances of "Taurus" and "Karn Evil 9," which take up nearly two-thirds of this live set, are available elsewhere and could have been condensed with no harm.

Entr'acte

Night Out

'Forty Carats' mars gala opening

by GENIE CAMPBELL
It would seem as though the new DRURY LANE EAST THEATRE in McCormick Place has everything going for it. Elegance has indeed been underscored from the gorgeous chandeliers to the red plush carpeting that squishes under your feet.

Add to that a black-tie formal premiere Wednesday where any more full-length mink would have become monotonous and bejeweled gowns refuted daily accounts of economic belt tightening.

But then the lights dimmed and all the mysticism and awe surrounding the christening of a new theater faded into complete boredom.

"FORTY CARATS" bombed out along with its star GINGER ROGERS, who has withstood the passing of years to an attractive degree, but somehow fell short on talent.

If "Forty Carats" is not the most stimulating of opening productions, having already fairly saturated the Chicago area, leastwise it seemed a safe bet. Lightly entertaining and sexually offbeat, the comedy concerns a mature, sophisticated woman past 40 with a professional reputation to maintain, who falls for a mere boy of 27.

It's a new twist to the age quandary and one that has done well on stage. But not Wednesday night.

If someone could have given the whole cast a shot of vitality, it would have helped.

Even Chicago's RAY RAYNER lacked any real gusto and GERALDINE KAY did all right as Grannie Maud, but she alone couldn't save a sinking ship.

MARCY VOSBURGH who played daughter Trina, received more salutations when she was active locally in community theater.

AL NUTT as the young handsome Peter Latham acted so mature as to appear staid and impersonal. I can't imagine what any woman would see in him. I think he's a drip. Maybe Miss Rogers thought so too. She showed complete indifference.

Staging was poor and amateurish with a set so complete as to appear cramped and cluttered. I got tired of peering through candelabras to see what was going on.

Mayor Daley seated in the front row maintained a slight smile throughout, but then it was expected of him. His wife is a member of the Drury Lane East Women's Advisory Board, whatever that means.

No thank-you. I'll remember earlier productions of "Forty Carats." Barbara Rush you couldn't beat. Even Zsa Zsa Gabor with all her frills held her own at Arlington Park Theatre. And Village Theatre's Lynn Jessen stood up to the best of them.

It is disheartening to shoot down any theater that has just opened its door for business. No denying, the new 903-seat theater-in-the-round is a "beaut." It could be a relatively inexpensive gala evening. Prices are rare. Tickets for general admission are priced from $3 to $4.75 depending whether you choose a week night or weekend. Dinner/theater combinations are available from $8 to $9.75. And I understand the food is very good.

But "Forty Carats" at its present pace will never last its 10-week expected run. I've got an idea. Let's begin all over again.

More DON KNOTTS is in store. The "nervous" comedian, who seems to be making ARLINGTON PARK THEATRE his home away from home, is coming back to the local theater to star in "NORMAN, IS THAT YOU?" The show opens with two performances on New Year's Eve, 6 p.m. ($12.50) and 9:30 p.m. ($15). The late show will include party hats, noisemakers and a champagne toast to welcome in the new year at midnight with Knotts and the other cast members.

The cast party for "13 RUE DE L'AMOUR," opening tonight at Arlington Park Theatre with LESLIE CARON and LOUIS JOURDAN, is being held at Le GOURMET in Arlington Heights immediately following the show.

COUNTRY CLUB THEATRE will open its holiday show, "CHAMPAGNE COMPLEX," on Tuesday. The comedy centers around a young girl who finds it difficult to keep her engagement when her fiancé discovers her own peculiar reaction to champagne. It's all bubbly, this one.

Opening tonight at MILL RUN THEATRE are TONY SANDLER and RALPH YOUNG in a show with RED BUTTONS. The three will entertain nightly through Dec. 15.

PICKWICK HOUSE in Palatine recently received the "Good Dining Award" from the American Diners Society. Newly reopened after extensive remodeling, the restaurant features both nightly entertainment and fashion shows over the noon hour Tuesdays and Thursdays.

Will there ever be another legend?

by STEPHEN FORD

Not quite 40 years ago, the scrawny singer from Hoboken who currently refers to himself as "Old blue eyes" and humbly bills his sold-out concerts as "The Main Event," prompted a new brand of worship for show business performers — something that bridged delirium and decadence.

Rudy Vallee had known worship a decade earlier, but the bobby-soxers who stormed New York's Paramount Theatre in the '40s swooned over Sinatra with an intensity rivaled only by the alarm of parents and clergy.

A decade after that, a truckdriver from Memphis with spring-mounted hips surfaced nationally to eclipse the frenzy even Sinatra had generated. Again, parents, educators, clergy and patriots traced the popularity of Elvis Presley to teen-aged rebelliousness, antischool attitudes, godlessness and communism.

FROM THAT POINT, the rest is comparatively easy. We all know that 10 years later, four young men from Liverpool appeared to influence every thought almost every kid had at that time about music-hair-drugs-clothes and sex.

These are the legends, the towering personalities responsible for so much more beyond mere entertainment. But another decade has passed since Beatlemania and we're overdue for another legend. Popular music has been in a definite "holding pattern" for the past four years.

Though the next legend may not necessarily evolve from rock, it seems more likely to come from there, say record soothsayers.

But asking the soothsayers what they believe will be the next legend is like asking for a cure for hiccups — everyone has his own ideas.

ROCK AS A barometer for what is and what's to come may be narrowing the field substantially, but remember, the pop and middle-of-the road category rarely blazes new roads into the musical forest. Pop follows the tried-and-true paths.

Certainly jazz is innovative, but it always teeters on the perimeter of popular acceptance and besides, every few years it makes a highly touted but very ephemeral comeback.

The Country and Western market is as healthy as ever, but don't look there for a new messiah. One of the leading promoters in that field, Tulsa's Jim Halsey, who owns a chunk of just about every C&W luminary around, says, "C&W may not be as trend-setting as rock, but it's consistent. Our fans are faithful and sales are steady — no ups or downs." Safe, but certainly not the stuff of legends.

ROCK APPEARS TO be where all the real progress and growth have come. And in rock's continuing drive to achieve that final triumph, a sound that will finally quiet the critics sniping since its birth 20 years ago, it has found itself with some mighty strange bedfellows. In the past seven years, rock has mated with jazz, country, folk, classical, bluegrass, glitter, pop and raunch. And through all these changes, not a single "legend" has emerged.

Some thought that David Bowie was the next anointed star. His style of theatrical rock and glittery presence was certainly novel, but Bowie alienated as many people as he attracted. And to be a bonafide legend, your music must last more than two years. According to industry prognosticators, Bowie's star is already fading along with his glitter.

So who will next be responsible for saturating our airwaves, turning our children against us and bombarding us with officially endorsed lunch pails or bubblebath? The reasons people paid to predict that sort of thing are playing it so close to the vest is simply because they don't know either.

MARK MEYERSON, director of artists and repertoire for Atlantic Records, points a cautious finger towards jazz. "Herbie Hancock is the first jazz musician to get a single in the top 100 in a long time," he said. "His single 'Chameleon' went gold recently and that shows that jazz certainly has wider appeal these days. People are dancing again and progressive rock was never good for that. It was too hard to dance to. But jazz is mainly music and ideal for dancing."

"As far as legends go, who can predict? Experience shows that they always

Elvis: the '50s

take us by surprise. We can't see them even when they're right in front of us. When they hit, they hit fast."

Meyerson estimated the closest thing to a superstar right now is Stevie Wonder. "He's been around for 10 years at least," explained Meyerson, and he appeals to everyone, but he does lack the influence Presley or The Beatles had.

"Sly of the Family Stone wielded more influence in music and lifestyle than Wonder, but he's declining. Sly was one of the most creative forces to come along in six years, but he never landed in the mass market. It could be sociological. He's black and can't count on the same acceptance white groups from America or Britain can. Maybe if sly were white, we'd have another legend."

Ira Mayer, a young man who charts the weekly FM radio airplay report for Record World magazine, says there are no legends looming at all in the musical horizon.

"The trend seems to be major groups from the 60s splitting up to reform with members of other big groups: Crosby, Stills, Nash & Young; the Southern, Hillman and Furry band or Bad Company. But that's nothing new, big bands of the '40s were always switching personnel. Actually, I don't see anything new."

"ANY GROUP with the potential to be a legend has got to count on the big record labels to promote the hell out of 'em and the companies are very careful these days, even stingy. And that's because sales are down. So are new releases and the signing of new artists. If they're wary of signing new acts, the chances of finding a new legend are, naturally, lower."

"In the late '60s, a lot of mediocre bands could go gold (sales over a million dollars) even before they released their album. Now, only the big, BIG, bands do that. A band that sells 500,000 units now is hot stuff — Bachman Turner Overdrive or ZZ Top — but that's nothing compared to the sales groups could expect a few years ago."

But what no one in the industry did consider is something first uttered some years ago by rock entrepreneur Bill Graham. The music industry, and rock in particular, is not the idealistic playground it once was. When the Beatles arrived, rock was still in its genesis — too young to be sullied by money or sapped of its creative juices by promoters.

WHEN PROMOTERS later applied their energy to spawning commercial products like The Archies or The Monkees, it was the beginning of the end. And rock's exploitation wasn't restricted to the promo men. Just ask industry people how shrewd a businessman Mick Jagger is.

It used to be that rock stars were made, not born and God didn't make them — we did.

But rock has ceased to be the tangible result of a sensitive artist sharing his soul. It is, instead, a showcase used to rake in as many bucks as possible. Many performers rarely care about what is the best arena to present their talent but rather consider what will hold the greatest amount of people in order to reap the greatest profit.

Graham blamed this for the demise of rock palaces such as his, claiming they were driven out of business by enormous convention halls and civic centers. He said, in a vituperative denunciation, that the greed of artists, managers, record companies and promoters would murder rock.

And they may have.

Why unleaded gas?

If you are thinking about buying one of the new 1975 model cars, it's important to know that most of these can use only unleaded gasoline. Why? It has to do with clean air and the catalytic converter, a device in most 1975 cars for reducing auto exhaust pollutants.

A TREE FILLED with mittens, hats and scarves was given to Santa Teresita Mission in Palatine by Northwest Suburban Alumnae of Kappa Delta Sorority. Showing it to Daniel and Sonya Hernandez (not related) is KD Maureen Rossini. The articles were donated by the alumnae at their annual Christmas bazaar. They also presented a check for $255 to the mission, partial proceeds of their flower and sweets sale held in May.

Okay to sleep with plants in room

Dear Dorothy: It's perfectly all right to sleep with plants in a room, but it's also good to know that photosynthesis — the process by which plants use carbon dioxide and give off oxygen — occurs only in the presence of light. In the absence of light, plants respire just like we do — using oxygen and giving off carbon dioxide.

Many hospitals used to remove green plants from sickrooms at night, but the current practice is to let the plants stay since they don't give off enough carbon dioxide or use enough oxygen to worry about. — Mrs. Ruth Housek

Thank you. It's time all of us understood photosynthesis.

Dear Dorothy: Last November I bought a turkey for Thanksgiving and then my daughter came in with one, too. So I froze mine and it's still in the freezer. Now, I'm wondering if it still might be okay. — Mrs. Geraldine Popowski

It certainly ought to be. All the books say a turkey kept at zero stays perfectly for 12 months. I've done it myself.

Dear Dorothy: The editor of our county paper said that if we wanted to preserve our bicentennial edition, to wrap it well and put it in a drawer where the light could not get to it. He said it will stay white for years. He said he has this energetic author. "It's not as important that it be strenuous as that it be regular. Five minutes a day is better than one hour a week," she emphasizes. "Get down on the floor and stretch. Once you're in the habit, it's as easy as brushing your teeth."

She also recommends participation in some sports. She herself loves to jog and play golf.

"KNOW YOURSELF" is another guide offered in the book — not what you used to be or what you would like to be — but what you are now. "Take a good look at yourself in that full-length mirror," Dolly urges. "Make the most of what you've got. Decide on the look you want and take advantage of certain tricks to achieve it. Find out what works best for you."

Her most important advice on remaining youthful is to become involved with other people. "The minute you get interested in another human being someplace in your world," she states, "you develop the ability to look out of yourself and then look back at yourself."

"You can't really see yourself until you see other people," says Dolly Wageman.

"The Six-Week Make Yourself Over Plan" is a Signet paperback from New American Library ($1.25).

The homeline

by Dorothy Ritz

Items from papers 50 years old that are as white as new. — Nellie Lee

Interesting — and a bit puzzling. The professor here has collected and saved similar papers, many in scrapbooks, protected from light. While still legible, many of the papers have yellowed.

Dear Dorothy: How do you make gravy without lumps? — Joan Roberts
Mix with a whisk. You'll never have a lump.

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to her in care of Suburban Living, Padlock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

Soroptimists seek entries in training award program

To promote its program of "Women Helping Women," Soroptimist International of Des Plaines is seeking applicants for a $1,000 Training Award. Two awards of $1,000 each will be presented on May 15 by Midwestern Region of Soroptimist International from among the local winners submitted by clubs in seven states.

Jan. 1, 1975, is the deadline for submitting completed entry forms to local chairman Margaret K. Moehling. Entry blanks may be obtained from Mrs. Moehling at 678 Lee St., Room 202, Des Plaines 60018, or by calling her at 634-3838. They are also available from her co-chairmen Ruth Wendt, 827-5535, and Sylvia Roman, 827-4272.

The Soroptimist Training Awards program was established to assist mature women in upward mobility, in retraining, and in entry or re-entry into the labor market. "The money can be used for part-time or full-time nonacademic study or schooling based on financial need, ultimate goal and potential value to the community," said Mrs. Moehling.

MEMBERS OF Soroptimist International, a classified service organization for professional and executive business women, are not eligible for competition. Each applicant must also submit with her application two personal reference forms and two photos (small snapshot is sufficient).

Judging will be on the basis of past performance, education, job, goals and ambitions, improvement of status, potential in attaining career goal, financial need and community interest.

Because of the Jan. 1 deadline, interested women are urged to contact one of the Soroptimist Training Award committee members as soon as possible.

Beauty expert practices discipline she preaches

by ALISON GODDARD

The youth cult can be a great incentive to middle-aged women, says a health and beauty expert from Hollywood, the glamor capital.

"I don't think mature women should try to look like ingenues — or baby dolls," says Dolly Reed Wageman, West Coast editor of Ladies Home Journal and author of "The Six-Week Make Yourself Over Plan," "but they should maintain their looks and health and be 'contemporary.'"

Slim, statuesque and over-40 herself, Mrs. Wageman reflects her belief in "looking your best at all times." She maintains her own weight rigorously.

"I got on the scales stark naked every morning of my life, right after I get up," she smiles. "I allow myself a three-pound leeway. The minute I get to the top of those three pounds, I diet until I lose them again!"

DOLLY WAGEMAN'S book offers a disciplined program of self-betterment that includes advice on nutrition, exercise, hair care, cosmetics and fashion. By following the manual carefully, a woman should see a definite weight loss by the end of the first week, noticeable improvement in skin and hair by the end of the second week, and so on through the six weeks.

Exercise is a key to good health says

Special education leader Wightman says he'll resign

John Wightman, executive director of the special education programs under the Northwest Education Cooperative, has submitted his resignation to the NEC governing board.

Wightman, who has headed the special education programs in the Northwest suburbs since February 1969, said Thursday he expects the board will act on his resignation at its Dec. 14 meeting. He said he and his family will return to California when the resignation becomes effective in June.

Wightman in recent months has drawn fire for his administration of the Dwyer School program for emotionally disturbed children, which was headed by school psychologist John Whipple. Cook County Schools Supt. Richard Martwick charged Whipple was unqualified for his job and also made charges against Wightman's administration.

WHIPPLE'S SCHOOL psychologist certificate was suspended and recommended for revocation last month by the state Teacher Certification Board as a result of Martwick's charges. His case is awaiting a final decision by State Schools Supt. Michael Bakalis. Martwick said after the decision on Whipple that he planned no disciplinary action against Wightman, who assigned Whipple to the Dwyer job.

Wightman said the controversy surrounding Dwyer was not the reason he had decided to resign. "My family and I lived in California for 15 years and we have always planned to return there," he said. "My daughter will graduate this spring from Forest View High School and so we decided to go back now."

Wightman said he does not yet have a job in California. He said, "I feel a new director here could strengthen the cooperative at a time when we've had some problems. I expect to do everything in my capacity to leave this cooperative with the strongest exemplary special education programs in this state."

When Wightman came to the Northwest suburbs there were very few special education programs in the area. During his tenure, the Kirk Center for the Mentally Handicapped was built and programs were started for physically handicapped, emotionally disturbed and other handicapped children.

Opportunity For A Public Hearing Notice

The State of Illinois, Department of Transportation, is planning to improve the intersection of Des Plaines River Road (U.S. Route 45) and Milwaukee Avenue (Illinois Route 31) in Cook County.

The proposed improvement involves the widening of the three legs of this "Y" type intersection. On the southeast leg of Milwaukee Avenue, the roadway will be widened to two 12-foot lanes in each direction separated by a 6-foot mountable median. On the southwest leg of Des Plaines River Road the roadway will be widened to two 12-foot lanes in each direction separated by a 6-foot mountable median. The typical cross-section will match that at the Palatine Road interchange and will consist of two 12-foot lanes in the northbound direction and three 12-foot lanes in the southbound direction separated by a variable width mountable median.

Maps, drawings, Negative Declaration (a report discussing the effect on the environment), and other pertinent information developed by the Illinois Department of Transportation may be viewed and copied at the office of the Department of Transportation, located at 300 North State Street, Room 911, Chicago, Illinois, up to December 27, 1974.

Notice is hereby given that all interested persons who wish a Public Hearing for this intersection safety improvement should notify the Illinois Department of Transportation in writing. All written requests for a Public Hearing should be addressed to: Sigmund C. Zieglowski, District Engineer, Illinois Department of Transportation, 300 North State Street, Chicago, Illinois, 60610. Any request for a Public Hearing for this project should be postmarked no later than December 27, 1974.

The absence of any written request for a Public Hearing will be considered by the State as evidence that no Public Hearing is necessary and therefore, no such hearing will be held.

Save hundreds of dollars on your holiday shopping!

Now, America's No. 1 Factory Buying Service Comes to the Greater Chicago Area

Join 970,000 Value-Wise Americans Who Buy DIRECT from UNITY at FACTORY PRICES plus 7% service charge

Spend the day in the beautiful Schaumburg area — Restaurants — Entertainment and the world's largest enclosed shopping area are only minutes away, of course. Shop and SAVE at the Unity Member/Mart.

Save on gas... do all your gift and home shopping under one roof, in Unity's exciting, new 120,000 square foot showroom and warehouse. No waiting... Immediate pick-up at our service desk... take your new merchandise home with you.

You're clobbered by skyrocketing food prices, higher housing costs, higher clothing prices. In fact, the cost of almost everything you buy... keeps going up-up-UP!

And it really hurts. Especially when you buy "big-ticket" items like appliances, TV, furniture, jewelry, tires, cameras and stereo equipment. Did you know you could overpay as much as 50% almost every time you spend money these days?

That's a lot of hard-earned dollars down the drain. And all because of the system.

But now you can beat the system... because we've changed the rules.

Our name is Unity Buying Service. For over 10 years, we've been fighting inflation. And we've found the way to win. A way that ends the inflated prices you've been paying for many things you buy. A method so successful, you can save you hundreds, perhaps even thousands of dollars during the year ahead.

You always buy at the factory price plus 7% service charge. The way UNITY BUYING SERVICE works is really quite simple. As a new member, you receive our 468-page, color catalog of first-quality, name-brand merchandise. It contains more than 10,000 dependable, nationally advertised items, the kind featured by reputable department stores and merchants in your area and in well-known national mail order catalogs. But there's one vital difference between UNITY's catalog and others you may have seen. The selling prices shown in our catalog are NOT your prices. Your prices are astonishingly low factory prices provided for you in the confidential Factory Price Section that all club members receive. This Price Section gives you your cost for each of the thousands of top-quality items in your UNITY catalog. You pay only the low factory price listed plus a modest 7% service charge.

Guaranteed first quality national brands

Everything you order from UNITY is brand new, nationally recognized, first-quality merchandise in original factory cartons. Everything is guaranteed to please you... you must be completely satisfied or your money will be refunded. Your orders are filled promptly. (Only exceptions are extra-heavy or special order items not in our warehouse.) We are not brokers or agents. You deal directly with UNITY — and only UNITY — at all times.

Here's why it makes good sense to join Unity now...

• Unity has been in business for over 10 years. Since the first day we opened our doors, we've been pledged to prompt, efficient, dependable service. Maybe that's why we've become America's Number One factory buying service with more than 970,000 satisfied members.

• We do an annual business that runs into millions of dollars. In the last 6 years alone, we've sold more than $150,000,000.00 — that's ONE HUNDRED AND FIFTY MILLION DOLLARS — worth of merchandise. With such tremendous volume, we can buy direct from manufacturers — eliminate the middlemen — and pass the huge savings along to you, our members.

• Outstanding Bank and Credit References. Unity enjoys excellent relations and references. And is a member of the Chamber of Commerce.

Senate does turnabout, votes to OK $2,500 pay raises

by BOB LAHEY
SPRINGFIELD — Pay raises of $2,500 per year for Illinois legislators were approved and sent to Gov. Daniel Walker for his signature Thursday night after the Illinois Senate reversed a decision of a day earlier and voted for the pay increases.

The Senate had voted against the pay hike Wednesday, but reconsidered its action Thursday. The Illinois House swiftly approved the amended pay raise when it was returned from the Senate, by a vote of 111 to 31.

Approval of the pay increase in the Senate came less than 24 hours after the Senate had rejected it. Wednesday, the Senate voted 25 to 23 for the raise, with a three-fifths majority of 36 votes needed to make it effective for the new term beginning in January. Thursday the measure received precisely the number of votes needed, passing by a margin of 36 to 18.

The House earlier had approved pay raises of $5,000 per year, and acceptance of the reduced increases was a foregone conclusion. Among the 16 representatives for the Northwest suburbs, only two voted against the increase. They were State Rep. John Friedland, R-South Elgin, and State Rep. John E. Porter, R-Evanston. State Rep. Robert Juckett, R-Park Ridge, who is hospitalized with a leg ailment, was recorded as absent.

AMONG senators from the Northwest suburbs, only State Sen. David Regner, R-Mount Prospect, who has opposed all spending measures in this closing session of the 78th General Assembly, voted against the pay increase, which raised legislators' annual salaries from $17,500 to $20,000.

State Sen. John A. Graham, R-Barrington, who originally voted against the pay raise, voted for it Thursday. Graham said at first that economic conditions would not permit the legislature to increase its own pay.

Neither Graham nor Regner, however, will benefit immediately from the pay raise. Both are in midterm and cannot receive pay increases until reelected. Graham will receive an added $1,500 to his wages as assistant leader of the Senate Republicans.

The bill contains increased payment for members of the party leadership as well as an increase in expense allowances from $32 to $36 per day, and an added $2,000 a year for office expenses, for a yearly total of $12,000 for office expenses.

STATE SEN. Bradley M. Glass, R-Northfield, who had opposed the $5,000 increase, was responsible for the amendment reducing the raise to $2,500. He voted for the $2,500 raise both times a vote was taken. State Sen. John Nimrod, R-Skokie, and State Sen. Howard Mohr, (Continued on Page 2)

New building director seen by year's end

Wheeling Village Mgr. George Passolt Thursday said the position of building director, vacant for 10 months, probably will be filled by the end of the month.

The position was vacated by William Bieber last February after his indictment by federal grand jury. At the time, Bieber took a leave of absence, but later resigned after pleading guilty to extortion, conspiracy to commit extortion, perjury and filing a false income tax return.

Since April, Robert Kaminski, an electrical inspector, has been serving as acting building director. As soon as a new director is hired, Kaminski will assume his former duties.

PASSOLT SAID about 15 persons have applied for the vacant post, but he and the village board have not made a decision. "We still have a couple more people to interview before we decide," Passolt said. "I would think a decision will come by the end of the year."

Herb Lortz

Earlier this year, village officials said the position would be filled by the end of the summer. The village, however, has kept the job open in the hope of getting more applicants.

Passolt said some applications have come from local residents and others have come as a result of advertisements in national and state publications.

Among the applicants is Plan Commission Chairman Herbert Lortz, a carpenter.

SINCE BIEBER'S resignation, the village has separated the building and zoning directorships which in the past were combined into one post. Separating the two responsibilities, Passolt said, will create better internal control.

He said the decision to separate the posts results in part from the scandal surrounding Bieber's indictment and conviction. The manager said he and his assistants are handling zoning matters, while normal building department activities are being handled by the acting building director and later will be assumed by the new director.

Bieber was one of six former and present Wheeling and Cook County officials indicted Jan. 31 after a year-long federal probe into shakedowns of Wheeling developers. Bieber and three others have pleaded guilty. He currently is serving a one-year sentence in the federal prison in Springfield, Mo.

'New city' plans delayed 6 weeks

Efforts to incorporate Prospect Heights have been delayed an additional six weeks because transcripts of the court hearing are unavailable.

Both attorneys for the numerous objectors to incorporation and the Prospect Heights Improvement Assn. attorney need the transcript before they can submit written arguments to Circuit Court Judge Harry G. Comerford.

Comerford Thursday rescheduled oral arguments for 10 a.m. Jan. 16 in the Chicago Civic Center.

If Comerford eventually acts favorably on the incorporation request, residents of the unincorporated area surrounded by Mount Prospect, Wheeling and Arlington Heights would have to approve the formation of the new city at the ballot box.

Consultants to study efficiency

A consulting firm recently hired by Wheeling has started a comprehensive study which is supposed to result in more efficient village government.

Village Mgr. George Passolt said Thursday, the firm, Yarger and Associates Inc. began the study this week. It is expected to take the firm three to four months and will cost the village $8,500.

"Our primary goal is to get you more efficiency for less money," a representative of the firm recently told the village board. "We want to show you how to improve the level of service so residents get more for their tax dollar."

After the study is completed, the representative said, his firm will make recommendations to the village board.

Before hiring Yarger and Associates, the village board considered two other consulting firms. Trustee Donald Jackson, who proposed the study, suggested the village hire Booz, Allen and Hamilton at a cost of $18,000. Other board members, however, said the cost was too expensive.

Jackson said he proposed the study because of the recent scandal in which six former and present Wheeling and Cook County officials were indicted by a federal grand jury following a year-long investigation into shakedowns of Wheeling developers. Four of the six have pleaded guilty and two are serving sentences in federal prisons.

"I hope the study will reestablish the credibility of the village," Jackson said.

Think green

The real Christmas tree is coming back, but be ready to look a little harder and pay a little more

If you're buying a Christmas tree this year, be prepared to pay 10 to 15 per cent more than you did last year.

And be prepared to look early, because the supply of trees is more limited than last year. Wholesalers say fewer pine and spruce trees are being cut and shipped this year, possibly because the tree market was so bad last year.

Last year, prices rose by as much as $3 a tree. The only trees that may be unusually expensive this year are Canadian trees, hit by budworms this year, and trees taller than 15 feet, said two Chicago tree wholesalers.

"LAST YEAR WAS a disaster. The Christmas tree sellers lost their pants with the energy crisis," said Joseph Naville, owner of Joseph Naville Co., Chicago, a wholesale tree dealer.

"I think the green Christmas tree is coming back," Naville said. Excluding last year, wholesale prices have not gone up much on green trees in the last five to seven years, he said. "Wholesale prices are still low," Naville said, but added that retailers often raise prices considerably.

A spokesman for M. Walter Christmas Trees, Chicago, said the tree market is "up a little bit." He said that heavy snows in Canada are delaying tree deliveries, but added that price levels should only go up "10 or 15 per cent."

LOCAL DEALERS now are stocked with trees ranging in price from $3 for four-foot tabletop trees to $50 for 16-foot giants. Klehm's Nursery said they have a large supply of short-needed balsam and long-needed Douglas fir trees in heights of four to eight feet. Amilings Flowerland has trees up to 15 feet and a variety of color-flocked trees, including black, "to go with every decor," said Michael Orr, salesman at Amilings.

Frank Stanek, assistant manager of Klehm's Nursery, said potted trees that can be planted sell for $20 to $30. Balsams sell for $2.95 to $11.95 and more for those larger than eight feet. Douglas fir trees sell for $15 to $20.

Many local Jaycee and church groups will be selling Christmas trees again this year.

Blacktop to be removed today

Twardziks lose battle with county over driveway

Stanley and Marian Twardzik, 1764 E. Euclid Ave., Mount Prospect, have apparently lost their battle to keep their 30-foot driveway.

Workmen cut the driveway into two parts Thursday in preparation for removing that portion of the blacktop which exceeds county limits. Mrs. Twardzik said she expects the workmen to return today to remove the blacktop.

Twardzik said he widened his driveway six years ago, because he needed more room to turn into his property from Euclid Avenue, which has a 45 m.p.h. speed limit. The county, however, says that Twardzik never obtained a permit for the work, and therefore must comply with 1974 department standards.

Twardzik said a permit was obtained for the work, but he said he did not have an extra copy.

Although county standards call for 16-foot-wide driveways, Mrs. Twardzik said the workmen are only removing six feet from the 30-foot driveway. Dan Cohen, county highway construction supervisor, was unavailable to comment on how much of the driveway was to be removed.

When workmen showed up Thursday morning to remove a section of the driveway, Mrs. Twardzik made an attempt to stop the work. The confrontation, however, was minor compared to last month when the Twardziks parked their cars on the property to block the workmen.

"I have no choice in the matter," Mrs. Twardzik said, when asked why the same tactics weren't applied Thursday. She said she had hoped to get some help from the governor's office, but said the workmen arrived too soon.

IT WAS A STANDOFF for a while when workmen showed up at the Stanley Twardziks, 1764 E. Euclid Ave., Mount Prospect, to remove six feet of their driveway. Mrs. Twardzik, right, eventually let the workmen begin sawing off a section of the blacktop which exceeds county standards. She expects workmen to remove the blacktop today.

MSD approves $401 million budget

Metropolitan Sanitary District trustees approved a $401 million budget Thursday and predicted the 1975 budget will mean a tax rate of 38.13 cents per $100 assessed valuation on tax bills paid in 1976.

The budget, increased steeply over the 1974 budget of $218 million, plus hopes on federal and state grants for engineering design and construction projects.

The anticipated tax rate is 1.57 cents per $100 assessed valuation higher than the 35.56 cent rate MSD officials anticipate on the 1974 tax bills homeowners will receive next spring.

The budget approved Thursday increased by 4.3 per cent the recommendations the MSD general superintendent made to the board in September. The increases came as board members made additions in 22 separate budget hearings which included a $30,000 planning study on use of MSD land, a $225,000 increase in the cost of health insurance premiums for MSD employees and $50,000 to finance public relations activities in Fulton County for the MSD land reclamation program and to scientifically monitor pollution levels at district plants.

The Civic Federation, the only agency to testify at a formal hearing on the budget earlier this week, criticized the MSD board's decision to give nonunion workers a 9 per cent pay hike and said a 3 per cent cost of living increase would have been sufficient because MSD workers are paid better than many private industry employees.

IN OTHER ACTION Thursday, the MSD board discussed plans to obtain rights-of-way for three of the tunnels that will collect sewage under Mount Prospect.

The tunnels, which will carry sanitary sewage from Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Wheeling, Elk Grove Village, Buffalo Grove, Des Plaines and Rolling Meadows to the O'Hare Water Reclamation plant at Elmhurst Road and Oakton Street in Des Plaines, will be the subject of a public hearing at 7:30 p.m. Dec. 19 at the Mount Prospect Community Center, 600 S. See-Gwan Ave.

The right-of-way ordinance revealed the MSD plans to negotiate to buy permanent easements for the tunnels in three locations — a 20-foot wide strip north of Oakton Street from Elmhurst Road to Busse Road, a small parcel at Elmhurst Road and Lonnquist Boulevard and a strip north of Lincoln Street and east of Busse Road.

The MSD's request for easements across public lands such as parkways in Mount Prospect has been delayed by village officials until after the public hearing on the tunnels.

Mid-'75 completion in forecast

Work on library ahead of schedule

by JOE FRANZ

Construction of the North Suburban Library System's new headquarters in Wheeling is ahead of schedule and officials are predicting it will be finished by mid-1975.

The new facility is being built on the north side of Dundee Road, just east of the Wheeling U.S. Post Office, 250 W. Dundee. The structure will cost about $1 million and will serve as the administrative center for the library system.

"Right now construction is 30 days ahead of schedule," said Elliot Kanner, resources coordinator for the library system. "If everything goes as planned we should be able to move into the new facility by June 1."

"Of course this is assuming there are no problems with bad weather, strikes or obtaining construction materials," Elliot said. "Up until now we haven't had any problems."

WORK ON THE new headquarters started in late September and as of Thursday, Elliot said it was about 25 to 30 per cent complete. Most of the masonry work is finished, he said, and workers have started on the roof.

Elliot said the one-story facility will replace the current library system headquarters in Morton Grove. "Our lease runs out next September and it's almost guaranteed we'll be out of there by then," he said.

Robert McLaren, library system director, said Wheeling was chosen as the site for the facility because it is in the geographical center of the district. The two-acre site was chosen after the library system looked at more than 40 sites in Arlington Heights, Wheeling, Northbrook, Deerfield and Glenview.

The director said the Dundee Road location is desirable because it is on a major road and is within a municipality that can provide business resources and good police and fire protection.

THE LIBRARY SYSTEM is a service organization for 31 public libraries in the North and Northwest suburbs. It provides member libraries with access to books, films, periodicals and facilities not available from local resources. The new building will include 20,000-square feet of meeting rooms, office space, storage and work space.

The new facility has been in the planning stages for more than two years, but has met several delays. The project was at a standstill for several months last year because a $200,000 federal grant was delayed when former President Richard M. Nixon impounded funds allocated under the federal library service and construction act.

McLaren said the library system could not proceed with the planning of the building because some of its board members were hesitant to do that before being assured of getting the grant. The grant was awarded last December.

Early this year, the project met another delay when Wheeling officials held up the issuance of a building permit because of a disagreement over traffic control measures being provided at the site.

Arlington library 3rd in circulation

If you put all the books circulated by the Arlington Heights Memorial Library end to end, the trail would stretch to Niles or Addison.

More practically speaking, this means that for the second year in a row, the Arlington Heights library's circulation has been rated third among public libraries in the state by the Illinois State Library. Only the Chicago and Rockford public libraries circulate more books and materials.

Those who love libraries and statistics will delight in the fact that during this year, the Arlington library circulated 787,388 items or 11 books per resident. Arlington's circulation accounted for 18.4 per cent of the total state library circulation of 42,765,250 items.

The Arlington Heights library circulated more books than public libraries in Springfield, 748,733; Peoria, 729,194; and Evanston, 689,521.

Frank Dempsey, executive librarian, said the circulation of library books in the village during the last 20 years has increased 1,400 per cent. Twenty years ago, the library circulated 50,291 volumes.

President Ford cites efforts of Watt Watchers

by JOE SWICKARD

The Palatine Watt Watchers, an energy conservation club, has received recognition from President Ford. Now all they have to do is wait for their electric bills.

The 11-household club was formed through the efforts of Pamela Mitchell after watching Ford's anti-inflation message to the country in October. A peek at her electric bill convinced her that she and her family could fight inflation and conserve energy at the same time by being more mindful of how they use electricity.

The Mitchells and other residents of the Winston Park subdivision hoped, when the club was formed, to cut their next light bill in half. The next bills are due about the middle of this month, and Mrs. Mitchell admitted the Watt Watchers are getting a little nervous as the deadline nears.

BUT NO MATTER how they fare on their bills, their efforts resulted in a personal letter of commendation from the President.

Mrs. Mitchell wrote Ford explaining her club's goals and hoped for an answer.

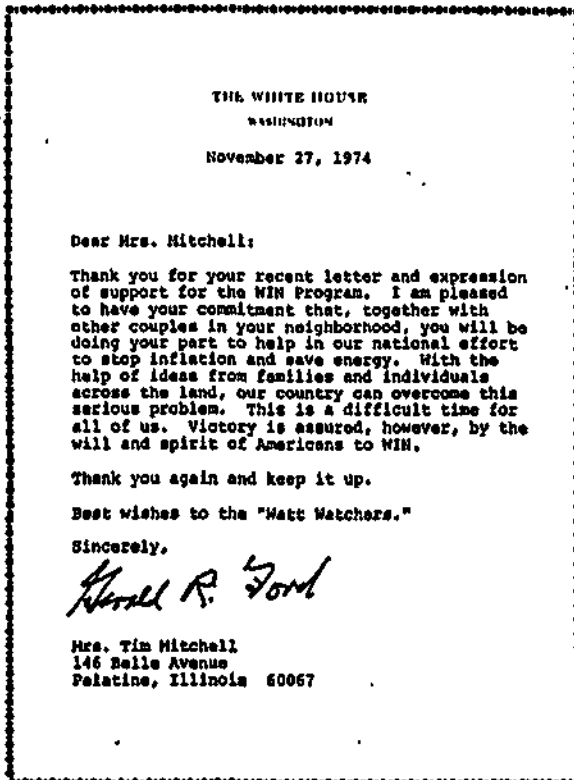

"We had heard he personally answered the letters he received. Especially those from children. It took quite a long time to get his answer. But it's his personal signature, and there are no secretary's initials either. It's not a form letter," she said.

The President wrote on official embossed White House stationery: "I am pleased to have your commitment that, together with other couples in your neighborhood, you will be doing your part to help . . . stop inflation and save energy."

Besides the Presidential letter, Mrs. Mitchell said her idea is catching on elsewhere. A disk jockey in Indiana heard of her methods and started a similar group in his home town.

A CLUB OF 12 families in Mount Prospect also has been formed, Mrs. Mitchell said. She said there are probably other clubs that she is not aware of.

Even before the October message, the Mitchells were trying to ease the energy crunch. Last Christmas, for example, they did without exterior electrically-lighted decorations.

"This year we were told it was all right to have the outside lights. We are going to decorate one small tree outside, plus the one in the house," she said.

Bond reduced for youth facing shooting charges

Bond was reduced Thursday for an 18-year-old Wheeling youth charged with attempted murder and aggravated battery in a Nov. 27 shooting spree that injured two women on Dundee Road in Wheeling.

Wheeling police said bond for Paul R. Gantz Jr., 945 Wilshire Dr., was reduced from $50,000 to $20,000. Gantz was expected to post the required 10 per cent of the bond in cash within 24 hours. A court hearing is scheduled for Jan. 3 in the Arlington Heights branch of Circuit Court.

Police said several shots were fired about 1:30 p.m. Nov. 27 in the area of Dundee Road near Jack London Junior High School. One bullet or pellet smashed a passing car's front passenger side window and a fragment lodged in the head of Lella Edgerton, 46, of 758 Lake View Dr., Wheeling. Mrs. Edgerton is recovering from surgery at Holy Family Hospital, Des Plaines.

THE OTHER WOMAN wounded in the incident, Barbara Petykowski, 298 N. Ashland Ave., Palatine, was hit in the hand but did not require hospital treatment. She told police she heard five shots.

Police arrested Gantz about 5 p.m. Wednesday when two detectives saw him in a car they stopped. Police said he matches the description given to them.

Police Thursday said they believed Mrs. Edgerton was not a preselected victim of the shooting incident. They also said they are unsure what type of weapon was used because lab reports are not completed.

Scouting news

The Scouts last month took a trip to a U.S. Coast Guard station in Wilmette. Gary Grabowski made the arrangements.

Senate does turnabout, votes to OK $2,500 pay raises

by BOB LAHEY
SPRINGFIELD — Pay raises of $2,500 per year for Illinois legislators were approved and sent to Gov. Daniel Walker for his signature Thursday night after the Illinois Senate reversed a decision of a day earlier and voted for the pay increases.

The Senate had voted against the pay hike Wednesday, but reconsidered its action Thursday. The Illinois House swiftly approved the amended pay raises when it was returned from the Senate, by a vote of 111 to 31.

Approval of the pay increase in the Senate came less than 24 hours after the Senate had rejected it. Wednesday, the Senate voted 25 to 23 for the raise, with a three-fifths majority of 36 votes needed to make it effective for the new term beginning in January. Thursday the measure received precisely the number of votes needed, passing by a margin of 36 to 18.

The House earlier had approved pay raises of $5,000 per year, and acceptance of the reduced increases was a foregone conclusion. Among the 15 representatives for the Northwest suburbs, only two voted against the increase. They were State Rep. John Friedland, R-South Elgin, and State Rep. John E. Porter, R-Evanston. State Rep. Robert Juckett, R-Park Ridge, who is hospitalized with a leg ailment, was recorded as absent.

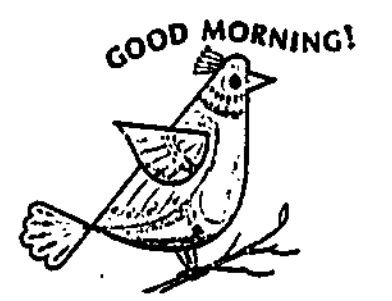

AMONG senators from the Northwest suburbs, only State Sen. David Regner, R-Mount Prospect, who has opposed all spending measures in this closing session of the 78th General Assembly, voted against the pay increase, which raised legislators' annual salaries from $17,500 to $20,000.

State Sen. John A. Graham, R-Barrington, who originally voted against the pay raise, voted for it Thursday. Graham said at first that economic conditions would not permit the legislature to increase its own pay.

Neither Graham nor Regner, however, will benefit immediately from the pay raise. Both are in midterm and cannot receive pay increases until reelected. Graham will receive an added $1,500 to his wages as assistant leader of the Senate Republicans.

The bill contains increased payment for members of the party leadership as well as an increase in expense allowances from $32 to $36 per day, and an added $2,000 a year for office expenses, for a yearly total of $12,000 for office expenses.

STATE SEN. Bradley M. Glass, R-Northfield, who had opposed the $5,000 increase, was responsible for the amendment reducing the raise to $2,500. He voted for the $2,500 raise both times a vote was taken. State Sen. John Nimrod, R-Skokie, and State Sen. Howard Mohr, (Continued on Page 2)

Old hall fate hinges on type of parking

The future of the old city hall may be determined by the type of parking facilities the city council decides to build for the new civic center, a committee study said Thursday night.

Ald. Spencer Chase, 3rd, chairman of the city council's library and historical committee, told a committee hearing he could not ask the city council for a commitment to preserve the old city hall until a decision is made on the type of parking deck to be built for the new city hall.

Because cost estimates for a parking deck have soared in the last three years, it may be cheaper for the city to raze the old hall and provide on-grade parking on the old hall site rather than build a parking deck around the old building.

"WE HAVE to resolve the parking problem before I can offer a commitment to the council that we preserve the building," Chase said. He added that he and his fellow committee members, Ald. Arthur Erbach, 5th, and Ald. Irene Birchfield, 5th, agree that the building should be preserved if possible.

Supporters of the proposal to preserve the building, including representatives of the Des Plaines Historical Society, the Bicentennial Commission and the park district, argued for the building's preservation.

"It does not make sense to tear down such a usable building for 18 parking stalls," David Wolf, chairman of the Bicentennial Commission said. "The people of this community have spoken and they have spoken loudly. The building is worthy of preservation and I don't take kindly to the talk of preserving it only temporarily."

Richard Jordan, president of the historical society, said the possibility of the building being torn down, is real but not imminent. "Our position is that the building should be used for the community," Jordan said.

"The historical society has a real, legitimate and demonstrative need for it but we believe it can be used by all organizations."

JORDAN SAID the historical society would like to serve as administrator for the building and added that the bicentennial Commission's proposal to have the building managed by a committee would be "an unnecessary complication."

Thomas Mahon, president of the park district board, said the park district is anxious to cooperate with anyone to make use of the building, especially as a possible senior citizens' center.

Mahon urged the committee to make some type of decision on the question of preserving the building so efforts can begin to coordinate possible uses for it.

Chase said the committee appreciated the remarks from those present but he offered no immediate action. "The council is a ponderous body and I want it to move in the right direction," he said. "I think it will all be worked out."

Post office extends hours

In an effort to accommodate the heavy increase in mailing and stamp sales, the Des Plaines Post Office has extended its window hours.

Beginning Monday postal service will be open from 8 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. on weekdays and 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturdays.

The increased hours will be in effect until Dec. 20, Des Plaines Postmaster John F. Koulentes said.

AN UNEXPECTED visitor Thursday at the Edward Curtin home, 122 S. I-Oka Ave., Mount Prospect, aged the home's front steps, uprooted one tree and damaged a second. The bus driver and driver charged the bus driver with failure to yield right-of-way.

Area responds to plight of family

by LUISA GINETTI
Dozens of persons have come to the aid of a Des Plaines family left homeless Wednesday when fire ruined their apartment at 960 Beau Dr.

This fire destroyed all the possessions of Mrs. James Hill, who with her three children, Mary, 11, Michael, 7 and Tammy, 6, have been put up at the Royal Court Inn, 1750 S. Elmhurst Rd., by the Red Cross.

A neighbor's plea for help for the family has resulted in a new apartment for the family, food and rent assistance from Elk Grove Township, clothing and furnishings for their new apartment and the establishment of a trust fund for the family.

Barb Duss said her phone started ringing at 7:45 a.m. Thursday after an article appeared in The Herald asking people who wished to donate items to call her.

"THE CALLS HAVE been continuous and I'm so very grateful to people who have offered to help," Mrs. Duss said. "If this lifts up Mrs. Hill's spirits as much as it did mine, she'll be in heaven."

Items donated to the family include televisions, couches, chairs, clothing and a bicycle, Mrs. Duss said. She was busy all day Thursday picking up items as well as collecting things delivered to her apartment, Mrs. Duss said.

Garage space in the apartment complex has been made available to store the items.

Mary Lu Gladney, rental agent for the apartments, said a two-bedroom apartment for the family in the complex has (Continued on page 5)

Think green
The real Christmas tree is coming back, but be ready to look a little harder and pay a little more

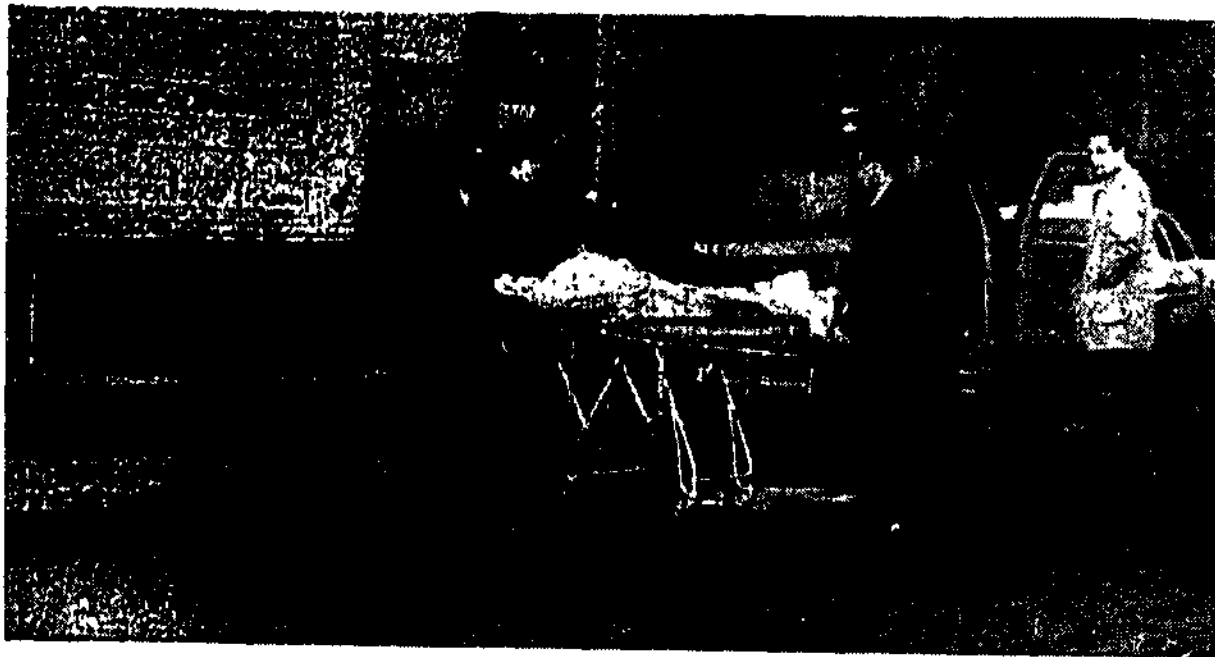

If you're buying a Christmas tree this year, be prepared to pay 10 to 15 per cent more than you did last year. And be prepared to look early, because the supply of trees is more limited than last year. Wholesalers say fewer pine and spruce trees are being cut and shipped this year, possibly because the tree market was so bad last year.

Last year, prices rose by as much as $3 a tree. The only trees that may be unusually expensive this year are Canadian trees, hit by budworms this year, and trees taller than 15 feet, said two Chicago tree wholesalers.

The body of John Metz is removed from United Parcel Service building.

Parcel bomb kills UPS employe, injures 8

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — A small package, mailed from a neighboring state and misaddressed, exploded in the arms of a United Parcel Service employe Thursday when he started to open it to learn its correct destination.

The employe, John Metz, 38, was killed instantly. Eight co-workers were injured. Police Lt. Ralph Pampena said the explosion occurred shortly before 3 a.m. at a UPS warehouse in the city's North Side, only seconds after Metz and other employes noted jokingly, "It might be a bomb."

Six of the injured were admitted to hospitals and reported in satisfactory condition suffering from burns, cuts and shock. Two others were treated and released.

UPS employes said the brown paper wrapped package, measuring 8 inches by 12 inches, was addressed to a motorcycle shop in "Falls Church, Pa." It had no zip code and maps do not list a Falls Church, Pa.

The package was placed on a loading platform for trucks but was returned to the sorting area when the drivers did not know which one was to take the package.

Metz placed the parcel on a table and had pulled the two end flaps when he noticed three threads taped to the top, an injured employe, Kevin Macpact, said.

"Look, it's a bomb," Macpact quoted Metz as saying. He and Metz then pulled the flaps all the way up and the package exploded.

Pampena said the package existed it was addressed incorrectly to a UPS employe would have to open it to check for an invoice that would give the correct address.

Dow Jones near 12-year low

Signs point to snowballing recession

From United Press International

The report of the strike by coal miners Thursday signaled the end of a multibillion-dollar drain on the economy, but immediate indications were the wage settlement would mean consumers will pay higher prices for goods and utilities.

Higher coal costs also are expected to increase the operating costs in the steel industry, a major user of coal to fuel blast furnaces.

U.S. Steel Corp., forced to layoff 18,000 workers because of the strike, said it may take weeks to get its 22 banked furnaces back into full production.

The Dow Jones Industrial average plunged to within 2½ points of its 12-year low Thursday on the New York Stock Exchange. The widely watched average of 30 selected blue-chip stocks fell 11.58 points to 587.06, nears its 12-year low of 584.56 reached on Oct. 4. The average price of an NYSE common share declined by 43 cents.

Analysts said the major concern on Wall Street now is the nation's deepening recession. Investors ignored the miners' approval of a new contract, which will end the nationwide coal strike now in its fourth week.

There were signs the recession is snowballing. The government reported retail sales in the early Christmas shopping period are down, unemployment was expected to be the worst in 13 years and thousands more workers were laid off.

Burlington Industries Inc. said that nearly one-third of its 141 U.S. textile plants and offices will close for two weeks later this month.

The Commerce Department said late Thursday retail sales last week were down 1.8 per cent from the previous week and, because of inflation, were down from the same week in 1973 despite a dollar increase.

Economists at UCLA said the recession is now a year old, will last at least another six months and will result in an unemployment rate of 8 per cent.

The Labor Department said the number of persons seeking unemployment benefits swelled by 215,000 in mid-November, and the government Friday was expected to release November unemployment figures that may be the highest since 1961.

The national unemployment rate for November conservatively has been placed at 6.3 per cent or nearly 6 million jobless.

Meanwhile, compromise legislation to give the President standby power to impose gasoline rationing was introduced in the Senate Thursday by Sen. Henry A. Jackson, D-Wash., with apparent assurance it will not be vetoed if it reaches the White House.

Jackson said the Ford administration "now recognizes the urgent necessity" for such action, adding that energy problems could push the nation to the brink of a depression.

At a Washington press conference, Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau said recent suggestions by some senators that the United States should retaliate against Canada's oil policy by restricting or taxing the transit of Canadian oil in U.S. pipelines would amount to "hijacking."

Rule out any form of Nixon testimony

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica ruled Thursday that former President Richard M. Nixon will not testify in any form at the Watergate cover-up trial because his testimony is "not essential" and would be viewed with suspicion.

Sirica ordered the trial of five former Nixon aides to proceed without interruption, meaning it will likely be completed by Christmas.

In summary, Sirica said the ailing Nixon's testimony would merely duplicate that available from other witnesses and would have to be viewed "with caution" since he has been declared an unindicted accomplice of the defendants.

He ruled out even the possibility that Nixon might be required to answer written questions in his home, saying "Mr. Nixon's testimony is not essential" to ensure that justice is done.

The decision overruled the request of defendants John D. Ehrlichman, H. R. Haldeman and John N. Mitchell that they at least be allowed to take Nixon's testimony by deposition at a court near his San Clemente, Calif., home.

"The witness is simply unavailable to be deposed," Sirica said. "The court will not issue an order to take the deposition of Mr. Nixon while it appears that he is so ill that the taking of such a deposition could seriously jeopardize his health."

In testimony yesterday, Charles Colson said that just days before the Watergate bugging, Mitchell offered to bug a New York hotel room where Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., was to meet with a major financial backer.

Colson said that off-hand remark, coupled with what he later learned about the bugging of Democratic Party headquarters, prompted him to urge Nixon several times in ensuing months to force Mitchell to step forward and accept guilt for the scandal.

Colson was called to the stand as a court witness so neither the prosecution nor defense would have to vouch for his credibility. Meanwhile, U.S. District Judge Gerhard Gesell ruled Nixon's tapes, played during the trial may be broadcast publicly.

The judge said Nixon has "no right to prevent normal access to these public documents which have already been released in full text . . ." The tapes will not be made available, however, until after the trial.

In an eight-page memorandum and order, Gesell set Jan. 3 for receiving suggestions on working out "administrative and mechanical difficulties" in reproducing the tapes.

American officials haven't been able to get financier Robert Vesco back to the United States to tell his story, but he did tell it his own way — in a surprise, near-midnight appearance Wednesday on Costa Rica's national radio-TV network. He vigorously defended himself against accusations of financial shenanigans, including charges in his indictment resulting from a $200,000 Nixon campaign contribution in an alleged attempt to fix a Securities and Exchange Commission investigation. He also challenged an American diplomat and two newspaper editors to a public TV debate, but gave no indication he'd be willing to carry the debate to a U.S. courtroom.

In Colombo, Sri Lanka (formerly Ceylon), rescue teams dropped from helicopters through rain-soaked jungle Thursday to bring out the bodies of 191 persons killed when a chartered Dutch DC 8 jet flying Moslem pilgrims to Mecca smashed into the side of a mountain. It was the second worst aviation disaster in history.

The four-engine jetliner was preparing to make a refueling descent Wednesday into Bandarbanke Airport when it exploded like "a giant fireball" and struck a sheer rock wall at 1,000 feet, 80 miles east of Colombo.

Meanwhile, the Air Line Pilots Association said Thursday that commercial airlines will refuse after Feb. 1 to carry most types of hazardous cargo aboard their planes.

The pilots decided to take matters into their own hands, adding under their authority that those finally responsible for the crash of the craft they fly — after more than three years of trying unsuccessfully to get federal and industry action to remove dangerous materials.

Roof collapse kills American, 19 others

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — The roof of the main terminal at Mehrabad International airport collapsed with a roar under the weight of an overnight snowfall Thursday, killing or trapping up to 60 persons. A government spokesman said 20 persons were confirmed dead.

Among the dead was an American identified as Michael Nimitz, 43, who carried a letter from his wife in Wisconsin. Another American, Edward Alfred Kasaval, 45, of Detroit was injured.

Hundreds of police, firemen and soldiers, hampered by the continuing snowstorm, were attempting to dig out survivors from the rubble and hold back screaming relatives.

Most of the victims were reported to be Iranians.

ARNOLD MILLER, president of the United Mine Workers, told a news conference Thursday the nation's coal miners have accepted a new contract. The coal strike began Nov. 12 and cost thousands of jobs in coal related industries. The three-year pact was approved by a 56 to 44 per cent vote of the members. Higher costs are expected to increase prices in the steel industry, a major user of coal.

Sad breakfast with Ford: farewell to the vanquished

The voters' uprising last month was graphically underscored in a White House breakfast Thursday morning. President Ford hosted a goodbye for senators and congressmen uprooted in the Nov. 5 election, and had 42 guests. Most of them were Republicans, including such members of the House Judiciary Committee as David DeLoach of Indiana, Wiley Mayne of Iowa and Charles Sandman of New Jersey. Also attending The Last Breakfast were senators Marlow Cook of Kentucky and Peter Demiselek of Colorado.

Now THAT was a Santa Claus. At 6-feet-4 and 285 pounds, Ron McDole defensive end for the Washington Redskins football team — made an imposing St. Nick as he did the honors on behalf of the team at a Christmas party for 60 children of men killed or missing in Vietnam. First Lady Betty Ford was there, accepting a team-autographed ball and giving in return one covered with fur — easier to handle during these waning cold days of the season.

It's not necessarily what you ask but how you ask it when you're putting questions to Washington's officials. So learned syndicated reporter and religion columnist Lester Kinsolving as he received an extraordinary scolding in front of fellow correspondents from White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen. Kin-solving — an Episcopal clergyman whose weekly religion column appears in The Herald — was rebuked for what Nessen called "incivility" to Interior Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton when he pressed Morton at a news conference for an explanation of why U. S. Park Police didn't give any traffic citations in the Oct. 7 "Tidal Basin Incident" involving Rep. Wilbur Mills.

American officials haven't been able to get financier Robert Vesco back to the United States to tell his story, but he did tell it his own way — in a surprise, near-midnight appearance Wednesday on Costa Rica's national radio-TV network. He vigorously defended himself against accusations of financial shenanigans, including charges in his indictment resulting from a $200,000 Nixon campaign contribution in an alleged attempt to fix a Securities and Exchange Commission investigation. ### Expect House panel vote will OK Rocky

The House Judiciary Committee completed hearings on Nelson Rockefeller's vice presidential nomination Thursday, and an informal poll indicated it would approve him next week by a substantial — but not unanimous — margin. The nomination must be approved by a majority vote of both houses once it clears committee. A full Senate vote was scheduled Tuesday.

Ullman expects Mills to resign post

Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., next in line to be chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, indicated Thursday he expects ailing Wilbur Mills to resign soon as head of the tax-writing panel. Ullman said it would be only a matter of several days "before he (Mills) will be in a position to indicate that he will not be a candidate for chairman next year."

Dems want party open to minorities

In a strong show of unity, Democratic leaders in Kansas City, Mo. Thursday voted to require "affirmative action now" programs in opening the party to minorities as presidential hopefuls. As delegates arrived for the mini-convention, Glenn Watts, Communications Workers of America president, said in Rosemont, Ill. that he would urge adoption of the plank. He added that hiring of minority and women workers is a needed reform.

Kroger beef stew recalled for botulin

The Agriculture Department Thursday alerted consumers to the possibility of deadly botulin bacteria in some cans of company brand beef stew sold by Kroger supermarkets. A can of the stew — packed by Kroy Packing of Jackson, Tenn. — was linked to the death of a woman in Georgia Sunday. The 24-ounce cans carry the code "EST 712 182 S4." The lot was assumed to be distributed nationwide.

Rabin: Israel will compromise for peace

Premier Yitzhak Rabin said in Tel Aviv Thursday Israel is prepared to make far-reaching territorial compromises with the Arab states in return for peace, but ruled out any return to the pre-1967 war borders. ### Makarios delays return to Cyprus

Archbishop Makarios postponed his return to Cyprus by 24 hours Thursday and the underground organization that helped oust him as president last July warned of renewed bloodshed if he does not change his policies. ## City revising schedules to comply with U.S. rules

by STEVE BROWN

Des Plaines officials are revising work schedules for city police, fire and public works employees to comply with federal regulations dealing with overtime pay.

The new regulations will require all employees to be paid for work that exceeds 40 hours for a five-day week and 60 hours for a seven-day week.

Martin Schaefer, personnel director, said the city is arranging its work schedules to comply with the federal guidelines.

Police and public works employees currently work a 40-hour week, but the city firefighters average a 24-hour week. The firefighters work a 24-hour-on, 48-hour-off schedule. Schaefer explained the schedules are being modified to comply with the regulations which go into effect Jan. 1.

SCHAEFER SAID the city will define the firefighters' work period to cover a schedule that would allow them to be paid for any work exceeding 181 hours in 21-day cycle. He said the schedules will remain essentially the same, but because of the 24-48 system now used, some firefighters work 72 hours per week on alternating weeks. He explained the firefighters will not work any more hours under the new scheduling system.

State law allows firefighters to work a maximum of 56 hours per week. The city currently has firefighters working an average of 108 hours during a two-week period.

He also said the police department will be put on 28-day work schedules which will see the policemen working no more than 180 hours during each cycle.

THE NEW regulations, part of the Fair Labor Standards Act, applies to all employees. Municipal officials across the country have opposed the fact that the regulations apply to municipal employees.

Representatives of the National League of Cities are planning a court test of the law, seeking to have municipal employees exempted from the U.S. Labor Dept. regulations.

Alfred E. Pritchard Jr., League executive vice president, contends that the law constitutes undue interference from the federal government on local officials.

Pritchard said the regulations are unconstitutional.

Five firemen awarded paramedic certificates

Five Des Plaines firemen who have successfully completed paramedic training have been awarded certificates from the Illinois Dept. of Health's Division of Medical Service and Highway Safety.

The men are Roland Rossi, Charles Harris, Arnold Torkelson, James Boho and Jeff Claus.

Fire Chief Donald Corey said the department still is awaiting official authorization from the Dept. of Health to allow the men to put their training to use. Corey said he expects the authorization soon.

The men are the first members of the department to complete the paramedic program offered by Northwest Community Hospital. The men will use a van-type ambulance equipped with $8,000 worth of lifesaving equipment to give on-the-scene treatment to accident and heart-attack victims.

The five men will operate out of Fire Station No. 1, 405 S. River Rd. Eventually each of the three fire stations will have paramedic companies.

Corey has asked the city to appropriate funds in next year's budget to purchase a second mobile intensive-care ambulance. The department received its first van in September. It was paid for with funds from both the city and the Rotary Club.

The city's entire 74-man fire department eventually will be trained as either certified paramedics or emergency medical technicians within the next two years, under a new training program instituted by Corey.

The Accepted Influence in the Northwest Suburbs

U.S. postal, city officials review post office plans

Des Plaines officials met with representatives of the U.S. Postal Service Thursday to review preliminary plans for the post office at Oakton Street and Executive Way.

The meeting, which lasted for more than two hours, included representatives from the building department, Al. Charles Bolek, 3rd, and representatives from residential areas bordering the proposed site.

Bolek declined to comment on the details of the meeting, but described the discussion as "amicable."

OTHER CITY officials had said the session was to review plans for the $2.6 million post office, scheduled to be built next year.

High on the list of concerns of residents is the effort that will be made by the postal service to design a buffer between the building and neighboring homes. When the site was chosen in 1969, residents complained the post office could be a nuisance or infringe on the residential characteristics of the neighborhood.

Postal service officials have indicated they will do everything possible to prevent the building from being a nuisance.

It is not known what questions Bolek and the homeowners raised about possible changes to lessen noise or congestion that might be generated by the postal operations.

HOWEVER, it has been learned that the residents would like to see the proposed location for the loading dock shifted to the east side of the building, away from the adjacent homes.

The postal service is reportedly balking at the change because of the additional design costs that would be incurred. More than $185,000 has already been spent to design the building.

Current plans call for construction bids to be opened Jan. 30. Postal service officials anticipate construction on the 57,000-square-foot building to begin in February with completion a year later.

At Rand, Central, Mount Prospect

Village officials propose intersection realignment

Mount Prospect village officials, in an effort to improve traffic safety at the congested intersection of Central, Rand and Mount Prospect roads, have proposed a realignment of the intersection.

The village proposals, approved Wednesday by the village's fire and police committee, would relocate westward a portion of Mount Prospect Road south of Central Road. Mount Prospect Road would then intersect Rand Road northwest of the intersection of Central and Rand roads.

Currently, Mount Prospect Road meets Central Road less than a block west of the Central-Rand intersection and westbound Central Road traffic often blocks Mount Prospect Road traffic.

THE COMMITTEE, headed by Trustee George Anderson, said the new proposal would be less expensive and preferable to the Illinois Highway Dept.'s 1973 suggestion that a portion of Rand Road be moved eastward at Central Road. The state plan would call for the removal of most of the grassy perimeter of the Mount Prospect Plaza shopping center at the intersection.

An engineer from the firm of M&E/Alstot, March and Gullou, Inc. said the new proposal would cost about $800,000, whereas the state plan would cost an estimated $1.1 million. The original 1972 cost for the project, which then called for new signalization and turn lanes, was only $220,000.

Anderson said the new plan would call for the village to buy the 400-square-foot lot at the southwest corner of Central and Mount Prospect roads, which is owned by the Zenith Corp. Also the village would have to buy property north of Central Road on which a waterbed store is located.

As part of the new alternative, a cul de sac would be formed at the existing intersection of Central and Mount Prospect roads. In addition, numerous left-turn lanes would be put in where needed and new traffic lights would be put in where the new section of Mount Prospect Road would intersect with both Central Road and Rand Road.

been found and the Hills will move in today.

THE STEVEN L. Amdur Realty Co., owners of the complex, have agreed to waive the December rent for Mrs. Hill and will renew her lease for three months in January, Mrs. Gladney said.

Mrs. Gladney said her son will help the Hills move into the apartment since they have no transportation available.

Mrs. Gladney's daughter, Kathy, 12, and two of her school friends from Friendship Junior High, Luann Capiz, 13, and Carol Tojza, 12, all residents of the complex, said they have offered to babysit for Mrs. Hill's children. The girls also plan to conduct a door-to-door fund raising drive through the complex to solicit money from other residents to help the family.

Gerald Buckler, principal of Albert

Einstein School, where Tammy Hill attends class, arranged to set up a trust fund for the family at the First National Bank of Des Plaines.

"WHEN I FOUND out about the situation I felt it was the humane thing to do," Buckler said.

Gil Crows will serve as the trust officer for the fund and contributions in care of the Mrs. James Hill Trust Fund should be sent to the bank in care of Crows.

Mrs. Hill said Thursday she is overwhelmed by the generosity shown to her and her children.

"I appreciate everything my neighbors have done for me and I can't express my thanks in words," she said. "I was very frightened knowing I had lost everything in the fire, but now I'm getting better and I want to show everyone my thanks."

Tax bills to go up

MSD OKs $401 million budget, 83 per cent hike

Metropolitan Sanitary District trustees approved a $401 million budget Thursday and predicted the 1975 budget will mean a tax rate of 38.13 cents per $100 assessed valuation on tax bills paid in 1976.

The budget, increased steeply over the 1974 budget of $218 million, pins hopes on federal and state grants for engineering design and construction projects.

The anticipated tax rate is 1.57 cents per $100 assessed valuation higher than the 36.56 cent rate MSD officials anticipate on the 1974 tax bills homeowners will receive next spring.

The budget approved Thursday increased by 4.3 per cent the recommendations the MSD general superintendent made to the board in September. The increases came as board members made additions in 22 separate budget hearings which included a $30,000 planning study on use of MSD land, a $225,000 increase in the cost of health insurance premiums for MSD employees and $80,000 to finance public relations activities in Fulton County for the MSD land reclamation program and to scientifically monitor pollution levels at district plants.

The Civic Federation, the only agency to testify at a formal hearing on the budget earlier this week, criticized the MSD board's decision to give nonunion workers a 9 per cent pay hike and said a 3 per cent cost of living increase would have been sufficient because MSD workers are paid better than many private industry employees.

IN OTHER ACTION Thursday, the MSD board discussed plans to obtain rights-of-way for three of the tunnels that will collect sewage under Mount Prospect.

The tunnels, which will carry sanitary sewage from Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Wheeling, Elk Grove Village, Buffalo Grove, Des Plaines and Rolling Meadows to the O'Hare Water Reclamation plant at Elmhurst Road and Oakton Street in Des Plaines, will be the subject of a public hearing at 7:30 p.m. Dec. 19 at the Mount Prospect Community Center, 600 S. See-Gwon Ave.

The right-of-way ordinance revealed the MSD plans to negotiate to buy permanent easements for the tunnels in three locations — a 20-foot wide strip north of Oakton Street from Elmhurst Road to Busse Road, a small parcel at Elmhurst Road and Lonnquist Boulevard and a strip north of Lincoln Street and east of Busse Road.

The MSD's request for easements across public lands such as parkways in Mount Prospect has been delayed by village officials until after the public hearing on the tunnels.

$1,255 said missing from service station

Cash and a check totaling $1,255 were reported missing from the Gas for Less Service Station, 15 W. Golf Rd., police said Wednesday.

Eugene Potempa, 21, of 1103 S. Hunt Club, Mount Prospect, told police the cash, $1,212, and check, $43, were in an envelope on his office desk next to a phone. Potempa told police the only person in the office at the time was a delivery man from an oil company who used the office phone for several minutes.

Potempa said he went home and did not think about the money until later. He found the envelope missing when he opened the station for business Tuesday, police said.

Movie night Dec. 11

Senate does turnabout, votes to OK $2,500 pay raises

by BOB LAHEY
SPRINGFIELD — Pay raises of $2,500 per year for Illinois legislators were approved and sent to Gov. Daniel Walker for his signature Thursday night after the Illinois Senate reversed a decision of a day earlier and voted for the pay increases.

The Senate had voted against the pay hike Wednesday, but reconsidered its action Thursday. The Illinois House swiftly approved the amended pay raise when it was returned from the Senate, by a vote of 111 to 31.

Approval of the pay increase in the Senate came less than 24 hours after the Senate had rejected it. Wednesday, the Senate voted 23 to 23 for the raise, with a three-fifths majority of 36 votes needed to make it effective for the new term beginning in January. Thursday the measure received precisely the number of votes needed, passing by a margin of 36 to 15.

The House earlier had approved pay raises of $5,000 per year, and acceptance of the reduced increases was a foregone conclusion. Among the 15 representatives for the Northwest suburbs, only two voted against the increase. They were State Rep. John Friedland, R-South Elgin, and State Rep. John E. Porter, R-Evanston. State Rep. Robert Juckett, R-Park Ridge, who is hospitalized with a leg ailment, was recorded as absent.

AMONG senators from the Northwest suburbs, only State Sen. David Regner, R-Mount Prospect, who has opposed all spending measures in this closing session of the 78th General Assembly, voted against the pay increase, which raised legislators' annual salaries from $17,500 to $20,000.

State Sen. John A. Graham, R-Barrington, who originally voted against the pay raise, voted for it Thursday. Graham said at first that economic conditions would not permit the legislature to increase its own pay.

Neither Graham nor Regner, however, will benefit immediately from the pay raise. Both are in midterm and cannot receive pay increases until reelected. Graham will receive an added $1,500 to his wages as assistant leader of the Senate Republicans.

The bill contains increased payment for members of the party leadership as well as an increase in expense allowances from $32 to $36 per day, and an added $2,000 a year for office expenses, for a yearly total of $12,000 for office expenses.

STATE SEN. Bradley M. Glass, R-Northfield, who had opposed the $5,000 increase, was responsible for the amendment reducing the raise to $2,500. He voted for the $2,500 raise both times a vote was taken. State Sen. John Nimrod, R-Skokie, and State Sen. Howard Mohr, (Continued on Page 2)

U.S. enters furnace probe; suits likely?

by JILL BETTNER
Federal investigators are probing the causes of a massive number of furnace failures in Elk Grove Village homes built by Centex Homes Corp., The Herald has learned.

The U.S. Consumer Products Safety Commission is looking for answers in the continuing controversy over who is responsible for the failure of furnaces in an estimated 1,700 homes.

The outcome of the investigation could lead to legal action against Johnson Furnace Corp., manufacturer of the defective furnaces and possibly Centex, a commission official said.

Working with information supplied by the Chicago office of the commission, federal authorities are attempting to define reasons for the furnace failures, whether it is a widespread problem and the severity of injuries that could occur as a result of the defects.

Carl Blechschmidt, director of the commission's division of product defect identification, said assigning blame for the furnace failures is difficult because apparently there are a number of contributing factors.

"WE'RE HAVING SOME trouble pinpointing the exact cause and establishing the degree of hazard that we're dealing with," Blechschmidt said. "It doesn't appear to be a national problem; at least, we haven't had any other similar complaints that I know of from other parts of the country."

Blechschmidt said he expects the commission to complete its research soon. If investigators conclude there is what he termed "a substantial product hazard," the commission will take steps to correct the problem.

Although Blechschmidt could not comment if possible government action could be aimed at Johnson or Centex or both, he said the commission usually moves against manufacturers, retailers and distributors of defective products.

Information on the Elk Grove Village furnace problem has been in the hands of the federal authorities for several months, according to an investigator in the commission's Chicago office.

DuWAYNE KAPALIS said he accompanied local building inspectors on a tour of several homes to get a firsthand look at some of the defective furnaces and submitted a report of his findings to the Washington office several months ago.

"If this were a widespread problem around the country, I'm sure we would have arrived at a conclusion as to what to do much sooner," Blechschmidt said explaining the agency's delay. "We're just trying to sort out all the things that apply to the situation and trying to figure out why it seems to be just in that one pocket."

Police currently do not enforce the 18-year-old ordinance by order of the village board.

Village Pres. Charles Zettek said, "I have been receiving numerous complaints from residents who say they must step out into the street to go around cars that block sidewalks."

Most homeowners have the space to legally park two cars in their driveways. "In cases where a garage has been converted to a living area, or a third car is owned, people have a real problem," Zettek said.

The village also prohibits parking on the streets from 2 a.m. to 5 a.m.

"THIS BOARD and others before it have recognized that a lack of parking spaces has been a real problem for some residents, so we've told the police to ignore the sidewalk blocking ordinance," said Zettek.

However, those residents who lately have complained that they're forced off the sidewalk when they take a walk also have a legitimate complaint," he added.

Zettek has asked the judicial planning and zoning committee to review the situation and recommend if the ordinance will be suspended or enforced.

Until that decision is reached police will continue to ignore the ordinance.

The real Christmas tree is coming back, but be ready to look a little harder and pay a little more

If you're buying a Christmas tree this year, be prepared to pay 10 to 15 per cent more than you did last year. And be prepared to look early, because the supply of trees is more limited than last year. Wholesalers say fewer pine and spruce trees are being cut and shipped this year, possibly because the tree market was so bad last year.

Last year, prices rose by as much as $3 a tree. The only trees that may be unusually expensive this year are Canadian trees, hit by budworms this year, and trees taller than 15 feet, said two Chicago tree wholesalers.

Blacktop to be removed today

Twardziks lose battle with county over driveway

Stanley and Marian Twardzik, 1764 E. Euclid Ave., Mount Prospect, have apparently lost their battle to keep their 30-foot driveway.

Workmen cut the driveway into two parts Thursday in preparation for removing that portion of the blacktop which exceeds county limits. Mrs. Twardzik said she expects the workmen to return today to remove the blacktop.

Twardzik said he widened his driveway six years ago, because he needed more room to turn into his property from Euclid Avenue, which has a 45 m.p.h. speed limit. The county, however, says that Twardzik never obtained a permit for the work, and therefore must comply with 1974 department standards.

Twardzik said a permit was obtained for the work, but he said he did not have an extra copy.

Although county standards call for 16-foot-wide driveways, Mrs. Twardzik said the workmen are only removing six feet from the 30-foot driveway. Dan Cohen, county highway construction supervisor, was unavailable to comment on how much of the driveway was to be removed.

When workmen showed up Thursday morning to remove a section of the driveway, Mrs. Twardzik made an attempt to stop the work. The confrontation, however, was minor compared to last month when the Twardziks parked their cars on the property to block the workmen.

"I have no choice in the matter," Mrs. Twardzik said, when asked why the same tactics weren't applied Thursday. She said she had hoped to get some help from the governor's office, but said the workmen arrived too soon.

IT WAS A STANDOFF for a while when workmen showed up at the Stanley Twardziks, 1764 E. Euclid Ave., Mount Prospect, to remove six feet of their driveway. Mrs. Twardzik, right, eventually let the workmen begin sawing off a section of the blacktop which exceeds county standards. She expects workmen to remove the blacktop today.

Few patients from Schaumburg Township

Alcohol-drug program needs reputation

by STIRLING MORITA

Establishing a reputation in the community is the key to getting more Schaumburg Township residents to enlist the aid of the Alcoholism-Drug Dependency counseling program, the ADD director believes.

In a meeting Tuesday night with two members of the Schaumburg Township Mental Health Board, Roger Boekenbauer, the director, said only 18 of ADD's total of 107 patients so far this year are from the township. He said the low number might be because residents don't know of the counseling services available from the program's out-patient center in Rolling Meadows.

The center, 5005 Newport Dr., Suite 210, opened in September with $45,000 in U.S. revenue-sharing funds furnished by Palatine, Schaumburg and Elk Grove townships. The funds are to pay partially for treatment for township residents and for educational programs to be done by the clinic's staff. Lutheran Welfare Services of Illinois operates the center. The program was conducted weekly from Jan. 1 to Sept. 1 and now is full-time since moving into the new facility.

BOEKENBAUER SAID the clinic gets more patients from the other two townships. He added that many come from Wheeling Township and he hoped to secure funds from that township. Many patients also come from outside the four-township area from as far away as Kankakee and Waukegan.

The director said the staff can handle patients from outside the area because of open appointment times, but a decision will have to be made later as to treating people from outside the area when the caseload increases.

"We are a new group in the community. A lot of where we are now is building relationships with community groups (for patient referrals)," he said.

Boekenbauer added that he has met with school guidance counselors, township officials, pastors and community groups and written to hospitals and doctors in hopes of reaching as many referral sources as possible.

He noted that he has submitted a proposal to Motorola Inc. in Schaumburg to start an employee educational program in connection with ADD.

Most of the patient referrals from Schaumburg Township have been from pastors or Elgin State Hospital.

BOEKENBAUER said the patients are mostly middle-aged, from 35 to 50 years old. He explained that although there are more men than women patients, the difference between the two is starting to drop like the national trend.

"Many of our patients are involved with alcohol and prescription drugs," Boekenbauer said, adding that one of the big myths around is that the teen-agers are the only ones using drugs.

Many of the fees paid by patients are nominal $1 fees, but some are paid according to the patient's financial situation. He said he hoped the clinic would receive about $8,000 in fees in a year.

Boekenbauer and three trained counselors are available at the center from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. Mondays through Thursdays and from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Fridays.

People concerned with their alcoholic or drug-related problems or those of a family member are urged to set up an appointment by calling 394-9797

Learning disabilities topic for club here

Learning disabilities that may hamper a child's school progress was the topic of a recent joint meeting of the education and junior projects committees of the Elk Grove Village Junior Woman's Club.

Donna Glimka, learning disabilities coordinator for School Dist. 59, and Judy Fink, a learning disabilities teacher in the district, discussed how teachers work with children who have learning problems.

Learning disabilities has been selected as a junior project of the General Federation of Women's Clubs for the next two years.

Women fete teachers

Local teachers recently were treated to homemade cookies baked by the Elk Grove Village Junior Woman's Club as an expression of appreciation during National Education Week.

The club's education department baked the cookies and placed them in the teacher's lounges at the nine elementary schools in the village.

Vandals do $1,500 damage at Keller Junior High

In one of the worst school break-ins this year, burglars stole and damaged an estimated $1,522 worth of property at Helen Keller Junior High School, 820 Bodo Rd., Schaumburg, it was reported Thursday.

Burglars broke windows, rifled desks, damaged doors, destroyed music equipment and stole various items and small amounts of cash. Milton Derr, associate superintendent of Schaumburg Township School Dist. 54, called the burglary one of the most serious ones this year.

Police said the burglars gained entrance to the building by breaking a small hole in an outside door and pushing the pushbar to open the door. The burglary occurred between 11 p.m. Wednesday and 6:30 a.m. Thursday.

The library was the next target, where five tape recorders, a callphone, two typewriter covers and $9 in cash was taken. A glass desk cover was smashed, a book case tipped over and a water fountain plugged up, resulting in minor flooding and water damage to 192 paperback books.

A CLOCK WAS taken from the language arts room. The burglars broke into the science room by breaking a glass window on the door. The glass was shattered on fish tanks in the room, two light fixtures were stolen along with a hot plate and a cabinet door was damaged.

The thieves broke a glass window to the school office, took a gym bag, a stop watch, a time clock, a digital clock and a purse containing $5. About $8 in change was taken from a coin-operated machine outside the office.

The gymnasium was entered, and a door window to an office was broken. The burglars entered the music room and broke a guitar and a violin.

President Ford cites efforts of Watt Watchers

by JOE SWICKARD

The Palatine Watt Watchers, an energy conservation club, has received recognition from President Ford. Now all they have to do is wait for their electric bills.

The 11-household club was formed through the efforts of Pamela Mitchell after watching Ford's anti-inflation message to the country in October. A peek at her electric bill convinced her that she and her family could fight inflation and conserve energy at the same time by being more mindful of how they use electricity.

The Mitchells and other residents of the Winston Park subdivision hoped, when the club was formed, to cut their next light bill in half. The next bills are due about the middle of this month, and Mrs. Mitchell admitted the Watt Watchers are getting a little nervous as the deadline nears.

BUT NO MATTER how they fare on their bills, their efforts resulted in a personal letter of commendation from the President.

Mrs. Mitchell wrote Ford explaining her club's goals and hoped for an answer.

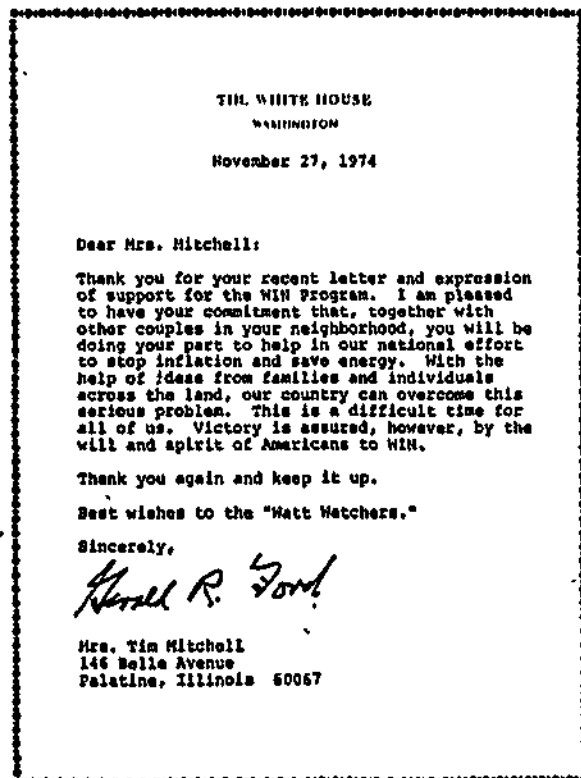

"We had heard he personally answered the letters he received. Especially those from children. It took quite a long time to get his answer. But it's his personal signature, and there are no secretary's initials either. It's not a form letter," she said.

The President wrote on official embossed White House stationery: "I am pleased to have your commitment that, together with other couples in your neighborhood, you will be doing your part to help... stop inflation and save energy."

Besides the Presidential letter, Mrs. Mitchell said her idea is catching on elsewhere. A disk jockey in Indiana heard of her methods and started a similar group in his home town.

A CLUB OF 12 families in Mount Prospect also has been formed, Mrs. Mitchell said. She said there are probably other clubs that she is not aware of.

Even before the October message, the Mitchells were trying to ease the energy crunch. Last Christmas, for

Dear Mrs. Mitchell:

Thank you for your recent letter and expression of support for the WIN Program. I am pleased to have your commitment that, together with other couples in your neighborhood, you will be doing your part to help in our national effort to stop inflation and save energy. With the help of ideas from families and individuals across the land, our country can overcome this serious problem. This is a difficult time for all of us. Victory is assured, however, by the will and spirit of Americans to WIN.

Thank you again and keep it up.

In Des Plaines fire

Friends respond to plight of family who lost home

by LUISA GINETTI

Dozens of persons have come to the aid of a Des Plaines family left homeless Wednesday when fire ruined their apartment at 960 Beau Dr.

The fire destroyed all the possessions of Mrs. James Hill, who with her three children, Mary, 11, Michael, 7 and Tammy, 6, have been put up at the Royal Court Inn, 1750 S. Elmhurst Rd., by the Red Cross.

A neighbor's plea for help for the family has resulted in a new apartment for the family, food and rent assistance from Elk Grove Township, clothing and furnishings for their new apartment and the establishment of a trust fund for the family.

Barb Duss said her phone started ringing at 7:45 a.m. Thursday after an article appeared in The Herald asking people who wished to donate items to call her.

"THE CALLS HAVE been continuous and I'm so very grateful to people who have offered to help," Mrs. Duss said. "If this lifts up Mrs. Hill's spirits as much as it did mine, she'll be in heaven."

Items donated to the family include televisions, couches, chairs, clothing and a bicycle, Mrs. Duss said. She was busy all day Thursday picking up items as well as collecting things delivered to her apartment, Mrs. Duss said.

Garage space in the apartment complex has been made available to store the items.

Mary Lu Gladney, rental agent for the apartments, said a two-bedroom apartment for the family in the complex has been found and the Hills will move in today.

THE STEVEN L. Amur Realty Co.,

owners of the complex, have agreed to waive the December rent for Mrs. Hill and will renew her lease for three months in January, Mrs. Gladney said.

Mrs. Gladney said her son will help the Hills move into the apartment since they have no transportation available.

Mrs. Gladney's daughter, Kathy, 12, and two of her school friends from Friendship Junior High, Luann Capiz, 13, and Carol Tojza, 12, all residents of the complex, said they have offered to babysit for Mrs. Hill's children. The girls also plan to conduct a door-to-door fund raising drive through the complex to solicit money from other residents to help the family.

Gerald Buckler, principal of Albert Einstein School, where Tammy Hill attends taps class, arranged to set up a trust fund for the family at the First National Bank of Des Plaines.

"WHEN I FOUND out about the situation I felt it was the humane thing to do," Buckler said.

Gill Crows will serve as the trust officer for the fund and contributions in care of the Mrs. James Hill Trust Fund should be sent to the bank in care of Crows.

Mrs. Hill said Thursday she is overwhelmed by the generosity shown to her and her children.

"I appreciate everything my neighbors have done for me and I can't express my thanks in words," she said. "I was very frightened knowing I had lost everything in the fire, but now I'm getting better and I want to show everyone my thanks."

Tax bills to go up

MSD OKs $401 million budget, 83 per cent hike

Metropolitan Sanitary District trustees approved a $401 million budget Thursday and predicted the 1975 budget will mean a tax rate of 38.13 cents per $100 assessed valuation on tax bills paid in 1976.

The budget, increased steeply over the 1974 budget of $218 million, pins hopes on federal and state grants for engineering design and construction projects.

The anticipated tax rate is 1.57 cents per $100 assessed valuation higher than the 36.56 cent rate MSD officials anticipate on the 1974 tax bills homeowners will receive next spring.

The budget approved Thursday increased by 4.3 per cent the recommendations the MSD general superintendent made to the board in September. The increases came as board members made additions in 22 separate budget hearings which included a $30,000 planning study on use of MSD land, a $225,000 increase in the cost of health insurance premiums for MSD employees and $50,000 to finance public relations activities in Fulton County for the MSD land reclamation program and to scientifically monitor pollution levels at district plants.

The Civic Federation, the only agency to testify at a formal hearing on the budget earlier this week, criticized the MSD board's decision to give nonunion workers a 9 per cent pay hike and said a 3 per cent cost of living increase would have been sufficient because MSD workers are paid better than many private industry employees.

IN OTHER ACTION Thursday, the MSD board discussed plans to obtain rights-of-way for three of the tunnels that will collect sewage under Mount Prospect.

The tunnels, which will carry sanitary sewage from Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Wheeling, Elk Grove Village, Buffalo Grove, Des Plaines and Rolling Meadows to the O'Hare Water Reclamation plant at Elmhurst Road and Oakton Street in Des Plaines, will be the subject of a public hearing at 7:30 p.m. Dec. 19 at the Mount Prospect Community Center, 600 S. See-Gwen Ave.

The right-of-way ordinance revealed the MSD plans to negotiate to buy permanent easements for the tunnels in three locations — a 20-foot wide strip north of Oakton Street from Elmhurst Road to Busse Road, a small parcel at Elmhurst Road and Lonnquist Boulevard and a strip north of Lincoln Street and east of Busse Road.

The MSD's request for easements across public lands such as parkways in Mount Prospect has been delayed by village officials until after the public hearing on the tunnels.

Mid-'75 completion in forecast

Work on library ahead of schedule

by JOE FRANZ

Construction of the North Suburban Library System's new headquarters in Wheeling is ahead of schedule and officials are predicting it will be finished by mid-1975.

The new facility is being built on the north side of Dundee Road, just east of the Wheeling U.S. Post Office, 250 W. Dundee. The structure will cost about $1 million and will serve as the administrative center for the library system.

"Right now construction is 30 days ahead of schedule," said Elliot Kanner, resources coordinator for the library system. "If everything goes as planned we should be able to move into the new facility by June 1."

"Of course this is assuming there are no problems with bad weather, strikes or obtaining construction materials," Elliot said. "Up until now we haven't had any problems."

WORK ON THE new headquarters started in late September and as of Thursday, Elliot said it was about 25 to 30 per cent complete. Most of the masonry work is finished, he said, and workers have started on the roof.

Elliot said the one-story facility will replace the current library system headquarters in Morton Grove. "Our lease runs out next September and it's almost guaranteed we'll be out of there by then," he said.

Robert McLaren, library system director, said Wheeling was chosen as the site for the facility because it is in the geographical center of the district. The two-acre site was chosen after the library system looked at more than 40 sites in Arlington Heights, Wheeling, Northbrook, Deerfield and Glenview.

The director said the Dundee Road location is desirable because it is on a major road and is within a municipality that can provide business resources and good police and fire protection.

THE LIBRARY SYSTEM is a service organization for 31 public libraries in the North and Northwest suburbs. It provides member libraries with access to books, films, periodicals and facilities not available from local resources. The new building will include 20,000-square feet of meeting rooms, office space, storage and work space.

The new facility has been in the planning stages for more than two years, but has met several delays. The project was at a standstill for several months last year because a $200,000 federal grant was delayed when former President Richard M. Nixon impounded funds allocated under the federal library service and construction act.

McLaren said the library system could not proceed with the planning of the building because some of its board members were hesitant to do that before being assured of getting the grant. The grant was awarded last December.

Early this year, the project met another delay when Wheeling officials held up the issuance of a building permit because of a disagreement over traffic control measures being provided at the site.

Arlington library 3rd in circulation

If you put all the books circulated by the Arlington Heights Memorial Library end to end, the trail would stretch to Niles or Addison.

More practically speaking, this means that for the second year in a row, the Arlington Heights library's circulation has been rated third among public libraries in the state by the Illinois State Library. Only the Chicago and Rockford public libraries circulate more books and materials.

Those who love libraries and statistics will delight in the fact that during this year, the Arlington library circulated 787,398 items or 11 books per resident. Arlington's circulation accounted for 18.4 per cent of the total state library circulation of 42,765,250 items.

The Arlington Heights library circulated more books than public libraries in Springfield, 748,733; Peoria, 729,194; and Evanston, 689,521.

Frank Dempsey, executive librarian, said the circulation of library books in the village during the last 20 years has increased 1,400 per cent. Twenty years ago, the library circulated 50,291 volumes.

Resident injured in auto crash

The local scene

A Des Plaines man escaped with minor injuries after his auto went through a fence and across two ditches, hit a culvert and flipped Thursday afternoon in Rolling Meadows.

Brian Albert, 29, of 1747 White St., was southbound on Ill. Rte. 53 when he apparently lost control of his car, said Trooper Carl Kobler of Illinois State Police. The car went off the roadway through a chain link fence, said Kobler. It crossed West Frontage Road and hit the ditch on the other side. It then hit the culvert and a wooden fence, flipped over, landing on its wheels, and hit the fence again, he said.

Albert was treated and released at Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights.

Arts guild sets two trips

The Elk Grove Arts Guild is accepting reservations for two trips to take place in the new year. On Jan. 21 the group will attend the Goodman Theatre production of "It's a Pity She's a Whore," a play by John Ford. Tickets and bus trip are available for $5. A limit of 40 persons will be in effect for this trip. The bus will leave Elk Grove High School at 8:45 p.m.

On Feb. 6 the guild will go to the Art Institute of Chicago for a guided gallery tour. The bus will leave Elk Grove High School at 9:30 a.m. and return about 3 p.m. Cost including tour is $3.

Reservations may be made by calling Richard Calisch, 439-4800, ext. 71, or Mary Clark, 439-0447. Tickets will be mailed to participants.

Tree-lighting ceremony set

Village officials have invited residents to join them Tuesday for the community's first Christmas tree-lighting ceremony.

The event will be at 7 p.m. in front of the village hall, 901 Wellington Ave. Hot chocolate and cookies will be served inside after the brief lighting ceremony and carols.

Brownie Troops, 123 and 185 of Mark

Hopkins School will circle the live evergreen recently planted near the entrance to the building. They plan to sing several carols.

The brownies will be led by troop leaders Joyce Barnett and Julie Nichols and co-leaders Jeanne Alberson and Coleen Bromec.

Trustee Ronald Chernick will officiate at the ceremony.

Senate does turnabout, votes to OK $2,500 pay raises

by BOB LAHEY
SPRINGFIELD — Pay raises of $2,500 per year for Illinois legislators were approved and sent to Gov. Daniel Walker for his signature Thursday night after the Illinois Senate reversed a decision of a day earlier and voted for the pay increases.

The Senate had voted against the pay hike Wednesday, but reconsidered its action Thursday. The Illinois House swiftly approved the amended pay raise when it was returned from the Senate, by a vote of 111 to 31.

Approval of the pay increase in the Senate came less than 24 hours after the Senate had rejected it. Wednesday, the Senate voted 23 to 23 for the raise, with a three-fifths majority of 35 votes needed to make it effective for the new term beginning in January. Thursday the measure received precisely the number of votes needed, passing by a margin of 36 to 18.

The House earlier had approved pay raises of $3,000 per year, and acceptance of the reduced increases was a foregone conclusion. Among the 15 representatives for the Northwest suburbs, only two voted against the increase. They were State Rep. John Friedland, R-South Elgin, and State Rep. John E. Porter, R-Evanston. State Rep. Robert Juckett, R-Park Ridge, who is hospitalized with a leg ailment, was recorded as absent.

AMONG senators from the Northwest

suburbs, only State Sen. David Regner, R-Mount Prospect, who has opposed all spending measures in this closing session of the 78th General Assembly, voted against the pay increase, which raised legislators' annual salaries from $17,500 to $20,000.

State Sen. John A. Graham, R-Barrington, who originally voted against the pay raise, voted for it Thursday. Graham said at first that economic conditions would not permit the legislature to increase its own pay.

Neither Graham nor Regner, however, will benefit immediately from the pay raise. Both are in midterm and cannot receive pay increases until reelected. Graham will receive an added $1,500 to his wages as assistant leader of the Senate Republicans.

The bill contains increased payment for members of the party leadership as well as an increase in expense allowances from $32 to $36 per day, and an added $2,000 a year for office expenses, for a yearly total of $12,000 for office expenses.

STATE SEN. Bradley M. Glass, R-Northfield, who had opposed the $5,000 increase, was responsible for the amendment reducing the raise to $2,500. He voted for the $2,500 raise both times a vote was taken. State Sen. John Nimrod, R-Skokie, and State Sen. Howard Mohr, (Continued on Page 2)

Vandals cause $1,500 damage at Keller JHS

In one of the worst school break-ins this year, burglars stole and damaged an estimated $1,522 worth of property at Helen Keller Junior High School, 820 Bode Rd., Schaumburg, it was reported Thursday.

Burglars broke windows, rifled desks, damaged doors, destroyed music equipment and stole various items and small amounts of cash. Milton Derr, associate superintendent of Schaumburg Township School Dist. 54, called the burglary one of the most serious ones this year.

Police said the burglars gained entrance to the building by breaking a small hole in an outside door and pushing the pushbar to open the door. The burglary occurred between 11 p.m. Wednesday and 6:30 a.m. Thursday.

The library was the next target, where five tape recorders, a callphone, two typewriter covers and $9 in cash was taken. A glass desk cover was smashed, a book case tipped over and a water fountain plugged up, resulting in minor flooding and water damage to 192 paperback books.

A CLOCK WAS taken from the language arts room. The burglars broke into the science room by breaking a glass window on the door. The glass was shattered on fish tanks in the room, two light fixtures were stolen along with a hot plate and a cabinet door was damaged.

The thieves broke a glass window to the school office, took a gym bag, a stop watch, a time clock, a digital clock and a purse containing $5. About $8 in change was taken from a coin-operated machine outside the office.

The gymnasium was entered, and a door window to an office was broken. The burglars entered the music room and broke a guitar and a violin.

ARSON IS SUSPECTED in a blaze that did an estimated $6,000 damage Thursday evening to the home of Mrs. Melvin Tiags, 314 Westview St.,

Hoffman Estates. Firemen said the doors were open, the house was ransacked and nobody was home when they arrived about 7:20 p.m. The fire was confined to a bedroom.

Woman, 26, charged in check scheme

A Chicago woman was arrested Wednesday for attempting to pass an allegedly forged check at the Baskin Clothing Store in the Woodfield Shopping Center, Schaumburg police said.

Evelyn Scott, 26, was charged with forgery, possession of stolen property and possession of a hypodermic syringe. She was being held in county jail in lieu of $3,000 bond pending an appearance Dec. 18 in the Schaumburg branch of Circuit Court.

Tom Crowder, 33, Detroit, Mich., who was detained along with the Scott woman, was turned over to County Sheriff's Police in connection with a warrant charging him with obstruction of justice in a different incident.

Police were summoned to the shopping center on a report of a woman attempting to pass a bad check for about $200, police said. The possession of stolen property charge was filed after police learned the charge and a driver's license used by the Scott woman were believed to have been stolen. The other charge stemmed from the discovery of two hypodermic needles in her purse, police reported.

Municipal fire department makes gain

The Hoffman Estates Village Board took another step closer to the creation of a municipal fire department Thursday night by adopting three ordinances permitting it to provide fire protection services in the village.

The ordinances, one assuming financial and fire service obligations from the Hoffman Estates Fire Protection District, one creating a municipal fire department and one creating a firemen's pension fund, were passed at a special village board meeting Thursday night.

Enactment of the ordinances will be followed by the filing in Circuit Court of petitions to secure legal approval necessary for the village to form the fire department. George Knickerbocker, attorney handling the fire service transfer, told board members the petitions will be filed next week.

FORMAL ESTABLISHMENT of a fire department likely will not take place, however, until at least Jan. 1, Knickerbocker said, since publication is required of the proposed transfer as well as the holding of a public hearing.

The board also learned Thursday that creation of a new fire department will not necessarily require the dissolution of the fire district.

Trustee Edward Hennessey questioned a clause in one ordinance which called for the fire district's dissolution, saying he thought the district would be maintained as a taxing body to collect taxes from areas outside the village but now served by the district.

BUT BOTH VILLAGE Atty. Edward Hofert and fire district attorney Arthur Zimmerman said that decision will rest with Judge Harry Comerford, who will preside over the hearing.

Zimmerman said there could be "mul-tip problems" in allowing the district to continue in existence, including taxing problems and finding persons residing in the remaining district eligible to serve on the district board as fire trustees.

"My position is that we (the village) will speak to the judge in favor of keeping the district in being and the district will speak in favor of allowing to dissolve, and we'll let the judge in his infinite wisdom decide," Hofert said.

FIRE DISTRICT Pres. William Brilliant told board members, in response to a question from Trustee William Cowin, that the district next week will authorize the issuance of tax anticipation warrants for $150,000 to provide for the district's operation through the end of the fiscal year.

Trustees had questioned Monday whether the responsibility for issuing warrants would rest with the district or the village.

The district will have a $150,000 deficit by the end of the fiscal year April 30, an audit has shown. Additional liabilities will bring the total debt to about $325,000 by April 30, 1976, Village Mgr. George Longmeyer told trustees in a meeting Wednesday.

Think green

The real Christmas tree is coming back, but be ready to look a little harder and pay a little more

If you're buying a Christmas tree this year, be prepared to pay 10 to 15 per cent more than you did last year.

And be prepared to look early, because the supply of trees is more limited than last year. Wholesalers say fewer pine and spruce trees are being cut and shipped this year, possibly because the tree market was so bad last year.

Last year, prices rose by as much as $3 a tree. The only trees that may be unusually expensive this year are Canadian trees, hit by budworms this year, and trees taller than 15 feet, said two Chicago tree wholesalers.

"LAST YEAR WAS a disaster. The Christmas tree sellers lost their pants with the energy crisis," said Joseph Naville, owner of Joseph Naville Co., Chicago, a wholesale tree dealer.

"I think the green Christmas tree is coming back," Naville said. Excluding last year, wholesale prices have not gone up much on green trees in the last five to seven years, he said. "Wholesale prices are still low," Naville said, but added that retailers often raise prices considerably.

A spokesman for M. Walter Christmas Trees, Chicago, said the tree market is "up a little bit." He said that heavy snows in Canada are delaying tree deliveries, but added that price levels should only go up "10 or 15 per cent."

LOCAL DEALERS now are stocked with trees ranging in price from $3 for four-foot tabletop trees to $50 for 16-foot giants. Klehm's Nursery said they have a large supply of short-needed, balsam and long-needed Douglas fir trees in heights of four to eight feet. Amlings Flowerland has trees up to 15 feet and a variety of color-flocked trees, including black, "to go with every decor," said Michael Orr, salesman at Amlings.

Frank Stanek, assistant manager of Klehm's Nursery, said potted trees that can be planted sell for $20 to $30.

Balsams sell for $2.95 to $11.95 and more for those larger than eight feet. Douglas fir trees sell for $15 to $20.

Many local Jaycee and church groups will be selling Christmas trees again this year.

Transit district official asks plan for travel center

Schaumburg's representative to the Northwest Suburban Mass Transit District this week urged village officials to "press ahead" immediately with plans for a regional transportation center in the southwest corner of the village.

William Nelson, a NSMTD director and member of the village transportation committee, estimated Wednesday that it will be two years before a federal grant for a Milwaukee Road west suburban commuter station would be approved. "But, at least, the paperwork could be started now," Nelson told the committee.

A regional transportation center south of Irving Park Road was proposed in 1971 by Village Pres. Robert O. Atcher. Preliminary plans call for placing the center on 20 acres now owned by William Lambert, an associate of the owners of Centex-Schaumburg Industrial Park and Schaumburg Airport.

Survey shows increased use of airport

The number of takeoffs and landings at Schaumburg Airport has grown from about 46,000 in 1972 to an anticipated 65,000 by the end of the present year, and consultants predict a continuing increase in local air traffic.

Peak operations came in October with 8,000 flights logged, transportation committee members learned Wednesday from Curtis Wehling, of Howard, Needles, Tammen and Bergendoff, engineers involved in a $56,000 airport expansion feasibility study. The examination is being partially funded with state and federal grants with remaining costs to be paid by the Village of Schaumburg.

Wehling said a survey of 734 industries in communities within a five-mile radius of the Irving Park Road site of the present airport produced a 30 per cent response, considered "par" for this type of inquiry.

HE SAID questionnaires were returned by 27 companies regularly using aircraft for business purposes. While only four respondents have aircraft based at Schaumburg Airport, 66 per cent of aircraft users claim they frequent the field.

More than half of these businesses say there would be "a considerable" increase in their usage if longer runways, better lighting, instrument approach, improved terminal accommodations and more, inexpensive hangar space were provided.

Wehling said the survey, which constitutes an important part of the inventory portion of the study, requires further analysis.

A forecasting report is due at the Jan. 2 transportation committee meeting, and Wehling said the project will enter its alternate site selection phase in March.

The examination is not confined to the existing airport and consultants have been instructed to consider other possible sites within five miles of village limits.

TENTATIVE PLANS call for commuter and freight rail stations, parking for 3,500 cars, a separate truck terminal and bus and taxi facilities.

The village now is involved in a state and federally funded airport expansion feasibility study which could lead to municipal purchase of the privately owned airport. A public transit study of the Schaumburg-Hoffman Estates area also will be launched next month.

As an adjunct to transportation center planning, the village joined the transit district in May and appointed Nelson as Schaumburg liaison.

NSMTD consists of 12 communities along The Milwaukee Road west suburban line running from Chicago to the East Dundee area. The district was created in 1971 by the railroad and its members have been instrumental in obtaining federal and state money for services in areas served by the railroad.

Hoffman moving toward master plan

Preliminary information for a new comprehensive plan for Hoffman Estates is expected to be outlined by village officials by mid-January.

The information, which will include first-year goals for the village, is to be prepared by the village board for the plan commission.

The commission, principally Comr. Thomas Taylor, is devising the computerized master plan aimed at outlining long-range village goals and assisting in budget and growth planning.

Both Taylor and plan commission chairman Richard Regan alluded to poor planning by former village officials. "We were saddled with a type of zoning and planning that was really horrendous," Regan said in reference to high-density residential complexes approved in the late 1960s.

TAYLOR AND THE commission have been working for several months on a computer program for the master plan and the first results of their sample material were shown to village officials Wednesday.

Taylor's model calls for information including an analysis of land use, population growth and economics. Projections on school enrollments and development and intergovernmental planning also are included.

"There is a need for a dynamic method of planning now," Taylor told a joint meeting of the plan commission and village board. He predicted the village will be among the fastest growing areas in the country in the next decade and will therefore need to project its needs now.

THE MASTER PLAN will be based on goals the village will have to determine, Taylor said. Those decisions may include whether more industry should be permitted to broaden the village tax base, he said.

Village Pres. Virginia Hayter agreed the question will be a critical one, saying the village is "in a crisis financial situation."

She said the village also will have to plan with the understanding that Hoffman Estates is "a middle-class community. We have to provide for the needs of the population that is here."

More concern about what development takes place on borders near the village will have to be shown, too, Mrs. Hayter warned. She said the village "did not address this fact" before but will have to do so now because surrounding developments will have impact on the village.

The firm that will prepare the final plan, Decision Models Unlimited, is represented by M. F. Hepple, with whom Taylor works at a Chicago bank. Taylor has said he may join Hepple in the company when the village's contract with the firm is fulfilled, probably sometime next year.

The village has contracted to pay $3,000 to the company for the computer planning service.

Former Outreach worker here gets new post

The former director of the Outreach program at Omni-House: Youth Services Bureau in Wheeling has been named the new director of youth services in Hoffman Estates.

Tom Woodard will begin duties with Hoffman Estates Dec. 10 at an annual salary of $10,300. He will replace Bryan Syer, who resigned in October to take a position with the Youth Services Bureau of the Sheriff's office.

Woodard has worked with Omni-House in Wheeling, as a youth worker in Elk Grove and at the Illinois Training Center for Boys at St. Charles.

He has a bachelor's degree in youth counseling and resides in Evanston.

Jaycee of December named

Frank Kozak, 928 Royal Ct., was named Schaumburg Jaycee of the month for December.

Kozak was chairman of the October Schaumburg Shindig which benefited the Jaycees Project AOA (Alive on Arrival) for which funds are being collected to purchase a paramedic vehicle for the fire department.

Kozak is also one of the Jaycee clowns, a group of club members who participate in local parades and children's celebrations.

Senate does turnabout, votes to OK $2,500 pay raises

by BOB LAHEY
SPRINGFIELD — Pay raises of $2,500 per year for Illinois legislators were approved and sent to Gov. Daniel Walker for his signature Thursday night after the Illinois Senate reversed a decision of a day earlier and voted for the pay increases.

The Senate had voted against the pay hike Wednesday, but reconsidered its action Thursday. The Illinois House swiftly approved the amended pay raise when it was returned from the Senate, by a vote of 111 to 31.

Approval of the pay increase in the Senate came less than 24 hours after the Senate had rejected it. Wednesday, the Senate voted 25 to 23 for the raise, with a three-fifths majority of 38 votes needed to make it effective for the new term beginning in January. Thursday the measure received precisely the number of votes needed, passing by a margin of 36 to 18.

The House earlier had approved pay raises of $5,000 per year, and acceptance of the reduced increases was a foregone conclusion. Among the 15 representatives for the Northwest suburbs, only two voted against the increase. They were State Rep. John Friedland, R-South Elgin, and State Rep. John E. Porter, R-Evanston. State Rep. Robert Juckett, R-Park Ridge, who is hospitalized with a leg ailment, was recorded as absent.

AMONG senators from the Northwest

suburbs, only State Sen. David Regner, R-Mount Prospect, who has opposed all spending measures in this closing session of the 78th General Assembly, voted against the pay increase, which raised legislators' annual salaries from $17,500 to $20,000.

State Sen. John A. Graham, R-Barrington, who originally voted against the pay raise, voted for it Thursday. Graham said at first that economic conditions would not permit the legislature to increase its own pay.

Neither Graham nor Regner, however, will benefit immediately from the pay raise. Both are in midterm and cannot receive pay increases until reelected. Graham will receive an added $1,500 to his wages as assistant leader of the Senate Republicans.

The bill contains increased payment for members of the party leadership as well as an increase in expense allowances from $32 to $36 per day, and an added $2,000 a year for office expenses, for a yearly total of $12,000 for office expenses.

STATE SEN. Bradley M. Glas, R-Northfield, who had opposed the $5,000 increase, was responsible for the amendment reducing the raise to $2,500. He voted for the $2,500 raise both times a vote was taken. State Sen. John Nimrod, R-Skokie, and State Sen. Howard Mohr, (Continued on Page 2)

Unless home rule powers gained
Attorney rules city can't pass ethics law

Rolling Meadows cannot enact a stringent ethics bill unless it becomes a home-rule community, City Atty. Donald M. Rose said.

Rose was asked by Ald. Kenneth W. Retzke, 5th, to study an ethics bill patterned after an ordinance recently approved by the Palatine Village Board. The city council's finance, ordinance and judiciary committee has endorsed the proposal.

But "unless you are a home-rule municipality, you cannot expand on or broaden state legislation," Rose said this week. The Palatine ordinance is one of the most stringent ethics laws approved by area municipalities.

Municipalities qualify for home-rule status by having populations of 25,000 or by a majority vote in a referendum. The status allows communities to legislate in all areas not reserved to state government. Municipalities without home rule are restricted to legislating in areas granted by state government. Home rule also permits municipalities increased taxing powers.

CITY OFFICIALS currently are filling out state disclosure forms, in compliance with the state ethics law. For most of them, the forms will contain no answers except their names, offices and the phrase "does not apply." Few local governmental officials receive income exceeding $1,200 from businesses dealing with the city or own greater than a $5,000 interest in such firms. Basically, the state law requires disclosure of only the sources or identities of those types of economic interest, and not amounts of income received.

The Retzke proposal went much further. Although it appears to be dead for the present, it could be revived next spring as municipal elections approach. City officials are considering adding a home rule referendum to the April ballot. If they do, and if the referendum passes, Retzke may revive the local ethics law proposal.

THE ORDINANCE Retzke proposed would cover all elected officials, plan commission and zoning board members, the city manager and his assistants, city engineer, attorney, deputy clerk, department heads and firms conducting business with the city.

Rather than disclosing only sources of income, it would require listings of specific income levels; real estate ownership within the four townships surrounding the city; percentage of ownership or offices held in commercial developments; indebtedness; gifts and gratuities given or received; and unpaid debts an official has been released from or has released others from.

Des Plaines man injured in crash

A Des Plaines man escaped with minor injuries after his auto went through a fence and across two ditches, hit a culvert and flipped Thursday afternoon in Rolling Meadows.

Brian Albert, 29, of 1747 White St., was southbound on Ill. Rte. 53 when he apparently lost control of his car, said Trooper Carl Kobler of Illinois State Police. The car went off the roadway through a chain link fence, said Kobler. It crossed West Frontage Road and hit the ditch on the other side. It then hit the culvert and a wooden fence, flipped over, landing on its wheels, and hit the fence again, he said.

Albert was treated and released at Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights.

Crusade of Mercy drive falls short

The Rolling Meadows Crusade of Mercy campaign is far short of its goal, with only about one week remaining before it normally would end.

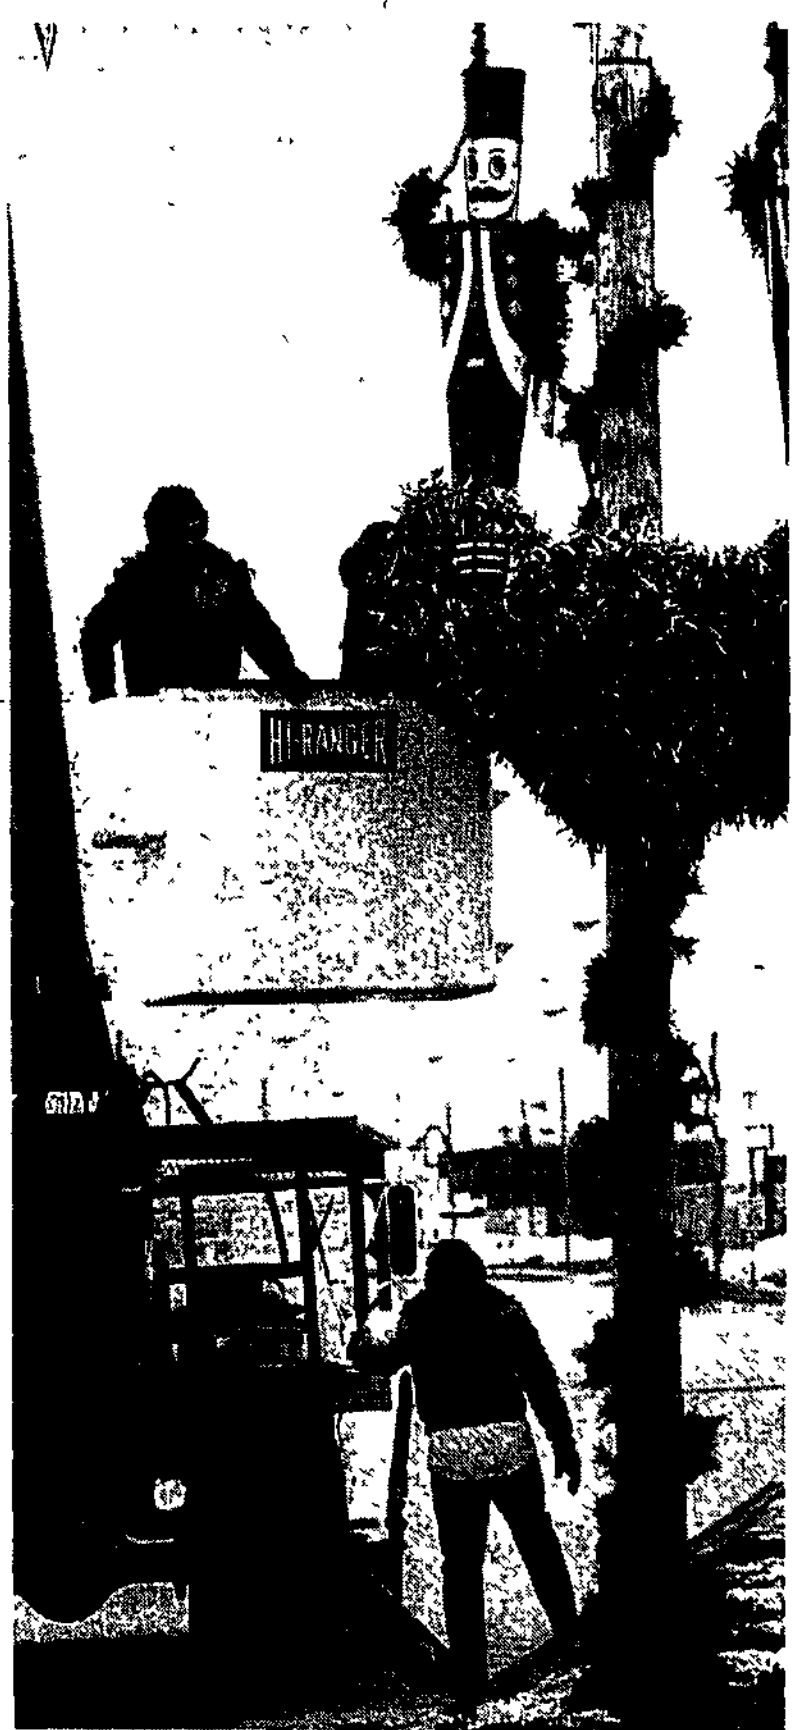

Frank Catini, treasurer of the fund, said Thursday only $6,890.80 has been donated toward the $11,500 goal.

"That's not very good for this time of year. We should be very close to the top right now. Theoretically the campaign is supposed to be over in a week or so,"

Catini said. He has been campaign treasurer for several years, and based his comments on past experience.

The fund drive will continue, Catini said with a special mailing to residents within a few days and a canvass of businessmen next week.

Catini said it appears Rolling Meadows residents are concerned about their future economic situations, in light of the faltering national economy.

Decorations go up despite lack of funds to cover them

Rolling Meadows Christmas decorations went up along Kirchoff Road this week, but their rise to the tops of poles along the road was a lot faster than the rise in the bank account to pay for them.

Only $668 has been contributed since January to pay for the trimmings the City of Rolling Meadows purchased from Chicago's State Street Council for $16,000. The city bought the lights at the urging of the Rolling Meadows Chamber of Commerce, which is sponsoring the fund drive to defray part of the cost. The city had asked the chamber to pay half the cost, but when the chamber could not guarantee $8,000, the city agreed to the fund drive plan.

The State Street Council paid more than $100,000 for the decorations four years ago. The council changes its decorations every three years, and until 1973 had sold the used trimmings individually at greatly reduced prices. But Rolling Meadows purchased the entire lot of 73 units last January.

Chamber officials had estimated contributions of $1 per family in the city per year would pay for the decorations. In three years, but the contributions have not been coming in at that rate. Donations may be mailed to the Rolling Meadows Christmas Decorations Fund at the Bank of Rolling Meadows, 3250 Kirchoff Rd.

TOY SOLDIERS march on parade on posts along main Rolling Meadows routes as Public Works crews put up the city's Christmas trimmings for the first time. Officials are trying to raise funds to pay for the decorations which formerly hung along Chicago's State Street.

WALTER CHRISTMAS TREE SALE

Think green
The real Christmas tree is coming back, but be ready to look a little harder and pay a little more

If you're buying a Christmas tree this year, be prepared to pay 10 to 15 per cent more than you did last year.

And be prepared to look early, because the supply of trees is more limited than last year. Wholesalers say fewer pine and spruce trees are being cut and shipped this year, possibly because the tree market was so bad last year.

Last year, prices rose by as much as $3 a tree. The only trees that may be unusually expensive this year are Canadian trees, hit by budworms this year, and trees taller than 15 feet, said two Chicago tree wholesalers.

"LAST YEAR WAS a disaster. The Christmas tree sellers lost their pants with the energy crisis," said Joseph Navilio, owner of Joseph Navilio Co., Chicago, a wholesale tree dealer.

"I think the green Christmas tree is coming back," Navilio said. Excluding last year, wholesale prices have not gone up much on green trees in the last five to seven years, he said. "Wholesale prices are still low," Navilio said, but added that retailers often raise prices considerably.

A spokesman for M. Walter Christmas Trees, Chicago, said the tree market is "up a little bit." He said that heavy snows in Canada are delaying tree deliveries, but added that price levels should only go up "10 or 15 per cent."

LOCAL DEALERS now are stocked with trees ranging in price from $3 for four-foot tabletop trees to $50 for 16-foot giants. Klehm's Nursery said they have a large supply of short-needled balsam and long-needled Douglas fir trees in heights of four to eight feet. Amlings Flowerland has trees up to 16 feet and a variety of color-flocked trees, including black, "to go with every decor," said Michael Orr, salesman at Amlings.

Frank Stanek, assistant manager of Klehm's Nursery, said potted trees that can be planted sell for $20 to $30. Balsams sell for $2.95 to $11.95 and more for those larger than eight feet. Douglas fir trees sell for $15 to $20.

Many local Jaycee and church groups will be selling Christmas trees again this year.

President Ford cites efforts of Watt Watchers

by JOE SWICKARD

The Palatine Watt Watchers, an energy conservation club, has received recognition from President Ford. Now all they have to do is wait for their electric bills.

The 11-household club was formed through the efforts of Pamela Mitchell after watching Ford's anti-inflation message to the country in October. A peek at her electric bill convinced her that she and her family could fight inflation and conserve energy at the same time by being more mindful of how they use electricity.

The Mitchells and other residents of the Winston Park subdivision hoped, when the club was formed, to cut their next light bill in half. The next bills are due about the middle of this month, and Mrs. Mitchell admitted the Watt Watchers are getting a little nervous as the deadline nears.

BUT NO MATTER how they fare on their bills, their efforts resulted in a personal letter of commendation from the President.

Mrs. Mitchell wrote Ford explaining her club's goals and hoped for an answer.

"We had heard he personally answered the letters he received. Especially those from children. It took quite a long time to get his answer. But it's his personal signature, and there are no secretary's initials either. It's not a form letter," she said.

The President wrote on official embossed White House stationery: "I am pleased to have your commitment that, together with other couples in your neighborhood, you will be doing your part to help . . . stop inflation and save energy."

Besides the Presidential letter, Mrs. Mitchell said her idea is catching on elsewhere. A disk jockey in Indiana heard of her methods and started a similar group in his home town.

A CLUB OF 12 families in Mount Prospect also has been formed, Mrs. Mitchell said. She said there are probably other clubs that she is not aware of.

Even before the October message, the Mitchells were trying to ease the energy crunch. Last Christmas, for

WASHINGTON
November 27, 1974

Dear Mrs. Mitchell:

Thank you for your recent letter and expression of support for the WIN Program. I am pleased to have your commitment that, together with other couples in your neighborhood, you will be doing your part to help in our national effort to stop inflation and save energy. With the help of ideas from families and individuals across the land, our country can overcome this serious problem. This is a difficult time for all of us. Victory is assured, however, by the will and spirit of Americans to WIN.

Thank you again and keep it up.

Best wishes to the "Watt Watchers."

"This year we were told it was all right to have the outside lights. We are going to decorate one small tree outside, plus the one in the house," she said.

Bus hits car, house, uproots tree; 2 injured

Two persons suffered minor injuries Thursday afternoon in a car-bus accident which also resulted in the bus striking a house and uprooting a tree.

Injured in the 2:30 p.m. accident at the intersection of Evergreen and I-Oka avenues were the bus driver, Danny Snell, 28, Park Ridge, and the car's driver, Theresa A. Kratochvil, 32, of 811 W. Dresser Dr., Mount Prospect. Both were released after treatment at Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights.

Police said the car and bus apparently collided twice, the car being spun around by the first impact. After the crash, police said the bus continued forward, crossing the lawn at 122 S. I-Oka Ave.

The bus then went over a portion of the cement steps at the Edward Curtin home, knocking down a railing, and uprooted an adjacent tree. A second tree was damaged.

Police said no damage estimate was available for either vehicle or the Curtin property. Police charged Snell with failure to yield the right-of-way at an uncontrolled intersection. The bus is owned by United Motor Coach Co. of Des Plaines.

It was the second such incident in less than a month in Mount Prospect. A Cook County School Bus Inc. bus Nov. 13 struck the Delroy Tyre home, 121 N. Pine St. That bus too had been in a collision first with a car, and two persons suffered minor injuries.

Des Plaines fire victims receive aid

by LUISA GINETTI

Dozens of persons have come to the aid of a Des Plaines family left homeless Wednesday when fire ruined their apartment at 960 Beau Dr.

The fire destroyed all the possessions of Mrs. James Hill, who with her three children, Mary, 11, Michael, 7 and Tammy, 6, have been put up at the Royal Court Inn, 1750 S. Elmhurst Rd., by the Red Cross.

A neighbor's plea for help for the family has resulted in a new apartment for the family, food and rent assistance from Elk Grove Township, clothing and furnishings for their new apartment and the establishment of a trust fund for the family.

Barb Duss said her phone started ringing at 7:45 a.m. Thursday after an article appeared in The Herald asking people who wished to donate items to call her.

"THE CALLS HAVE been continuous and I'm so very grateful to people who have offered to help," Mrs. Duss said.

"If this lifts up Mrs. Hill's spirits as much as it did mine, she'll be in heaven."

Items donated to the family include televisions, couches, chairs, clothing and a bicycle, Mrs. Duss said. She was busy all day Thursday picking up items as well as collecting things delivered to her apartment, Mrs. Duss said.

Garage space in the apartment complex has been made available to store the items.

Mary Lu Gladney, rental agent for the apartments, said a two-bedroom apartment for the family in the complex has been found and the Hills will move in today.

THE STEVEN L. Amour Realty Co., owners of the complex, have agreed to waive the December rent for Mrs. Hill and will renew her lease for three months in January, Mrs. Gladney said.

Mrs. Gladney said her son will help the Hills move into the apartment since they have no transportation available.

Mrs. Gladney's daughter, Kathy, 12, and two of her school friends from Friendship Junior High, Luann Capiz, 13, and Carol Tojza, 12, all residents of the complex, said they have offered to babysit for Mrs. Hill's children. The girls also plan to conduct a door-to-door fund-raising drive through the complex to solicit money from other residents to help the family.

Gerald Buckler, principal of Albert Einstein School, where Tammy Hill attends class, arranged to set up a trust fund for the family at the First National Bank of Des Plaines.

"WHEN I FOUND out about the situation I felt it was the humane thing to do," Buckler said.

Gil Crows will serve as the trust officer for the fund and contributions in care of the Mrs. James Hill Trust Fund should be sent to the bank in care of Crows.

Jaycees, church group set to sell Christmas trees

Jaycee Christmas tree sales start Sunday in Rolling Meadows. Tree sales by a community church men's group will open Thursday.

The Jaycee sale benefits community activities sponsored by the club, while proceeds from the church group's sales will finance building and ground maintenance at the church.

The Jaycees will sell trees for $1.25 per foot at Rolling Meadows Shopping Center, Meadow Drive and Kirchoff Road, from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Saturdays and Sundays and 6 to 10 p.m. weekdays. Members of the club selected and cut the trees themselves this year, said Jaycee Dick Treiber, who promised fresher stock and better quality than previous year's supplies.

Community Church's Men of the Yoke also have expanded their supply, said Ray Weaver project chairman.

THEY ARE PICKING up their trees

Saturday and will bring back Scotch and Nova Scotia pines. The Nova Scotia pines will replace balsam, which the club has sold in past years, Weaver said. Nova Scotia pines will sell for from $5 to $10, but the price of Scotch pines has not been set, said Weaver.

The Men of the Yoke will sell their trees in the church parking lot at 2720 Kirchoff Rd. from 1 to 3:30 p.m. weekdays and from 9 a.m. to late evening Saturdays and Sundays.

The Jaycee sale will help support another community project the club is preparing for the holiday season, Treiber said, the club sponsors visits by Santa Claus and his elf, Jolly, to Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights, on Christmas Eve, and to area shut-ins during the preholiday season. Persons wishing to notify the Jaycees of shut-ins can call Treiber at 392-0519.

'Reputation' key to aiding alcoholics?

by STIRLING MORITA

Establishing a reputation in the community is the key to getting more Schaumburg Township residents to enlist the aid of the Alcoholism-Drug Dependency counseling program, the ADD director believes.

In a meeting Tuesday night with two members of the Schaumburg Township Mental Health Board, Roger Boekenbauer, the director, said only 18 of ADD's total of 107 patients so far this year are from the township. He said the low number might be because residents don't know of the counseling services available from the program's out-patient center in Rolling Meadows.

The center, 3005 Newport Dr., Suite 210, opened in September with $45,000 in U.S. revenue-sharing funds furnished by Palatine, Schaumburg and Elk Grove townships. The funds are to pay partially for treatment for township residents and for educational programs to be done by the clinic's staff. Lutheran Welfare Services of Illinois operates the center. The program was conducted weekly from Jan. 1 to Sept. 1 and now is full-time since moving into the new facility.

BOEKENBAUER SAID the clinic gets more patients from the other two townships. He added that many come from Wheeling Township and he hoped to secure funds from that township. Many patients also come from outside the four-township area from as far away as Kankakee and Waukegan.

The director said the staff can handle patients from outside the area because of open appointment times, but a decision will have to be made later as to treating people from outside the area when the caseload increases.

"We are a new group in the community. A lot of where we are now is building relationships with community groups (for patient referrals)," he said.

Boekenbauer added that he has met with school guidance counselors, township officials, pastors and community groups and written to hospitals and doctors in hopes of reaching as many referral sources as possible.

He noted that he has submitted a proposal to Motorola Inc. in Schaumburg to start an employee educational program in connection with ADD.

Most of the patient referrals from Schaumburg Township have been from pastors or Elgin State hospital.

BOEKENBAUER said the patients are mostly middle-aged, from 35 to 50 years old. He explained that although there are more men than women patients, the difference between the two is starting to drop like the national trend.

"Many of our patients are involved with alcohol and prescription drugs," Boekenbauer said, adding that one of the big myths around is that the teen-agers are the only ones using drugs.

Many of the fees paid by patients are nominal $1 fees, but some are paid according to the patient's financial situation. He said he hoped the clinic would receive about $6,000 in fees in a year.

Boekenbauer and three trained counselors are available at the center from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. Mondays through Thursdays and from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Fridays.

People concerned with their alcoholic or drug-related problems or those of a family member are urged to set up an appointment by calling 394-9797

Vandals damage Keller School

In one of the worst school break-ins this year, burglars stole and damaged an estimated $1,522 worth of property at Helen Keller Junior High School, 320 Bode Rd., Schaumburg, it was reported Thursday.

Burglars broke windows, rifled desks, damaged doors, destroyed music equipment and stole various items and small amounts of cash. Milton Derr, associate superintendent of Schaumburg Township School Dist. 54, called the burglary one of the most serious ones this year.

Police said the burglars gained entrance to the building by breaking a small hole in an outside door and pushing the pushbar to open the door. The burglary occurred between 11 p.m. Wednesday and 6:30 a.m. Thursday.

The library was the next target, where five tape recorders, a calophone, two typewriter covers and $9 in cash was taken. A glass desk cover was smashed, a book case tipped over and a water fountain plugged up, resulting in minor flooding and water damage to 192 paperback books.

Senate does turnabout, votes to OK $2,500 pay raises

by BOB LAHEY
SPRINGFIELD — Pay raises of $2,500 per year for Illinois legislators were approved and sent to Gov. Daniel Walker for his signature Thursday night after the Illinois Senate reversed a decision of a day earlier and voted for the pay increases.

The Senate had voted against the pay hike Wednesday, but reconsidered its action Thursday. The Illinois House swiftly approved the amended pay raise when it was returned from the Senate, by a vote of 111 to 31.

Approval of the pay increase in the Senate came less than 24 hours after the Senate had rejected it. Wednesday, the Senate voted 25 to 23 for the raise, with a three-fifths majority of 36 votes needed to make it effective for the new term beginning in January. Thursday the measure received precisely the number of votes needed, passing by a margin of 36 to 18.

The House earlier had approved pay raises of $5,000 per year, and acceptance of the reduced increases was a foregone conclusion. Among the 15 representatives for the Northwest suburbs, only two voted against the increase. They were State Rep. John Friedland, R-South Elgin, and State Rep. John E. Porter, R-Evanston. State Rep. Robert Juckett, R-Park Ridge, who is hospitalized with a leg ailment, was recorded as absent.

AMONG senators from the Northwest suburbs, only State Sen. David Regner, R-Mount Prospect, who has opposed all spending measures in this closing session of the 78th General Assembly, voted against the pay increase, which raised legislators' annual salaries from $17,500 to $20,000.

State Sen. John A. Graham, R-Barrington, who originally voted against the pay raise, voted for it Thursday. Graham said at first that economic conditions would not permit the legislature to increase its own pay.

Neither Graham nor Regner, however, will benefit immediately from the pay raise. Both are in midterm and cannot receive pay increases until reelected. Graham will receive an added $1,500 to his wages as assistant leader of the Senate Republicans.

The bill contains increased payment for members of the party leadership as well as an increase in expense allowances from $32 to $36 per day, and an added $2,000 a year for office expenses, for a yearly total of $12,000 for office expenses.

STATE SEN. Bradley M. Glass, R-Northfield, who had opposed the $5,000 increase, was responsible for the amendment reducing the raise to $2,500. He voted for the $2,500 raise both times a vote was taken. State Sen. John Nimrod, R-Skokie, and State Sen. Howard Mohr, (Continued on Page 2)

Meeting Wednesday with residents Expansion of village to north considered

by JOANN VAN WYE
Palatine's boundaries soon may be extended north to include four subdivisions of more than 750 homes in unincorporated Palatine Township. Subdivision residents are exploring annexation to the village.

Village officials will meet Wednesday with residents of Palatine Park subdivision to discuss annexation to the village.

Another meeting is planned for next Friday to discuss annexation with homeowners in English Valley, Heatherlea and Pepper Tree subdivisions north of the village. This meeting will be at 8 p.m. at Lincoln School, 1021 Ridgewood.

The purpose of the meetings is to inform residents of the subdivisions about what village officials say are advantages to annexation.

"Annexation will help everyone. The village will round out its boundaries and the people will finally have a home," Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones said.

THE MAIN CONCERN of residents regarding annexation is how it will affect their taxes. Village officials are preparing comparison charts on taxes within the village and in unincorporated areas.

The difference between the tax bills of residents in the village and unincorporated areas is 9.68 cents per $100 assessed valuation. This means a homeowner whose home has an equalized assessed value of $12,000 would pay an additional $116.30 if annexed to the village.

However, the Palatine Park District and Palatine Rural Park District are planning to merge Jan. 1. If this happens the difference in the tax rate would be 6.01 cents per $100 assessed valuation. This means a homeowner with a home assessed at $12,000 would pay $72.10 more instead of $116.30.

Offsetting the increase in taxes would be a reduction in the cost of vehicle stickers from $15 in Cook County to $7 in the village, commuter passes from $11

Village asks voluntary snow clearing first

Walking through Palatine this winter should be easier if merchants heed the plea of Palatine officials to keep their sidewalks cleared of snow.

Persons serving the public will be asked to voluntarily clear sidewalks in front of their property to make walking easier and safer. The Palatine Chamber of Commerce and Industry also will be asked to appeal to its members to keep their sidewalks cleared.

The health, safety and welfare committee of the village board decided this week to try voluntary snow shoveling before it considers an ordinance making snow shoveling in front of businesses mandatory.

President Ford cites efforts of Watt Watchers

by JOE SWICKARD

The Palatine Watt Watchers, an energy conservation club, has received recognition from President Ford. Now all they have to do is wait for their electric bills.

The 11-household club was formed through the efforts of Pamela Mitchell after watching Ford's anti-inflation message to the country in October. A peek at her electric bill convinced her that she and her family could fight inflation and conserve energy at the same time by being more mindful of how they use electricity.

The Mitchells and other residents of the Winston Park subdivision hoped, when the club was formed, to cut their next light bill in half. The next bills are due about the middle of this month, and Mrs. Mitchell admitted the Watt Watchers are getting a little nervous as the deadline nears.

BUT NO MATTER how they fare on their bills, their efforts resulted in a personal letter of commendation from the President.

Mrs. Mitchell wrote Ford explaining her club's goals and hoped for an answer.

"We had heard he personally answered the letters he received. Especially those from children. It took quite a long time to get his answer. But it's his personal signature, and there are no secretary's initials either. It's not a form letter," she said.

The President wrote on official embossed White House stationery: "I am pleased to have your commitment that, together with other couples in your neighborhood, you will be doing your part to help... stop inflation and save energy."

Besides the Presidential letter, Mrs. Mitchell said her idea is catching on elsewhere. A disk jockey in Indiana heard of her methods and started a similar group in his home town.

A CLUB OF 12 families in Mount Prospect also has been formed, Mrs. Mitchell said. She said there are probably other clubs that she is not aware of.

Even before the October message, the Mitchells were trying to ease the energy crunch. Last Christmas, for

Dear Mrs. Mitchell:
Thank you for your recent letter and expression of support for the WIN Program. I am pleased to have your commitment that, together with other couples in your neighborhood, you will be doing your part to help in our national effort to stop inflation and save energy. With the help of ideas from families and individuals across the land, our country can overcome this serious problem. This is a difficult time for all of us. Victory is assured, however, by the will and spirit of Americans to WIN.
Thank you again and keep it up.

Des Plaines man injured in auto crash

A Des Plaines man escaped with minor injuries after his auto went through a fence and across two ditches, hit a culvert and flipped Thursday afternoon in Rolling Meadows.

Brian Albert, 29, of 1747 White St., was southbound on Ill. Rte. 53 when he apparently lost control of his car, said Trooper Carl Kobler of Illinois State Police. The car went off the roadway through a chain link fence, said Kobler. It crossed West Frontage Road and hit the ditch on the other side. It then hit the culvert and a wooden fence, flipped over, landing on its wheels, and hit the fence again, he said.

Albert was treated and released at Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights.

Think green

The real Christmas tree is coming back, but be ready to look a little harder and pay a little more

If you're buying a Christmas tree this year, be prepared to pay 10 to 15 per cent more than you did last year. And be prepared to look early, because the supply of trees is more limited than last year. Wholesalers say fewer pine and spruce trees are being cut and shipped this year, possibly because the tree market was so bad last year.

Last year, prices rose by as much as $3 a tree. The only trees that may be unusually expensive this year are Canadian trees, hit by budworms this year, and trees taller than 15 feet, said two Chicago tree wholesalers.

"LAST YEAR WAS a disaster. The Christmas tree sellers lost their pants with the energy crisis," said Joseph Naville, owner of Joseph Naville Co., Chicago, a wholesale tree dealer.

"I think the green Christmas tree is coming back," Naville said. Excluding last year, wholesale prices have not gone up much on green trees in the last five to seven years, he said. "Wholesale prices are still low," Naville said, but added that retailers often raise prices considerably.

A spokesman for M. Walter Christmas Trees, Chicago, said the tree market is "up a little bit." He said that heavy snows in Canada are delaying tree deliveries, but added that price levels should only go up "10 or 15 per cent."

LOCAL DEALERS now are stocked with trees ranging in price from $3 for four-foot tabletop trees to $50 for 16-foot giants. Klehm's Nursery said they have a large supply of short-necked balsam and long-necked Douglas fir trees in heights of four to eight feet. Amlings Flowerland has trees up to 18 feet and a variety of color-flocked trees, including black, "to go with every decor," said Michael Orr, salesman at Amlings.

Frank Stanek, assistant manager of Klehm's Nursery, said potted trees that can be planted sell for $20 to $30. Balsams sell for $2.95 to $11.95 and more for those larger than eight feet. Douglas fir trees sell for $15 to $20.

Many local Jaycee and church groups will be selling Christmas trees again this year.

Blacktop to be removed today

Twardziks lose battle with county over driveway

Stanley and Marian Twardzik, 1764 E. Euclid Ave., Mount Prospect, have apparently lost their battle to keep their 30-foot driveway.

Workmen cut the driveway into two parts Thursday in preparation for removing that portion of the blacktop which exceeds county limits. Mrs. Twardzik said she expects the workmen to return today to remove the blacktop. Twardzik said he widened his driveway six years ago, because he needed more room to turn into his property from Euclid Avenue, which has a 45 m.p.h. speed limit. The county, however, says that Twardzik never obtained a permit for the work, and therefore must comply with 1974 department standards. Twardzik said a permit was obtained for the work, but he said he did not have an extra copy.

Although county standards call for 16-foot-wide driveways, Mrs. Twardzik said the workmen are only removing six feet from the 30-foot driveway. Dan Cohen, county highway construction supervisor, was unavailable to comment on how much of the driveway was to be removed.

When workmen showed up Thursday morning to remove a section of the driveway, Mrs. Twardzik made an attempt to stop the work. The confrontation, however, was minor compared to last month when the Twardziks parked their cars on the property to block the workmen.

"I have no choice in the matter," Mrs. Twardzik said, when asked why the same tactics weren't applied Thursday. She said she had hoped to get some help from the governor's office, but said the workmen arrived too soon.

Area family burned out of home gets aid

by LUISA GINETTI

Dozens of persons have come to the aid of a Des Plaines family left homeless Wednesday when fire ruined their apartment at 960 Beau Dr.

The fire destroyed all the possessions of Mrs. James Hill, who with her three children, Mary, 11, Michael, 7 and Tammy, 6, have been put up at the Royal Court Inn, 1750 S. Elmhurst Rd., by the Red Cross.

A neighbor's plea for help for the family has resulted in a new apartment for the family, food and rent assistance from Elk Grove Township, clothing and furnishings for their new apartment and the establishment of a trust fund for the family.

Barb Duss said her phone started ringing at 7:45 a.m. Thursday after an article appeared in The Herald asking people who wished to donate items to call her.

"THE CALLS HAVE been continuous and I'm so very grateful to people who have offered to help," Mrs. Duss said. "If this lifts up Mrs. Hill's spirits as much as it did mine, she'll be in heaven."

Items donated to the family include televisions, couches, chairs, clothing and a bicycle, Mrs. Duss said. She was busy all day Thursday picking up items as well as collecting things delivered to her apartment, Mrs. Duss said.

Garage space in the apartment complex has been made available to store the items.

Mary Lu Gladney, rental agent for the apartments, said a two-bedroom apartment for the family in the complex has been found and the Hills will move in today.

TIE STEVEN L. Amdur Realty Co., owners of the complex, have agreed to waive the December rent for Mrs. Hill and will renew her lease for three months in January, Mrs. Gladney said.

"A phone call to me could be worth money to you!"

"Hello, I'm your local Safeco agent and I've helped a lot of people save money on their auto insurance. I might be able to save you money too! For complete details, simply call me..."

Tax bills to go up

MSD OKs $401 million budget, 83 per cent hike

Metropolitan Sanitary District trustees approved a $401 million budget Thursday and predicted the 1975 budget will mean a tax rate of 38.13 cents per $100 assessed valuation on tax bills paid in 1976.

The budget, increased steeply over the 1974 budget of $218 million, plans hopes on federal and state grants for engineering design and construction projects.

The anticipated tax rate is 1.57 cents per $100 assessed valuation higher than the 36.56 cent rate MSD officials anticipate on the 1974 tax bills homeowners will receive next spring.

The budget approved Thursday increased by 4.3 per cent the recommendations the MSD general superintendent made to the board in September. The increases came as board members made additions in 22 separate budget hearings which included a $30,000 planning study on use of MSD land, a $225,000 increase in the cost of health insurance premiums for MSD employees and $50,000 to finance public relations activities in Fulton County for the MSD land reclamation program and to scientifically monitor pollution levels at district plants.

The Civic Federation, the only agency to testify at a formal hearing on the budget earlier this week, criticized the MSD board's decision to give nonunion workers a 9 per cent pay hike and said a 3 per cent cost of living increase would have been sufficient because MSD workers are paid better than many private industry employees.

IN OTHER ACTION Thursday, the MSD board discussed plans to obtain rights-of-way for three of the tunnels that will collect sewage under Mount Prospect.

The tunnels, which will carry sanitary sewage from Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Wheeling, Elk Grove Village, Buffalo Grove, Des Plaines and Rolling Meadows to the O'Hare Water Reclamation plant at Elmhurst Road and Oakton Street in Des Plaines, will be the subject of a public hearing at 7:30 p.m. Dec. 19 at the Mount Prospect Community Center, 600 S. See-Gwon Ave.

The right-of-way ordinance revealed the MSD plans to negotiate to buy permanent easements for the tunnels in three locations — a 20-foot wide strip north of Oakton Street from Elmhurst Road to Busse Road, a small parcel at Elmhurst Road and Longquist Boulevard and a strip north of Lincoln Street and east of Busse Road.

The MSD's request for easements across public lands such as parkways in Mount Prospect has been delayed by village officials until after the public hearing on the tunnels.

U.S. probing Elk Grove furnaces

by JILL BETTNER

Federal investigators are probing the causes of a massive number of furnace failures in Elk Grove Village homes built by Centex Homes Corp., The Herald has learned.

The U.S. Consumer Products Safety Commission is looking for answers in the continuing controversy over who is responsible for the failure of furnaces in an estimated 1,700 homes.

The outcome of the investigation could lead to legal action against Johnson Furnace Corp., manufacturer of the defective furnaces and possibly Centex, a commission official said.

Working with information supplied by the Chicago office of the commission, federal authorities are attempting to define reasons for the furnace failures, whether it is a widespread problem and the severity of injuries that could occur as a result of the defects.

Carl Blechschmidt, director of the commission's division of product defect identification, said assigning blame for the furnace failures is difficult because apparently there are a number of contributing factors.

"WE'RE HAVING SOME trouble pinpointing the exact cause and establishing the degree of hazard that we're dealing with," Blechschmidt said. "It doesn't appear to be a national problem; at least, we haven't had any other similar complaints that I know of from other parts of the country."

Blechschmidt said he expects the commission to complete its research soon. If investigators conclude there is what he termed "a substantial product hazard," the commission will take steps to correct the problem.

Although Blechschmidt could not comment if possible government action could be aimed at Johnson or Centex or both, he said the commission usually moves against manufacturers, retailers and distributors of defective products.

Information on the Elk Grove Village furnace problem has been in the hands of the federal authorities for several months, according to an investigator in the commission's Chicago office.

DuWAYNE KAPALIS said he accompanied local building inspectors on a tour of several homes to get a firsthand look at some of the defective furnaces and submitted a report of his findings to the Washington office several months ago.

"If this were a widespread problem around the country, I'm sure we would have arrived at a conclusion as to what to do much sooner," Blechschmidt said explaining the agency's delay. "We're just trying to sort out all the things that apply to the situation and trying to figure out why it seems to be just in that one pocket."

Bus hits car, house, uproots tree; 2 injured

Two persons suffered minor injuries Thursday afternoon in a car-bus accident which also resulted in the bus striking a house and uprooting a tree.

Injured in the 2:30 p.m. accident at the intersection of Evergreen and I-Oka avenues were the bus driver, Danny Snell, 28, Park Ridge, and the car's driver, Theresa A. Kratochvil, 32, of 811 W. Dresser Dr., Mount Prospect. Both were released after treatment at Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights.

Police said the car and bus apparently collided twice, the car being spun around by the first impact. After the crash, police said the bus continued forward, crossing the lawn at 122 S. I-Oka Ave.

The bus then went over a portion of the cement steps at the Edward Curtin home, knocking down a railing, and uprooted an adjacent tree. A second tree was damaged.

Police said no damage estimate was available for either vehicle or the Curtin property. Police charged Snell with failure to yield the right-of-way at an uncontrolled intersection. The bus is owned by United Motor Coach Co. of Des Plaines.

It was the second such incident in less than a month in Mount Prospect. A Cook County School Bus Inc. bus Nov. 13 struck the Delroy Tyre home, 121 N. Pine St. That bus too had been in a collision first with a car, and two persons suffered minor injuries.

Senate does turnabout, votes to OK $2,500 pay raises

by BOB LAHEY
SPRINGFIELD — Pay raises of $2,500 per year for Illinois legislators were approved and sent to Gov. Daniel Walker for his signature Thursday night after the Illinois Senate reversed a decision of a day earlier and voted for the pay increases.

The Senate had voted against the pay hike Wednesday, but reconsidered its action Thursday. The Illinois House swiftly approved the amended pay raise when it was returned from the Senate, by a vote of 111 to 31.

Approval of the pay increase in the Senate came less than 24 hours after the Senate had rejected it. Wednesday, the Senate voted 25 to 23 for the raise, with a three-fifths majority of 36 votes needed to make it effective for the new term beginning in January. Thursday the measure received precisely the number of votes needed, passing by a margin of 36 to 18.

The House earlier had approved pay raises of $5,000 per year, and acceptance of the reduced increases was a foregone conclusion. Among the 15 representatives for the Northwest suburbs, only two voted against the increase. They were State Rep. John Friedland, R-South Elgin, and State Rep. John E. Porter, R-Evanston. State Rep. Robert Juckett, R-Park Ridge, who is hospitalized with a leg ailment, was recorded as absent.

AMONG senators from the Northwest suburbs, only State Sen. David Regner, R-Mount Prospect, who has opposed all spending measures in this closing session of the 78th General Assembly, voted against the pay increase, which raised legislators' annual salaries from $17,500 to $20,000.

State Sen. John A. Graham, R-Barrington, who originally voted against the pay raise, voted for it Thursday. Graham said at first that economic conditions would not permit the legislature to increase its own pay.

Neither Graham nor Regner, however, will benefit immediately from the pay raise. Both are in midterm and cannot receive pay increases until reelected. Graham will receive an added $1,500 to his wages as assistant leader of the Senate Republicans.

The bill contains increased payment for members of the party leadership as well as an increase in expense allowances from $32 to $36 per day, and an added $2,000 a year for office expenses, for a yearly total of $12,000 for office expenses.

STATE SEN. Bradley M. Glass, R-Northfield, who had opposed the $5,000 increase, was responsible for the amendment reducing the raise to $2,500. He voted for the $2,500 raise both times a vote was taken. State Sen. John Nimrod, R-Skokie, and State Sen. Howard Mehr, (Continued on Page 2)

Mayor moves to get decision on housing plans

by LYNN ASINOF
Mount Prospect Mayor Robert D. Teichert has called for a comprehensive meeting Wednesday on low- and moderate-income housing, saying the village has been studying the matter to death.

"We have been reviewing for five years senior citizen housing, and we still don't have it," he said. "While we have been fiddling, Rome has been burning."

'New city' plans delayed 6 weeks

Efforts to incorporate Prospect Heights have been delayed an additional six weeks because transcripts of the court hearing are unavailable.

Teichert said he fears further delay will strip the village of any control over the planning of low- and moderate income housing in Mount Prospect. Citing the new federal law, he said the village can only object to subsidized housing programs if the village develops a housing plan. Previously the village had to give its approval of any federally subsidized housing programs.

AN UNEXPECTED visitor Thursday at the Edward Curtin home, 122 S. I-Oka Ave., Mount Prospect, was this United Motor Coach bus. The bus damaged the home's front steps, uprooted one tree and damaged a second. The bus driver and driver of the car with which it first collided received minor injuries. There were no other injuries. Police charged the bus driver with failure to yield right-of-way.

Bus strikes car, house, uproots tree

Two persons suffered minor injuries Thursday afternoon in a car-bus accident which also resulted in the bus striking a house and uprooting a tree.

Injured in the 2:30 p.m. accident at the intersection of Evergreen and I-Oka avenues were the bus driver, Danny Snell, 28, Park Ridge, and the car's driver, Theresa A. Kratochvil, 32, of 811 W. Think green

The real Christmas tree is coming back, but be ready to look a little harder and pay a little more

If you're buying a Christmas tree this year, be prepared to pay 10 to 15 per cent more than you did last year. And be prepared to look early, because the supply of trees is more limited than last year. Wholesalers say fewer pine and spruce trees are being cut and shipped this year, possibly because the tree market was so bad last year.

A spokesman for M. Walter Christmas Trees, Chicago, said the tree market is "up a little bit." He said that heavy snows in Canada are delaying tree deliveries, but added that price levels should only go up "10 or 15 per cent."

At Rand, Central, Mount Prospect

Intersection realignment proposed

Mount Prospect village officials, in an effort to improve traffic safety at the congested intersection of Central, Rand and Mount Prospect roads, have proposed a realignment of the intersection.

The village proposals, approved Wednesday by the village's fire and police committee, would relocate westward a portion of Mount Prospect Road south of Central Road. Mount Prospect Road would then intersect Rand Road northwest of the intersection of Central and Rand roads.

Currently, Mount Prospect Road meets Central Road less than a block west of the Central-Rand intersection and west-bound Central Road traffic often blocks Mount Prospect Road traffic.

THE COMMITTEE, headed by Trustee George Anderson, said the new proposal would be less expensive and preferable to the Illinois Highway Dept.'s 1973 suggestion that a portion of Rand Road be moved eastward at Central Road. The state plan would call for the removal of most of the grassy perimeter of the Mount Prospect Plaza shopping center at the intersection.

An engineer from the firm of M&E/Alstot, March and Guillou, Inc. said the new proposal would cost about $800,000, whereas the state plan would cost an estimated $1.1 million. The original 1972 cost for the project, which then called for new signalization and turn lanes, was only $220,000.

Anderson said the new plan would call for the village to buy the 400-square-foot lot at the southwest corner of Central and Mount Prospect roads, which is owned by the Zenith Corp. Also the village would have to buy property north of Central Road on which a waterbed store is located.

As part of the new alternative, a cul de sac would be formed at the existing intersection of Central and Mount Prospect roads. In addition, numerous left-turn lanes would be put in where needed and new traffic lights would be put in where the new section of Mount Prospect Road would intersect with both Central Road and Rand Road.

The change would have to be approved by both state and federal highway authorities as both have committed funds to the project under TOPICS (Traffic Operation Program to Increase Capacity and Safety). The City of Des Plaines also has agreed to contribute to the improvement costs as a smaller part of the multiple intersection lies within the city.

Senior citizens building sought in 5-year budget

by LYNN ASINOF

Formation of a multi-service senior-citizen center has been urged by the head of the Mount Prospect senior citizens' program in a five-year budget projection prepared for the village board.

Kathleen Stoga, senior citizen program coordinator, said the center would provide a wide range of programs, including counseling, recreation, referral and health services, employment and legal assistance.

Currently, the senior citizens' office is housed at the Mount Prospect Community Center, 600 S. Seo-Gwon Ave., which has limited space. Mrs. Stoga is recommending a building that would provide 20,000 to 25,000 square feet, including an auditorium.

Trustee O. T. Gustus has called for the administration to explore the possibility of using the public library building, 14 E. Busse Ave., for seniors once a new library is built.

MRS. STOGA SAID the village could construct a building, or provide space in an existing building. "I think either would apply," she said.

Mrs. Stoga said the village's present senior citizen program is primarily geared to provide services such as a subsidized reduction in cab fares for seniors and a hot meals program.

She said, however, there is a need for "a multiple-service type of project" which would combine recreation and service programs. This would open up an entirely new area for the Mount Prospect senior citizen program is primarily Mrs. Stoga said is the next step in expanding the existing program.

According to the five-year projection, an arts and crafts program would be the first addition to the present program. A health-screening program is next on the schedule to provide seniors with blood pressure checks and other preventative medical screening.

THE ADDITION OF a recreational worker is projected in the five-year plan as part of the expanded recreational programs, and the need for a part-time social worker is anticipated for the end of the five-year period.

If the senior citizens' center is developed, Mrs. Stoga foresees a gradual purchase of equipment and expansion of activities. During the five-year period, she recommends development of an arts and crafts room, lounges, auditorium, kitchen, meeting rooms and an outdoor area.

In the five-year period, equipment costs are expected to reach $16,000. New personnel would add about $24,900 per year to the budget.

In a preliminary review of the five-year projection, Mayor Robert D. Teichert said the village will have to carefully consider all these proposals. He said that while governmental grants are available to get programs started, the village will have to eventually take over their financing.

THE CURRENT senior citizen program is operating on such "seed money" issued under the Older Americans Act. A $25,100 state grant established the program in 1973 and was renewed this year for $23,886. The program is eligible for renewal funding one more time.

Teichert noted that when the grant runs out the village will have to assume operation of the program if it is to continue. He said the board will therefore have to take this into consideration in any expansion of the program.

Petitions available for park board spots

Petitions are available at the Mount Prospect Park District offices, 411 S. Maple St., for persons wishing to run for a board position in the upcoming park district election.

Two seats are to be filled in the April 1 election. To appear on the ballot, candidates must file petitions with the park district between Jan. 13 and 27.

Village hopes new sign law will end inconsistencies

Mount Prospect officials hope to get rid of inconsistencies and vague regulations in the present sign ordinance by drafting new sign rules.

Building Director Buell B. Dutton said the present ordinance, written in 1937, has many parts that have not been enforced and some sections that are unworkable.

Dutton told members of the village board's public health and safety committee that it will take about two or three months to draft a new ordinance.

Discussion of the sign ordinance was prompted by protests from businessmen who objected to a village attempt to get rid of their flags and pennants. The businessmen said that since flags and pennants are not signs the village sign ordinance does not apply.

Dutton, however, said he feels flags and pennants are signs, and thus should be subject to village regulations which prohibit rooftop signs and moving signs.

While committee members said they would like to get rid of pennants, they said they liked flags because they are colorful and cheerful. They said, however, the ordinance should include provisions to make sure flags are installed safely.

Discussion of the matter was continued until the committee's January meeting.

IT WAS A STANDOFF for a while when workmen showed up at the Stanley Twardziks, 1764 E. Euclid Ave., Mount Prospect, to remove six feet of their driveway. Mrs. Twardzik, right, eventually let the workmen

Twardziks lose battle with county over driveway

Stanley and Marian Twardzik, 1764 E. Euclid Ave., Mount Prospect, have apparently lost their battle to keep their 30-foot driveway.

Workmen cut the driveway into two parts Thursday in preparation for removing that portion of the blacktop which exceeds county limits. Mrs. Twardzik said she expects the workmen to return today to remove the blacktop.

Twardzik said he widened his driveway six years ago, because he needed more room to turn into his property from Euclid Avenue, which has a 45 m.p.h. speed limit. The county, however, says that Twardzik never obtained a permit for the work, and therefore must comply with 1974 department standards.

Twardzik said a permit was obtained for the work, but he said he did not have an extra copy.

Although county standards call for 16-foot-wide driveways, Mrs. Twardzik said the workmen are only removing six feet from the 30-foot driveway. Dan Cohen, county highway construction supervisor, was unavailable to comment on how much of the driveway was to be removed.

When workmen showed up Thursday morning to remove a section of the driveway, Mrs. Twardzik made an attempt to stop the work. The confrontation, however, was minor compared to last month when the Twardziks parked their cars on the property to block the workmen.

"I have no choice in the matter," Mrs. Twardzik said, when asked why the same tactics weren't applied Thursday. She said she had hoped to get some help from the governor's office, but said the workmen arrived too soon.

Library, village in special session

Mount Prospect taxpayers will pick up the tab for a special breakfast executive session meeting Saturday between the library and village boards.

The two boards will meet at 9 a.m. in Evans Restaurant, 113 S. Emerson St. Mayor Robert D. Telchert said the board will be discussing several matters that "will certainly encompass land acquisition and litigation as well as potential litigation."

Among these items is expected to be the purchase of the 2.3-acre Central School site, which the village board has proposed as the site for a new $3.2 million library. The village has already agreed to purchase the property for $675,000.

Telchert said the executive session is needed because the library board is dependent on the village for financing. He said this creates some difficulties, and said honest and frank discussion is needed to alleviate potential problems.

Senate does turnabout, votes to OK $2,500 pay raises

by BOB LAHEY
SPRINGFIELD — Pay raises of $2,500 per year for Illinois legislators were approved and sent to Gov. Daniel Walker for his signature Thursday night after the Illinois Senate reversed a decision of a day earlier and voted for the pay increases.

The Senate had voted against the pay hike Wednesday, but reconsidered its action Thursday. The Illinois House swiftly approved the amended pay raise when it was returned from the Senate, by a vote of 111 to 31.

Approval of the pay increase in the Senate came less than 24 hours after the Senate had rejected it. Wednesday, the Senate voted 25 to 23 for the raise, with a three-fifths majority of 35 votes needed to make it effective for the new term beginning in January. Thursday the measure received precisely the number of votes needed, passing by a margin of 36 to 18.

The House earlier had approved pay raises of $5,000 per year, and acceptance of the reduced increases was a foregone conclusion. Among the 15 representatives for the Northwest suburbs, only two voted against the increase. They were State Rep. John Friedland, R-South Elgin, and State Rep. John E. Porter, R-Evanston. State Rep. Robert Juckett, R-Park Ridge, who is hospitalized with a leg ailment, was recorded as absent.

AMONG senators from the Northwest suburbs, only State Sen. David Regner, R-Mount Prospect, who has opposed all spending measures in this closing session of the 78th General Assembly, voted against the pay increase, which raised legislators' annual salaries from $17,500 to $20,000.

State Sen. John A. Graham, R-Barrington, who originally voted against the pay raise, voted for it Thursday. Graham said at first that economic conditions would not permit the legislature to increase its own pay.

Neither Graham nor Regner, however, will benefit immediately from the pay raise. Both are in midterm and cannot receive pay increases until reelected. Graham will receive an added $1,500 to his wages as assistant leader of the Senate Republicans.

The bill contains increased payment for members of the party leadership as well as an increase in expense allowances from $32 to $36 per day, and an added $2,000 a year for office expenses, for a yearly total of $12,000 for office expenses.

STATE SEN. Bradley M. Glass, R-Northfield, who had opposed the $5,000 increase, was responsible for the amendment reducing the raise to $2,500. He voted for the $2,500 raise both times a vote was taken. State Sen. John Nimrod, R-Skokie, and State Sen. Howard Mohr, (Continued on Page 2)

Citizen panel OKs parks' 'rescue vote'

by JOE SWICKARD
The citizens' financial review committee endorsed Thursday night the concept of a "rescue referendum" for the Arlington Heights Park District and gave the park board and administration a vote of confidence.

The committee was established by the park board in September to study the financial plight of the district and to recommend both long- and short-term solutions. The board has said, and the committee agreed, that the park's financial resources are inadequate to provide the present level of services to the community.

Committee chairman John G. Woods, former village president, said, "It seems a referendum of some sort is pretty well nigh inevitable." He added it was needed "to keep the park district afloat until happier times."

HE CALLED UPON the committee and district to "expend heroic and Herculean efforts to convince our fellow taxpayers" of the necessity of the referendum.

The decision on the final form of the referendum was deferred until the committee's next meeting Thursday. However, the committee voted that the referendum should include increasing the district's tax rates to the maximum permitted by state law and to take care of maintenance projects that have been postponed because of lack of funds.

THE COMMITTEE ALSO gave a unanimous vote of confidence to running of the district by the elected board and the professional administration.

The vote of confidence was proposed by committee member Frank Palmatier, a village trustee. He said, "It is time to crystallize the state of the parks" with a vote of support from the committee.

The competence of the park board and administration was questioned last week in a special meeting in which the committee called upon representatives of homeowners' groups for comments.

WHILE THE TAX-RATE increases and deferred maintenance projects passed the committee by unanimous votes, other capital improvement projects ran into strong opposition.

Woods, in support of the other projects, said a "cafeteria ballot" would give the voters a chance to select what new projects should be undertaken by the park district through bonds.

But Palmatier objected to a cafeteria proposition. "The only kind of bond issue that stands a chance of passing is one that saves the parks from rack and ruin," he said.

Thomas Meade, committee member, concurred with Palmatier's position on including a list of new projects from which the voters could select the ones they wanted. He said such a ballot would bring out a strong "no" vote and was "death" to the necessary tax-rate increase and deferred maintenance issues.

MARCIA TROCH, committee member, sided with Woods and said, "We have to respond to the people who came out here last week (the special interest groups and homeowners)."

She termed it a "new approach" and said a cafeteria ballot would give the voters an opportunity to vote on each item now.

"They can vote here to catch up (with the tax rates and maintenance) and they can vote here for more (the new projects)," she said, stepping the table for emphasis.

Retired group seeks tax help for elderly

The Arlington Heights Chapter of the American Assn. of Retired Persons is looking for counselors for a special tax aid program for senior citizens.

Harold Vanderkoogh, coordinator of the program, said the volunteers will work from January to April helping the elderly with tax returns. Persons interested in working may call Vanderkoogh, 235-9548.

DOWNTOWN Arlington Heights is a little brighter this week with the glow of Christmas candles and lanterns. Bill Kacheris of the village public works department helps hang the decorations.

Central area development primary goal

The community development team drafting Arlington Heights' application for $2.5 million in federal funds has adopted a statement of community goals which emphasizes the upgrading of the central area of the village.

A second priority goal is to acquire land for environmental, recreational and flood-control use. A third priority is land acquisition for senior citizens' housing and low- and moderate-income housing. Historical preservation is a fourth and final objective.

Only the formulation of a housing assistance plan and a budget for community programs remains to be completed before the proposed application for U.S. Housing and Community Development Act funds is submitted to the village board.

The goals statement approved Thursday night on the central village area includes four points:

- To encourage improvement of the esthetic quality of existing and proposed developments, and thereby protect adjoining uses.
- To enhance the economic strength of retail shopping in the central business district and in other areas.
- To enhance the central business district through the addition of compatible activities such as social, cultural and recreational facilities.
- To preserve and enhance the esthetic environment of the community, particularly the central business district, main entrances and publicly utilized areas.

On open space, the goals are:

- To protect the environment and to provide adequate land for active and passive recreation.
- To provide adequate access to all public open space. To develop an open-space system that will provide an attractive, visual framework for the village.
- To utilize new concepts in recreational facilities such as linear parks and vest pocket playgrounds.
- To acquire land needed for a complete system of storm water control for the community which will alleviate the flooding experienced in the past.
- To preserve the enhance the remaining natural features of the community, such as streams, and to create new features such as lakes, ponds, hills and mounds.
- To develop recreational space so as

Think green

The real Christmas tree is coming back, but be ready to look a little harder and pay a little more

If you're buying a Christmas tree this year, be prepared to pay 10 to 15 per cent more than you did last year.

And be prepared to look early, because the supply of trees is more limited than last year. Wholesalers say fewer pine and spruce trees are being cut and shipped this year, possibly because the tree market was so bad last year.

Last year, prices rose by as much as $3 a tree. The only trees that may be unusually expensive this year are Canadian trees, hit by budworms this year, and trees taller than 15 feet, said two Chicago tree wholesalers.

"LAST YEAR WAS a disaster. The Christmas tree sellers lost their pants with the energy crisis," said Joseph Navillo, owner of Joseph Navillo Co., Chicago, a wholesale tree dealer.

"I think the green Christmas tree is coming back," Navillo said. Excluding last year, wholesale prices have not gone up much on green trees in the last five to seven years, he said. "Wholesale prices are still low," Navillo said, but added that retailers often raise prices considerably.

A spokesman for M. Walter Christmas Trees, Chicago, said the tree market is "up a little bit." He said that heavy snows in Canada are delaying tree deliveries, but added that price levels should only go up "10 or 15 per cent."

LOCAL DEALERS now are stocked with trees ranging in price from $3 for four-foot tabletop trees to $50 for 16-foot giants. Klehm's Nursery said they have a large supply of short-needled balsam and long-needled Douglas fir trees in heights of four to eight feet. Amings Flowerland has trees up to 16 feet and a variety of color-flocked trees, including black, "to go with every decor," said Michael Orr, salesman at Amings.

Frank Stanek, assistant manager of Klehm's Nursery, said potted trees that can be planted sell for $20 to $30.

Balsams sell for $2.95 to $11.95 and more for those larger than eight feet. Douglas fir trees sell for $15 to $20.

Many local Jaycee and church groups will be selling Christmas trees again this year.

Tax bills to go up

MSD OKs $401 million budget, 83 per cent hike

Metropolitan Sanitary District trustees approved a $401 million budget Thursday and predicted the 1975 budget will mean a tax rate of 36.13 cents per $100 assessed valuation on tax bills paid in 1976.

The budget, increased steeply over the 1974 budget of $218 million, pins hopes on federal and state grants for engineering design and construction projects.

The anticipated tax rate is 1.57 cents per $100 assessed valuation higher than the 36.56 cent rate MSD officials anticipate on the 1974 tax bills homeowners will receive next spring.

The budget approved Thursday increased by 4.3 per cent the recommendations the MSD general superintendent made to the board in September. The increases came as board members made additions in 22 separate budget hearings which included a $30,000 planning study on use of MSD land, a $225,000 increase in the cost of health insurance premiums for MSD employees and $50,000 to finance public relations activities in Fulton County for the MSD land reclamation program and to scientifically monitor pollution levels at district plants.

The Civic Federation, the only agency to testify at a formal hearing on the budget earlier this week, criticized the MSD board's decision to give nonunion workers a 9 per cent pay hike and said a 3 per cent cost of living increase would have been sufficient because MSD workers are paid better than many private industry employees.

IN OTHER ACTION Thursday, the MSD board discussed plans to obtain rights-of-way for three of the tunnels that will collect sewage under Mount Prospect.

The tunnels, which will carry sanitary sewage from Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Wheeling, Elk Grove Village, Buffalo Grove, Des Plaines and Rolling Meadows to the O'Hare Water Reclamation plant at Elmhurst Road and Oakton Street in Des Plaines, will be the subject of a public hearing at 7:30 p.m. Dec. 19 at the Mount Prospect Community Center, 600 S. See-Gwan Ave.

The right-of-way ordinance revealed the MSD plans to negotiate to buy permanent easements for the tunnels in three locations — a 20-foot wide strip north of Oakton Street from Elmhurst Road to Busse Road, a small parcel at Elmhurst Road and Lomquist Boulevard and a strip north of Lincoln Street and east of Busse Road.

The MSD's request for easements across public lands such as parkways in Mount Prospect has been delayed by village officials until after the public hearing on the tunnels.

AN UNEXPECTED visitor Thursday at the Edward Curtin home, 122 S. I-Oka Ave., Mount Prospect, was this United Motor Coach bus. The bus damaged the home's front steps, uprooted one tree and damaged a second. The bus driver and driver of the car with which it first collided received minor injuries. There were no other injuries. Police charged the bus driver with failure to yield right-of-way.

Mid-'75 completion in forecast

Work on library ahead of schedule

by JOE FRANZ

Construction of the North Suburban Library System's new headquarters in Wheeling is ahead of schedule and officials are predicting it will be finished by mid-1975.

The new facility is being built on the north side of Dundee Road, just east of the Wheeling U.S. Post Office, 250 W. Dundee. The structure will cost about $1 million and will serve as the administrative center for the library system.

"Right now construction is 30 days ahead of schedule," said Elliot Kanner, resources coordinator for the library system. "If everything goes as planned we should be able to move into the new facility by June 1."

"Of course this is assuming there are no problems with bad weather, strikes or obtaining construction materials," Elliot said. "Up until now we haven't had any problems."

WORK ON THE new headquarters started in late September and as of Thursday, Elliot said it was about 25 to 30 per cent complete. Most of the masonry work is finished, he said, and workers have started on the roof.

Elliot said the one-story facility will replace the current library system headquarters in Morton Grove. "Our lease runs out next September and it's almost guaranteed we'll be out of there by then," he said.

Robert McFarren, library system director, said Wheeling was chosen as the site for the facility because it is in the geographical center of the district. The two-acre site was chosen after the library system looked at more than 40 sites in Arlington Heights, Wheeling, Northbrook, Deerfield and Glenview.

The director said the Dundee Road location is desirable because it is on a major road and is within a municipality that can provide business resources and good police and fire protection.

THE LIBRARY SYSTEM is a service organization for 31 public libraries in the North and Northwest suburbs. It provides member libraries with access to books, films, periodicals and facilities not available from local resources. The new building will include 20,000-square feet of meeting rooms, office space, storage and work space.

The new facility has been in the planning stages for more than two years, but has met several delays. The project was at a standstill for several months last year because a $200,000 federal grant was delayed when former President Richard M. Nixon impounded funds allocated under the federal library service and construction act.

McFarren said the library system could not proceed with the planning of the building because some of its board members were hesitant to do that before being assured of getting the grant. The grant was awarded last December.

Early this year, the project met another delay when Wheeling officials held up the issuance of a building permit because of a disagreement over traffic control measures being provided at the site.

Arlington library 3rd in circulation

If you put all the books circulated by the Arlington Heights Memorial Library end to end, the trail would stretch to Niles or Addison.

More practically speaking, this means that for the second year in a row, the Arlington Heights library's circulation has been rated third among public libraries in the state by the Illinois State Library. Only the Chicago and Rockford public libraries circulate more books and materials.

Those who love libraries and statistics will delight in the fact that during this year, the Arlington library circulated 787,398 items or 11 books per resident. Arlington's circulation accounted for 18.4 per cent of the total state library circulation of 42,765,250 items.

The Arlington Heights library circulated more books than public libraries in Springfield, 748,733; Peoria, 729,194; and Evanston, 689,521.

Frank Dempsey, executive librarian, said the circulation of library books in the village during the last 20 years has increased 1,400 per cent. Twenty years ago, the library circulated 50,291 volumes.

Minolta files request to resubdivide site

The Minolta camera company has filed a plan with the village to resubdivide the last vacant piece of property in Arlington Heights' Clearbrook Industrial Park between Algonquin Road and the Northwest Tollway, east of Arlington Heights Road.

Minolta is planning a headquarters office building on the site. Clearbrook was Arlington Heights' first planned industrial park. Proposed in 1965 it opened in 1967. The industrial land was once part of the Charles Klehm & Son Nursery.

Rolling Meadows variety show set

"Faces of Entertainment," Rolling Meadows High School's variety show, will be Dec. 13-14 in the school's theater, 2901 Central Rd.

A show business theme will feature songs such as "Cabaret," "There's No Business Like Show Business" and "That's Entertainment."

Domenica Trevor is student director. Mary Kay Kelleher is assistant director. Tickets for the show are $1 at the door.

Twardziks lose battle over driveway

IT WAS A STANDOFF for a while when workmen showed up at the Stanley Twardziks, 1764 E. Euclid Ave., Mount Prospect, to remove six feet of their driveway. Mrs. Twardzik, right, eventually let the workmen begin sawing off a section of the blacktop which exceeds county standards. She expects workmen to remove the blacktop today.

Stanley and Marian Twardzik, 1764 E. Euclid Ave., Mount Prospect, have apparently lost their battle to keep their 30-foot driveway.

Workmen cut the driveway into two parts Thursday in preparation for removing that portion of the blacktop which exceeds county limits, Mrs. Twardzik said she expects the workmen to return today to remove the blacktop.

Twardzik said he widened his driveway six years ago, because he needed more room to turn into his property from Euclid Avenue, which has a 45 m.p.h. speed limit. The county, however, says that Twardzik never obtained a permit for the work, and therefore must comply with 1974 department standards.

Twardzik said a permit was obtained for the work, but he said he did not have an extra copy.

Although county standards call for 16-foot-wide driveways, Mrs. Twardzik said the workmen are only removing six feet from the 30-foot driveway. Dan Cohen, county highway construction supervisor, was unavailable to comment on how much of the driveway was to be removed.

When workmen showed up Thursday morning to remove a section of the driveway, Mrs. Twardzik made an attempt to stop the work. The confrontation, however, was minor compared to last month when the Twardziks parked their cars on the property to block the workmen.

"I have no choice in the matter," Mrs. Twardzik said, when asked why the same tactics weren't applied Thursday. She said she had hoped to get some help from the governor's office, but said the workmen arrived too soon.

BOLI to continue special assessment sidewalk action

The Arlington Heights Board of Local Improvements intends to continue special assessment proceedings for sidewalks in the northeast section of the village despite the village board's decision to review the sidewalk policy.

BOLI President David Patterson said, "At the present time we have the northeast quadrant project before us and we'll proceed with the informal hearing on Dec. 19. I see no reason at all to cancel the informal hearing."

The village board heard presentations from the northeast quadrant homeowners and the Scarsdale subdivision homeowners before suggesting that the sidewalk policy be reviewed by the public health and safety committee.

THE SIDEWALK policy requires installation of sidewalks on properties within one-half mile of schools and parks and in areas where 50 per cent of the homes have sidewalks. At the same time, one section of the policy has been interpreted to exclude several areas of the village from sidewalk installation.

Homeowner anger at the application of the sidewalk policy and the cost of walks (several hundred dollars for the average homeowner) finally brought the matter to the village board this week. Trustee Alice Harms, chairman of the public health and safety committee, said the committee will begin holding hearings on the sidewalk policy in early January.

A spokesman for homeowners involved in the upcoming northeast quadrant project questioned BOLI's continuation with the project. "I would think the Dec. 19 meeting would get called off," said William Gallagher, 1103 E. Euclid St., who represented homeowners before the village board.

GALLAGHER ADDED that perhaps the village board will instruct Patterson to delay any sidewalk projects until the policy is reviewed.

Kurt Carlisle, 1103 E. Mayfair Road, president of the Stonegate Homeowners' Assn., said his group is planning to appear before the village board Dec. 16 to protest addition of Stonegate to the northeast sidewalk project. "If BOLI does not pursue this matter, we'll ask to be removed from the village board agenda. If BOLI pursues the northeast quadrant project, even though the village board is considering the policy, we're obligated to be on the board's agenda," he said.

Carlisle said he is sending a letter to Patterson asking him to drop the northeast sidewalk project until the village board ends its inquiry into the sidewalk policy.

President Ford cites efforts of Watt Watchers

by JOE SWICKARD

The Palatine Watt Watchers, an energy conservation club, has received recognition from President Ford. Now all they have to do is wait for their electric bills.

The 11-household club was formed through the efforts of Pamela Mitchell after watching Ford's anti-inflation message to the country in October. A peek at her electric bill convinced her that she and her family could fight inflation and conserve energy at the same time by being more mindful of how they use electricity.

The Mitchells and other residents of the Winston Park subdivision hoped, when the club was formed, to cut their next light bill in half. The next bills are due about the middle of this month, and Mrs. Mitchell admitted the Watt Watchers are getting a little nervous as the deadline nears.

BUT NO MATTER how they fare on their bills, their efforts resulted in a personal letter of commendation from the President.

Mrs. Mitchell wrote Ford explaining her club's goals and hoped for an answer.

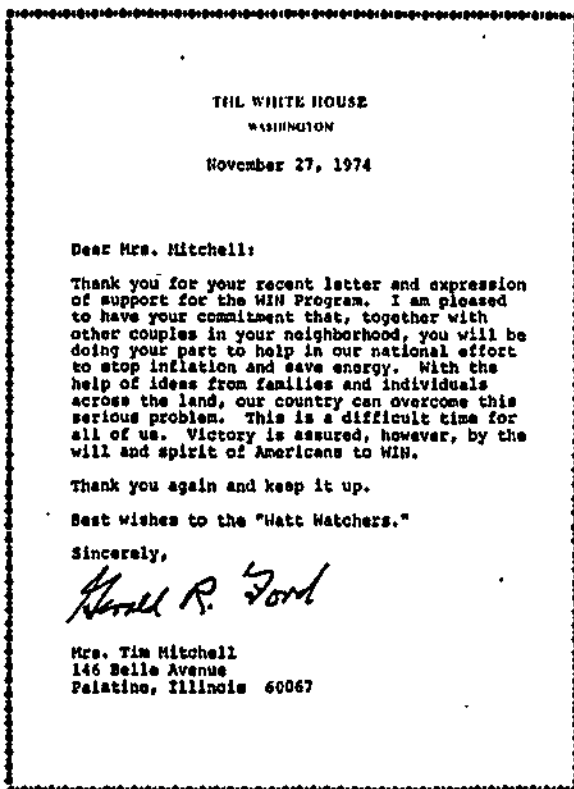

"We had heard he personally answered the letters he received. Especially those from children. It took quite a long time to get his answer. But it's his personal signature, and there are no secretary's initials either. It's not a form letter," she said.

The President wrote on official embossed White House stationery: "I am pleased to have your commitment, together with other couples in your neighborhood, you will be doing your part to help... stop inflation and save energy."

Besides the Presidential letter, Mrs. Mitchell said her idea is catching on elsewhere. A disk jockey in Indiana heard of her methods and started a similar group in his home town.

A CLUB OF 12 families in Mount Prospect also has been formed, Mrs. Mitchell said. She said there are probably other clubs that she is not aware of.

Even before the October message, the Mitchells were trying to ease the energy crunch. Last Christmas, for example, they did without exterior electrically-lighted decorations.

"This year we were told it was all right to have the outside lights. We are going to decorate one small tree outside, plus the one in the house," she said.

Des Plaines fire victims receive aid

by LUISA GINNETTI

Dozens of persons have come to the aid of a Des Plaines family left homeless Wednesday when fire ruined their apartment at 960 Beau Dr.

The fire destroyed all the possessions of Mrs. James Hill, who with her three children, Mary, 11, Michael, 7 and Tammy, 6, have been put up at the Royal Court Inn, 1750 S. Elmhurst Rd., by the Red Cross.

A neighbor's plea for help for the family has resulted in a new apartment for the family, food and rent assistance from Elk Grove Township, clothing and furnishings for their new apartment and the establishment of a trust fund for the family.

Barb Duss said her phone started ringing at 7:45 a.m. Thursday after an article appeared in The Herald asking people who wished to donate items to call her.

"THE CALLS HAVE been continuous and I'm so very grateful to people who have offered to help," Mrs. Duss said. "If this lifts up Mrs. Hill's spirits as much as it did mine, she'll be in heaven."

Items donated to the family include televisions, couches, chairs, clothing and a bicycle, Mrs. Duss said. She was busy all day Thursday picking up items as well as collecting things delivered to her apartment, Mrs. Duss said.

Garage space in the apartment complex has been made available to store the items.

Mary Lu Gladney, rental agent for the apartments, said a two-bedroom apartment for the family in the complex has been found and the Hills will move in today.

THE STEVEN L. Amdur Realty Co., owners of the complex, have agreed to waive the December rent for Mrs. Hill and will renew her lease for three months in January, Mrs. Gladney said.

Mrs. Gladney said her son will help the Hills move into the apartment since they have no transportation available.

Mrs. Gladney's daughter, Kathy, 12, and two of her school friends from Friendship Junior High, Luann Capiz, 13, and Carol Tojza, 12, all residents of the complex, said they have offered to babysit for Mrs. Hill's children. The girls also plan to conduct a door-to-door fund raising drive through the complex to solicit money from other residents to help the family.

Gerald Buckler, principal of Albert Einstein School, where Tammy Hill attends class, arranged to set up a trust fund for the family at the First National Bank of Des Plaines.

"WHEN I FOUND out about the situation I felt it was the humane thing to do," Buckler said.

Gill Crows will serve as the trust officer for the fund and contributions in care of the Mrs. James Hill Trust Fund should be sent to the bank in care of Crows.

Eastwood Apartments manager fined $1,000

An Arlington Heights landlord has been fined $1,000 in Circuit Court for operating an apartment building in the village without a license.

Edward A. Fritz, manager of the Eastwood Apartments, 110 N. Lincoln Ln., is the second person to be brought to court and fined for violating the village's two-year-old ordinance requiring apartment managers to obtain an annual operating license.

The fine was levied by Associate Judge John M. Breen Jr. in the Arlington Heights branch of Circuit Court. Breen said he would lift the fine if Fritz obtains a license by Jan. 8.

APARTMENT buildings must meet Arlington Heights fire, safety and housing maintenance codes before the village will license them for operation. The licensing requirement was enacted under the village's home rule powers and has yet to be challenged in court.

Last month, Associate Judge Anthony J. Scuttillo fined Batow Realty Co., Chicago, $400 for violating the licensing law at a 36-unit apartment building at 205 W. Miner St.

A third apartment manager, Wilfred Barry, is scheduled to appear in Circuit Court Dec. 11 on a citation for operating apartments at 805 N. Wilke Rd. without a license.

Village Sanitarian Daniel Tarry said that in each case, building managers have been given months to correct fire code and maintenance violations so their buildings would be eligible for a license.

Fritz was cited five times for failure to have a license for the Eastwood Apartments, and fined $200 for each count. According to the ordinance, each day's violation carries a fine up to $1,000.

Last June, Fritz was fined $1,000 by Circuit Court Judge Arthur Sullivan for six fire code violations at the Eastwood Apartments.

Load-limits proposal tabled for study

A proposal to remove vehicle load limits from three streets in the Scarsdale subdivision and from newly opened Davis Street has been tabled for further study.

The village board's public health and safety committee will investigate the potential traffic problems of lifting the load restrictions on Park, Fairview and Rockwell streets, between Arlington Heights Road and Arthur Street.

It will also consider the potential for damage to a sewer beneath Davis Street if heavy trucks are permitted to use the street.

Vehicles weighing more than 4,000 pounds are now prohibited on Park, Fairview and Rockwell. The load limit for Davis is 10,000 pounds.

The village administration has recommended lifting both restrictions.

U.S. probing Elk Grove furnaces

by JILL BETTNER

Federal investigators are probing the causes of a massive number of furnace failures in Elk Grove Village homes built by Centex Homes Corp., The Herald has learned.

The U.S. Consumer Products Safety Commission is looking for answers in the continuing controversy over who is responsible for the failure of furnaces in an estimated 1,700 homes.

The outcome of the investigation could lead to legal action against Johnson Furnace Corp., manufacturer of the defective furnaces and possibly Centex, a commission official said.

Working with information supplied by the Chicago office of the commission, federal authorities are attempting to define reasons for the furnace failures, whether it is a widespread problem and the severity of injuries that could occur as a result of the defects.

Carl Blechschmidt, director of the commission's division of product defect identification, said assigning blame for the furnace failures is difficult because apparently there are a number of contributing factors.

"WE'RE HAVING SOME trouble pinpointing the exact cause and establishing the degree of hazard that we're dealing with," Blechschmidt said. "It doesn't appear to be a national problem; at least, we haven't had any other similar complaints that I know of from other parts of the country."

Blechschmidt said he expects the commission to complete its research soon. If investigators conclude there is what he termed "a substantial product hazard," the commission will take steps to correct the problem.

Although Blechschmidt could not comment if possible government action could be aimed at Johnson or Centex or both, he said the commission usually moves against manufacturers, retailers and distributors of defective products.

Information on the Elk Grove Village furnace problem has been in the hands of the federal authorities for several months, according to an investigator in the commission's Chicago office.

DuWAYNE KAPALIS said he accompanied local building inspectors on a tour of several homes to get a firsthand look at some of the defective furnaces and submitted a report of his findings to the Washington office several months ago.

"If this were a widespread problem around the country, I'm sure we would have arrived at a conclusion as to what to do much sooner," Blechschmidt said explaining the agency's delay. "We're just trying to sort out all the things that apply to the situation and trying to figure out why it seems to be just in that one pocket."

'Jean Brodie' on school stage

"The Prime of Miss Jean Brodie" will be presented by Buffalo Grove High School students at 8 p.m. Dec. 13 and 14 in the school theater, 1101 W. Dundee Rd.

Tickets for the performances will be $1.50 at the door.

The play explores the height of a romantic and unorthodox teacher's career as she changes her students' lives at a private school for girls in Scotland.

Tina McCall stars as Miss Brodie, who refuses to bore her students by talking about such things as the succession of the Stuart kings and instead recounts her own vacation in Italy. She arranges a love affair between one of her young students and an art teacher at the school.

As the teacher's behavior becomes even more unacceptable to the headmistress, played by Joanne Hipp, Miss Brodie is betrayed by one of her own students.

Ron Schwartz and Bill Huyser portray the male teachers at the school. Appearing in the roles of students are Chris Farrell, Robin Ruetenik, Paula White and Vicky Chamberlain.

On land acquisition for low-cost housing, the goals are:

- To provide the widest possible range of housing by type, size and price to fulfill present and future needs. To plan future developments to be compatible with existing developments.

- To acquire land for housing assistance for senior citizens, handicapped persons and low-and moderate-income families at scattered sites throughout the community.

- To provide housing for the elderly, conveniently located to public transportation, shopping, personal and professional services, and religious, cultural and recreational facilities.

- To provide a center for senior activities which will provide a focal point for social, recreational and assistance programs for the elderly.

Finally, the statement commits the village "to recognize and preserve areas and structures of historical significance and to encourage interest in our community heritage."

Des Plaines man injured in crash

A Des Plaines man escaped with minor injuries after his auto went through a fence and across two ditches, hit a culvert and flipped Thursday afternoon in Rolling Meadows.

Brian Albert, 29, of 1747 White St., was southbound on Ill. Rte. 53 when he apparently lost control of his car, said Trooper Carl Kobler of Illinois State Police. The car went off the roadway through a chain link fence, said Kobler. It crossed West Frontage Road and hit the ditch on the other side. It then hit the culvert and a wooden fence, flipped over, landing on its wheels, and hit the fence again, he said.

Albert was treated and released at Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights.
